MONDAY MORNING, MARCH 31, 1884.

Mr. Blake's Policy. Evidently Mr. Blake has found a polic at last, as Grip will have to acknowledge some of these days. That policy is, the practical extension of the Ontario Roman atholic league to the rest of the dominion His present effort is directed towards the province of Quebec chiefly, but is without loubt intended to reach all the other provinces as well. He is leading the reform party back to the position it occupied forty or fifty years ago, before the Globe had made enmity between it and the Roman Catholics. Whatever its merits may be in other respects, this policy is clear and intelligible enough; and all the more so because it harmonizes with the Gladstone policy in England. Over fifty years ago English reformers carried the olic emancipation act, and at a later date they disestablished the Anglican church in Ireland. Mr. Blake is heading what appears like a new movement, though it is really a bringing back of his party to its old position in Canada. That is to say, a return of the party to its old position as far as the same may be practicable in these changed times. Whether the basis for a solid and reliable alliance between Ontario reformers and Quebec Roman catholics can now be found has become a present and practical question.

To begin with, the two parties to the alliance are likely to find common standing ground on the question of provincial rights. Already the bleu press has freely dean invasion of provincial authority; and the orange bill recently defeated at Ottawa is opposed by them for this as well as for reasons. Beyond all question the Mining in Ontario.

In Dr. Selwyn's report for the year 1883 of the work of the dominion geological survey, published in the blue book, containing the annual reports of the department of the interior, the following references are made to mines in this province : ences are made to mines in this province : My own work during the past summer, from July 5 to November 1, consisted in a further examination of the northern shores of Lake Superior, from Port Arthur to the Picriver, in-cluding a visit to the Slate islands, &c., also an examination of the Rabbit Mountain silver mine. The Jack Fish Lake, now called the Huronian mine, was also visited, and I have much pleasure in being able to say that I con-sides it the most promising mining venture I have yet seen in this region. The lode is well defined, and can be traced for a considerable distance to the southwest with an equally promising character.

In connection with the above we may mention that the Rabbit Mountain mine would not be as prominent an issue behas recently been sold for an enormous tween parties as it has been. Str.: I am sorry to see our lay bishop and our clerical bishop at loggerheads on the temperance question. The trouble arose, as many of us know, at a dinner at Senator Macherson's, where Evangelical Sam and Arthur Toronto were present. During the dinner Samuel said something to his brother bishop about the inconsistency of the latter being the head of the church of England temperance organization and being at that yery memoria d drinker of wine the latter being the head of the church of England temperance organization and being at that very moment a drinker of wine. The clerical bishop said nothing at the time, but rebuked the evangelical bishop when he got him in a safe place. There-after they were at loggerheads. Now, I question very much if the evangelical bishop had the right to talk so to his cleri-cal bishop. To me it does seem not incomcal bishop. To me it does seem not incon-sistent for a bishop to be the head of a temerance society and a moderate drinker. nperance means moderation (that was the Greek idea), not complete abstention from wine, and so I take it is it held to mean
