But this motion concerning the treaty "come down" from the big talk until recently indulged in by Sir Richard and his friends, that we don't know what to make of it. This surely is not—no, it cannot be—the surprise which we were told to look for. That would be too ridiculous; it would set even mild men's thoughts a-running on murders and such like dreadful things. But Sir Richard does

Richard just wants an excuse for waiting for ning to turn up, and this will do for an excuse as well as anything else. It would be no libel to say that he and his friends are looking anxiously to Washington these days. For over the border their proposal of Unrestricted Reciprocity has got little other treatment than that with the cold water treatment than that with the cold water the cold water than the cold water douche so far; and it must be their hope—their wish, at least—that some more genial treatment may be accorded by Du Harrison their wish, at least—that some more genial treatment may be accorded by Dr. Harrison when he takes charge about three weeks hence. We take it, then, that Sir Richard is busily engaged in waiting until time shall tell what cheer from Washington. And upon the course adopted by the Powers that are soon to be thers, that taken by the Opposition at Ottawa will largely depend. You may call this an uncharitable view of it; but just note as you go along how it agrees with facts.

The Grand Trunk propose to project the track running across the Beach in a straight line until it strikes the main line of the Great Western (G.T.R.) five or six miles east of Hamilton, thus giving traffic to and from Toronto and the Falls a route shorter by about ten miles than the present way around Burlington Bay and through Hamilton, But according to the Hamilton papers the Hamilton people object. They say that some agreement between their city and the Grand Trunk prevents this, and they call on the Government to refuse the necessary legislation.

Are not we then to have solid trains between Toronto and the Falls, even if they do cut clear of Hamilton? Are we not to have the benefit of this shorter route if Mr. Hickson

The Hamilton papers see that they are interfering where they have no sufficient ground, and they wind up by advising that the extension be allowed if some quid pro quois made them. And this brings us "square up" before the gigantic absurdity which Sir Richard and his party have committed themselves to. They are enough. Observe the plain, staring facts, which cannot be denied. They want first of all Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States. or tie of any kind shall be made in the rope, nor shall the rope be passed more than once around the auchor's body. This rule to go into effect at once.

A Word to the Jockev Club.

All the jockey clubs about New York are making improvements, are expanding their facilities and offering increased attractions to the public. All have extensive capital, large possessions, and well-filled treasuries; but they should never forget that their prosperity is wholly dependent on public favor, and that public favor can only be retained by honest racing. The minor tracks over in New Jersey have set their bigger and richer brethren some good examples since the regular season closed. More jockeys and trainers have been ruled off at Olifton and Guttenberg since October 15, 1888, than were ruled off at all the legitimate tracks in and near New York during the whole of last year. Yet the frauds at the most important courses, at Sheepshead Bay, Jerome Park, Monmouth and Brooklyn, were at times as flagrant, as conspicuous and as infamous as the worst of those practised at the little mudholes on the other side of the Hudson River. It is like calling to the deaf or trying to awake the dead to attempt to stir the men in control of the jockey clubs to a sense of their duty and responsibility in this matter. Most of them seem entrely indifferent as to how much swindling shall be practised, in the pulling of horses, in fouling by jockeys, in all manner of trick and device in racing, provided their gate receipts remain profitable. But they will be touched in their tenderest point, their pocket, ere long, unless they take more care to cleanse their garments and purge their foul places. No sport can endure which is not honest through and through. Racing ought to die and must die unless it is carried on with more strict supervision and with more rigid restriction of this very and fraud than were practised last year.—N. Y. Tribune.

Ald. Tait spoke strongly in favor of Mr. Jarvis getting his point. He held that in both common justice and according to law Mr. Jarvis' demand was good. If the city was dealing with the County of York or some other rich corporation it would have to pay dearly for any piece of roadway it might want to secure possession of, and surely the city would not act the hog or be mean with one of its own citizens.

Ald. Carlyle declaimed any intention of desiring to act mean with Mr. Jarvis. There was no use, however, trying to get ahead of the law, and the outside sum the City Council could give would be only the half of the first cost of the structure.

Ald Shaw: "Mr. Jarvis, what did the bridge cost in the first place?"

Mr. Jarvis: "Well, ny figures show $20,000. Now I am willing to accept this amount and throw over the interest, or take the $10,000 and add the interest."

Ald. Shaw: "Well, I amof the opinion that you ought to get something, but exactly what figure is the matter which is puzzling me. Now, you laid out these roads and bust this bridge in order to boom your land, and you sold it through these improvements. You see you have had your recompense to a certain extent."

Mr. Jarvis: "I would suggest that the City

you have had your recompense to a certain extent."

Mr. Jarvis: "I would suggest that the City Soliotor be asked to advise the committee as to what to do."

Ald. Tait: "You may thank your stars, Jarvis, that you kept your legal claim on that bridge, for the moral one would not have had much weight with the Council."

The sub-committee finally adopted a resolution fathered by Ald. Carlyle that the city offer Mr. Jarvis $10,000 without prejudice and without interest. Mr. Jarvis thought that interest should be added, and Ald. Tait expressed the opinion that he believed Mr. Jarvis ought to have more.

The audience last night appeared to be somewhat reserved at the opening of the program and as a consequence the first two or three numbers failed to arouse the enthusiasm they merited, but when Mde. Albani appeared this coldness was dissipated, and the enthusiasm of the audience becoming more intense, it was not until the last number was sung that the climax was reached. This can only be taken as the highest compliment to the singers; it was no trumped up reception, but by sterling merit they won the hearts of the audience. The reception given to Mde. Albani was genuine spontaneous, cordied, and it was some moments before the applause subsided. Her selectious required the most varied treatment and afforded ample opportunity to display the versatility and sweath of her endowments. At the close of the La Traylate aris, in which the rich and flexible qualities of her voice were so apparent, she was recalled three times, and as an encore she rendered in a most pathetic and touching manner Topliff's "Angels ever Bright and Fair." The modulation of tone in the aria from Wagner's Lobengrin was charming in its effect, and her trilling in Handel's "Sweet Bird" was graceful and brilliant. As an encore she sang with much sympathy and fenderness "Home Sweet Home." Mde. Albani was made the recipient of a handsome floral basket at the close of the Handel number. This, which is perhaps Shakespeare's most amusing comedy, was most excellently presented. Rhea, whom it is to be regreted has not yet bettered her French accent into plainer English, gave a clarming rendition of the part of the fickle Beatrice, but she gave it the inspiration of delicate work, which combined with her sweet voice endeared her to the audience. Rhea's interpretation of the art dramatic is known in Toronto; and she was well received last night. She did some excellent comedy work, full of gaylety and freedom. Mr. William Harris's deserving of all credit for his elever and artistic portrayal of the part of Benedick, while Mr. Francour as Don Pedro, Mr. Burrows as Don John, and Mr. Armory as Dogberry, helped much towards the success of what was a most entertaining affair.

"A Dangerous Game" will be the bill for tonight; "Much Ado About Nothing" at to-morrow's mathese, and "Adrienne Lecouvreur" on Wednesday night.
