COMMISSIONERS FIND CHARGES ARE DISPROVEN

Defence Claims Aid. Mitchell Declared He'd "Get That Big Stiff."

CHEERS GREET VERDICT

Inspector Wigle Lauds Increase in Efficiency of Force.

[Exclusive Staff Special.]

WINDSOR, Oct. 14.—Loud cheering and applause followed the statement of Chairman W. E. Gundy of the police commission to the effect that "We the members of the commission are unanimous in finding that the charges against Chief of Police Daniel Thompson are not only not proven, but are disproven."

"We will give out a full finding and submit it to the council later," and so concluded the investigation, stated by Ald. Frank J. Mitchell, and held at the city hall tonight, into charges that Chief Thompson was allowing liquor, which had been seized, to be taken out of the hands of the police without a proper order and transported from one house to another after it had been seized.

After City Solicitor Davis had closed his case without calling Aid. Mitchell, who was described by R. L. Brackin, counsel for the police department, as the "instigator" of the investigation, Mr. Brackin asked Aid. Mitchell if he would take the stand. The councillor did not think it necessary to answer the question. Then he was challenged to take the stand. Still he remained unmoved. Then Mr. Brackin requested the commission to order him to take the stand.

After considering the matter they did not think that it merited a finding of not guilty, the aidman gave evidence or not.

Want Mitchell On Stand.
At this point the audience was sympathetic with Mr. Brackin, and by their behavior showed that they were easier to see Aid. Mitchell cross-examined.

Then the defence entered evidence to show that the councillor had sworn to "get that big stiff" the chief. When the investigation opened Mr. Brackin wanted to know the scope of the cross-examination to be permitted, as he had evidence he wanted to introduce, which, he alleged, would be derogatory to the aidman.

The city solicitor submitted that it was not an investigation into charges against Mitchell that was being held, but one in connection with two specific charges, namely, that Chief Thompson allowed whiskey to be taken from one house to another after it had been seized, and that some of it was allowed out of the possession of the police after it had been seized and without a proper order for release being given.

He added that the investigation was one requested by the city council and was not one demanded by Mr. Mitchell.

Demands Cause of Inquiry.
Mr. Brackin replied that the motive for the investigation being instigated should be brought out.

The commissioners decided that the investigation should be confined to the two charges in writing unless during the process of the probe it was found necessary to do otherwise.

Constable Walter Hall testified that he visited No. 1355 Douglass avenue on Aug. 1 in company with Constables Yocum and Newman and Aid. Mitchell. When he approached the house, one person came out and turned back, then four came one, one of them, a woman, stumbling as she left the place. The quartet was taken to the police station, where they admitted that they had been drinking.

Constable Hall did not think they were intoxicated, and all four were released in the morning.

On Aug. 2 Hall and a second officer went to the house again to find a man named Horne. They did not obtain immediate results, but later secured a search warrant, and on making an investigation discovered a large quantity of liquor.

Part of the seizure was sent to police headquarters in the custody of another officer. Hall followed with the remainder, he declared. The entire supply was stored. The next morning, on checking up the seized liquor, Constable Hall discovered that one-gallon jug was missing. He stated that since that time he had not located the missing jug. Finally the liquor was released and returned to a Mrs. Lawson of 1355 Douglass avenue.

Two Jugs Were Missing.
Two days later Aid. Mitchell appeared at the police station and said two jugs were missing. Hall declared.

According to the witness, the aidman asked him to meet him in the city hall, telling him previously that he was going to have an investigation.

Hall admitted the chief had always taken any reports of violations of the liquor act. Inspector Wigle, the witness said, always took charge of any liquor seized. Chief Thompson not fully whether the aidman gave evidence or not.

Want Mitchell On Stand.
At this point the audience was sympathetic with Mr. Brackin, and by their behavior showed that they were easier to see Aid. Mitchell cross-examined.

Then the defence entered evidence to show that the councillor had sworn to "get that big stiff" the chief. When the investigation opened Mr. Brackin wanted to know the scope of the cross-examination to be permitted, as he had evidence he wanted to introduce, which, he alleged, would be derogatory to the aidman.

Henry Ford On His Knees in Mine Crawls Nearly a Mile

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 14.—Expansion of the vast Ford interests into the comparatively new coal fields of West Virginia and introduction of new methods in handling of labor and mining were forecast by the visit of Henry Ford and his son Edsel here.

After an inspection of his mines at Nitallaburg, where Ford descended into a coal mine for the first time in his life, the financier stopped in Huntington a short time for conference with West Virginia capitalists.

