Mr. Olliphant and his son had a most exciting experience on Saturday while they were coming over from Seattle to Victoria. They made the trip in a sixteen-foot launch. When they left Seattle there was a terrible sea running and it had been blowing a gale. The waves ran mountain high but nothing daunted the Olliphants, father and son, determined to make the passage. He is also an inventor and has patented several ideas during his seventeen years residence in the States, being the first to obtain patents on electric heating apparatus, as well as on apheating apparatus, as well as on ap-paratus for the purification of water and the cleasing of steam boilers.

In Saskatchewan the yield will, generally speaking, be fair. Mr. Olliphant is interested in the extensive coal fields near Edmonton. He recently promoted a company with a capital of $2,700,600 to develop some 12,000 acres of coal fields at Pembina river, sixty-four miles northwest of Edmonton where coal seams reaching a width of twelve feet have been located.
