Advertising

The Monfireal merchant who And Laid a Layer of Bricks For Every spends twenty to twenty five thousand dollars a year in newspaper advertising doubtless thinks he is accomplishing great things. As a matter of fact he is a more "piker" As a when his spendings are compared with those of some of the great American merchants for the same purpose. For instance, last year Marshall Field & Co. spent $350,000 for advertising in the Chicago daily newspapers alone. One paper, the Chicago Daily News, carried $90,-000 worth of advertising for that firm. Several others were not far behind. Marshall Field & Co.'s advertising bill was duplicated by several other Chicago firms. It was exceeded by those of a number of New York business concerns. In Philadelphia one firm is said to have spent half a million with the newspapers. It is significant, too, that these firms are among the biggest profit-making concerns in the country. It pays them to advertise. The average rate for store advertising in the daily papers of the three largest American cities runs close to twenty cents a line; the average rate in Montreal is about six cents. In population Montreal ranks ninth in the list of cities on this continent; in the matter of newspaper advertising it ranks about fortieth. Perhaps that's the reason so many of our merchants complain that they are constantly on the brink of bankruptcy. They haven't learned how to use printers' ink.—Beck's Weekly.

Beginning with the next school year a normal course will be attached to the manual training section of the public schools of Montevideo for the purpose of educating teachers in the various branch-es of women's work.

Line He Composed Several years ago 1 wrote an essay for the Atlantic Monthly on "The Hundred Worst Books." For a place in the list I selected a book in my library en-titled "Poems on Several Occasions," published in 1749 by one Jones, a poet whose name was unknown to me till I perused his verse. The pages were so fresh that I cherished the belief that I half. I had the pride of possession in Jones. It was some time after that I came across, in Walpole's letters, an allu-sion to my esteemed poet. It seems that Colley Cibber, when he thought he was dying, wrote to the prime minister "recommending the bearer, Mr. Henry Jones, for the vacant laurel. Lord Chesterfield will tell you more of him."

I was never more astonished in my life than when I visualized the situation and saw my friend Jones "the bearer" of a demand for the reversion of the laureateship. It seemed that Walpole was equally surprised, and when he next met Lord Chesterfield the eager question was, Who is Jones, and why should he be recommended for the position of poet laureate? Lord Chesterfield answered. "A better poet would not take the post, and a worse ought not to have it." It appears that Jones was an Irish bricklayer and had made it his custom to work a certain number of hours according to an undeviating rule. He would lay a layer of brick and then compose a line of poetry, and so on until his day's task was over. This ac-counts for the marvelous evenness of his verse.

This was but a small discovery, but it gave a real pleasure, for should I meet my Lord Chesterfield he and I would at once have a common interest We both had discovered Jones, and quite independently .- Atlantic Monthly.

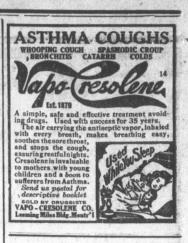

ONE VIEW OF BISMARCK.

His Love of Music and His Dislike of Wagner as a Man.

Talking of the arts Bismarck said: "Of music I am very fond, but now I have to abstain from hearing it be-cause tears come only too readily into my eyes. My heart is stronger than my head. Indeed, what self control I have has been bought by experience." Many instances occurred during our conversations which gave the truth to this assertion.

The extreme mobility of his counte nance and the various shades of expression which passed over it told of a sensitive, emotional temperament. "But I have a fire within me still which burns at times with fury." Upon that I asked, "Are you in reality the iron chancellor?" "No." he said, "not naturally; the iron I have created to use when necessary." And that I believe to be true

I asked him if he knew Wagner per-conally. "Yes," he answered, "but it sonally. was quite impossible for me to care for him or to encourage his society. I had not time to submit to his insatia ble vanity. Before breakfast, at breakfast, before and after dinner, Wagner lemanded sympathy and admiration His egotism was wearisome and intolerable, and his demand for a listen-er was so incessant that I was obliged to avoid his company. I was too busy with my affairs to be able to give him all or even a portion of the demands he would have claimed upon my time. But I admire his music greatly, though I have been compelled to give up go-ing to the opera because the beautiful and touching melodies I cannot get out of my head; they cling to me, and I find it difficult to release myself from them, and now it tires much how no much moved."—From "Conversations With Prince Bismarck," by W. B. Richmond, the English painter, in North American Review.

Wind Pressure.

A wind traveling at the rate of three miles an hour presses with a weight of about three-quarters of an ounce upon every square foot of surface which stands in its way. A wind of eighteen miles an hour gives a pressure of one pound and a quarter to each square foot, a wind of thirty-five miles an hour gives a pressure of six pounds on the square foct, a gale of fifty miles an hour thirteen pounds, a storm of seventy-five miles twentyeight pounds and a hurricane of ninety miles forty pounds on the square foot.

A Lapse of Memory. The minister, who was a reformed policeman, said to the bridegroom, who stood trembling, with his pallbearer

"Do you, Algernon Smith, take this young woman to be your lawful wed-ded wife in sickness and in health, for better or for worse, till death do you part? Remember, anything you say will be used against you."-Chicago Post.