"I made the trip to my coal holdings here in West Virginia to learn the exact working conditions of my miners," declared Ford. "I was curious to see how coal was produced, how it looked down in the bottom of a mine, how the miners lived and ate and played. I am satisfied with the conditions as I found them."

Ford got down on his knees and crawled for nearly a mile, down into the bowels of the earth, when the mine compartment was too low to permit walking. He saw the miners blast out coal, and saw the cutting machines working three miles back into the mountains.

He visited the miners' homes, saw their wives cooking, inspected the playgrounds and schools provided by his company for the children, and inquired both of men and officials as to the general morale and working spirit of the miners.

Ford's entry into the West Virginia fields, torn with industrial strife since 1938, when the United Mine Workers of America began organizing here, is of great significance.

The manufacturer's handling of labor is a forecast of what he will probably do in this state. While he declined to discuss the labor situation, other than expressing satisfaction at conditions in his individual mine, members of the Ford party were of the opinion his inspection might result in some radical changes.

Three DENY GUILT IN $700,000 THEFT CASE

Cases Against Brenners To Be Heard in Three Groups.

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—Nathan Brenner, Meyer Brenner and Gordon L. Blackford appeared before Magistrate Jones today, and through their solicitors, pleaded not guilty on all of the eighteen different counts preferred against them. One of these was to the effect that Nathan Brenner, Meyer Brenner and Gordon L. Blackford, in the years 1918, 1919 and 1920, "did steal $700,000 in money, the property of N. Brenner & Co., contrary to the criminal code."

I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., appeared on behalf of Nathan Brenner, while A. C. McMaster, K.C., represented Meyer Brenner and Gordon L. Blackford.

In opening the case Crown Attorney Melhuish inquired whether the defendants wanted to have each of the eighteen preliminary hearings taken separately or whether they would be willing to reply to all at the same time. They replied that while they did not desire to have the hearings conducted one by one, they insisted that evidence applicable to one particular charge only should not be heard in connection with another.

Charges in Three Groups.
Magistrate Jones crystallized the situation by stating that the charges fell naturally into three main groups—firstly, stealing and receiving, secondly, conspiracy to defraud, and thirdly, falsifying and concealing. He suggested that the hearings should be held under these headings. This was agreed to, and the conspiracy charge being regarded as the broadest, it was decided to take up this group of hearings to commence with.

The court first called out the name of "Nassau" as the first witness, while Mr. McMaster asked, was an aid, if it were possible this could be William of Nassau or some member of the Royal Black preceptory.

Was Not "Nassau."
Mr. Hellmuth, however, stated that he was advised that the witness was not called "Nassau" and upon inquiry it proved that such was the case, he being K. Julian Rahlson, manager of the Nassau Smelting and Refining Company of New York.

Mr. Rahlson testified that his firm had had large dealings with the Brenners, and that all seized liquor was stored in one place and when any was returned, the person to whom it was sent back did not always get the identical liquor taken from him.

Since Chief Thompson took charge there was never a moment when the chief did not have the co-operation of the men, said the inspector. Chief Thompson had increased the efficiency of the force and dealt with all matters in a straightforward manner, he concluded.

As both the Progressive and Conservative parties have a candidate in the field it was thought that the Liberals should also enter the contest in the forthcoming federal elections. N. OXFORD LIBERALS CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 14.—The Liberals of North Oxford held a mass meeting here tomorrow to select a candidate to contest North Oxford in the federal election. The two names most prominently mentioned as the probable choice are Dr. D. J. Sinclair and G. F. Mahone, and if either of these can be induced to stand their election seems certain. The executive has secured for tomorrow's meeting as chief speaker G. N. Gordon of Peterboro, whose notable victory in a recent by-election is still fresh in the minds of the electors.

WILL OPEN RECEIVING OFFICES FOR DEPOSITS

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—Hon. Peter Smith, provincial treasurer, stated today that in working out the Government's scheme of establishing sub-treasury branches for receiving deposits from the public for government use, he would commence with branches in the cities. One branch will be opened in Toronto, and most of the other large centres will get one. From time to time, as the organization is built up, branches will be opened in the smaller centres of population.

"We will have a branch in Toronto and others of the larger centres," said Hon. Mr. Smith. "But I believe that places like Guelph, Stratford and Woodstock, which are the centre of a thriving agricultural district, and into which the farmers come more largely and regularly than into Toronto, will give us the best returns."
