

fessor Drummond, too, had told a friend of his, that "if only Quakers roused themselves, they have an immense place waiting for them to fill." The writer of the paper believed that the absence of persecutor had something to do with their partial indifference to the great need for workers in the crusade against the evils of the present time. The paper did not take a discouraging view of the situation, but forcibly urged the younger members to rouse themselves for the work ready to their hand.—From British Friend, of 4th mo.

FLEE AT ONCE.

Dr. Cuyler writes: "Many long years ago I crossed the ocean in a fine packet ship, which was afterward wrecked on the southeast coast of Ireland. The vessel struck at midnight on a cliff, and while it clung for a few moments to the rock that pierced its side, all the passengers who leaped out on the rock were saved. The prompt, positive step saved them. Those who lingered were swept off in the doomed ship by a return wave, and went to the bottom.

"Your immediate duty is to flee out of the sinking ship of sin to the everlasting Rock. In Christ you are safe. In serving Him you are happy. He will give you the fullest, sweetest, and most useful occupation for head and heart and hand as long as you live in this world."—Selected.

We should give as we would receive, cheerfully, quickly and without hesitation; for there is no grace in a benefit that sticks to the fingers.—[Seneca.]

This is a select home school where each pupil is treated as a member of the family, and brought under refined influences. Situated in the beautiful city of homes. The buildings are now new, and modern in all their appointments—halls, parlors, libraries, spacious class rooms and single bedrooms, all heated by steam. Owing to the enlarged buildings, we have decided to receive girls as well as boys, and all will be under thorough instruction and management. We desire to develop intelligent, upright, honest men and women, and to this end we aim to surround them with such influences as will bring out their better natures and inspire a desire for study and improvement.
