THE FLOCKMASTER.

A good Shropshire flock should average nine to ten pounds of wool.

Do not attempt to winter more sheep than can be done without crowding.

Be sure the flock has plenty of fresh water. If the sheep drink from springs, keep the approaches dry.

It is a great mistake to keep sheep in a warm pen in winter. Their fleeces protect them, and if they are kept dry they will be comfortable if properly fed.

Avoid crowding the lambs in the winter feeding quarters. They need a lot of room on account of their natural habit of crowding.

Arrange for plenty of yard room, and on all fair days keep the sheep in the open air as much as possible.

THE COLT IN WINTER.

Growing Animals Need a Ration of Grain and Warm Stalls.

During the cold winter days the colt needs some grain to keep him growing and in good flesh. The older horses may get through fairly well on roughage, but they are not developing bone and muscle like the colt. Then they are larger and naturally have more heat in their bodies. The grain given the colt should be ground so that he can thoroughly masticate it and get all the nourishment it contains. He should be fed in good, tight troughs so that he will be certain to get all of it. Also he needs to be shut away from older animals while eating so they will not steal his daily ration. Oats and corn ground together make a splendid feed. One-fourth oats and three-fourths corn is about the proper proportion for winter feed.

Then the colt should have good shelter from the storms. The old horse may stand the sleet and snow and rains and biting winds, but the colt will soon become pinched, and he needs a good warm stall where he will be protected from the furious weather. Keep him well housed and he will need less feed and come through the winter looking better than if left exposed to the storms. A box stall 14 by 14 feet will accommodate three or four colts if they are kind to each other. This should be located on the south side of the barn if possible and should be fitted up with mangers and feed boxes. The colts should be fed plenty of hay, and if it is clover or alfalfa so much the better. During the warm, sunny days they may be allowed to run out in the pastures or lots. This gives them plenty of exercise, and they will keep the more healthy.

It is a good plan to watch the colt's feet and keep them trimmed. Allowed to grow long, there may be a split hoof or a deformed ankle. If the colt gets lousy rub some coal oil and lard down his backbone, and if worms bother him feed a teaspoonful of finely ground tobacco in his feed twice each week.

While, according to this plan, it is a little more expensive to take a colt through the winter than would be the case where the little fellow is allowed to rough it, yet in the end there is economy in good care. This applies particularly in the case of draft colts, where weight at maturity is a most important factor.

Treatment For Ringbone.

In many cases treatment for ringbone starting on hind pastern of a colt's leg is not necessary. If lameness is absent it is usual to leave such cases to nature, says A. S. Alexander in the Farm and Fireside. Sometimes the "bunch" is reabsorbed. More commonly it goes on growing, and lameness comes on when the horse is worked hard on hard roads or even without the hard road influence. If you prefer to try inducing reabsorption of the growth (exostosis) clip off the hair and blister at least once a month by rubbing in a little of a mixture of one dram of biniodide of mercury and two ounces of cerate of cantharides. The cerate keeps indefinitely, but the iodide of mercury should be rubbed up with the cerate just before use. Rub the blister in for fifteen minutes. Tie the colt up short so that he cannot lie down or bite the blistered part. Rub lard on the part in three days and then apply a little lard once a day.

For a "Ringbone" that causes lameness it is best to have the part puncture and blistered by a veterinarian and then give six weeks of rest in the stall. The results will pay for the expense.

Cause of Mottled Butter.

Mottled butter may be due to several causes. If the cream is not strained into the churn there are likely to be large specks of curd in the butter, as the curd will not take up the coloring matter used for coloring the butter. The most common cause of mottled butter is the improper mixing of salt and the presence of too much buttermilk. When care is taken to thoroughly wash out all buttermilk and to mix the salt evenly throughout the butter there is very little danger of producing mottled butter.

Remedy For Scours in Horses.

The feeding of carrots sometimes checks tendency to scouring. If that does not prove helpful mix a pint of browned wheat flour with each feed, and if that does not suffice give twice daily a tablespoonful of a mixture of one part each of powdered alum, subnitrate of bismuth, powdered catechu, powdered ginger root and two parts powdered wood charcoal.

LOST BY AN EYELASH.

When James R. Keene Laid For Him a Big Bet on Besom.

Although James R. Keene was known as the nerviest of Wall street operators, he was anything but a betting man on the race tracks. He dearly loved to win valuable stakes, and he won nearly everything in his line except the classic English Derby. His horses rarely carried anything but an infinitesimal wager. Big wagers were few and far between with him.

One day when his Ben Brush colt Besom was making his racing debut at Sheepshead Mr. Keene visited the paddock in company with his trainer, Jimmy Rowe, and inspected the colt minutely. Keene was very fond of Noonday, the colt's dam, and he talked proudly of his expectations of Besom. The colt had worked exceptionally fast, and the race looked as sure as sure things can be regarded on a race track.

The result of the conference with Rowe was that Mr. Keene decided to make one of his rare large bets on Besom to win. The news of the Keene wager created almost a sensation in the ring, and the price against the colt went tumbling.

The race was run, and Besom lost by an eyelash. He went out with Berry Maid, and the two raced stride for stride like a team. When it was Besom's turn to stride his nose showed in front, and when it was Berry Maid's turn she showed a scant advantage. So it was all the way, Mr. Keene watching the contest through his field-glasses without a murmur. The crowd was on its toes. As they passed the judges it was Berry Maid's turn to stride. Then the apple of Mr. Keene's eye at the time lost the verdict, and the vice chairman of the Jockeys club lost one of his few wagers on the turf.—New York World.
