

HOME RULE.

Mr. Gladstone Decides to Close Home Rule Debate on Friday.

An Amendment by Mr. Chamberlain Condemning the Government's Action, Defeated.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Gladstone moved the adoption of the resolution notice of which was given on Friday last, to apply the closure to the report stage of the Home Rule bill on Friday next.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the Unionist leader, then submitted his amendment, declaring that the Government proposal was calculated to degrade the House into a voting machine, depriving the British majority of its constitutional rights, and ought therefore to be withdrawn. In speaking to his amendment Mr. Chamberlain said he could not recognize the necessity of passing the Home Rule bill at one session. The real necessity of rushing it through was that the Government did not dare to stand on one measure, the only chance of the adoption of which, if any such chance had ever existed, had been destroyed by the Government's alteration of the ninth clause of the financial arrangements. If the Government went to the country to-morrow, Mr. Chamberlain added, it would meet with crushing defeat. He would not, on its own account, it wanted the bill hustled out of the way in order to enable it to patch up its reputation with other measures.

Mr. William Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replied to Mr. Chamberlain for the Government. In 1887, he said, the Conservatives had thought the closure proposal a good one, and the Liberals had thought it a bad one. The Liberal thought the present proposal a good one and the Opposition thought it a bad one. It was plain then to everybody who would see that the question at issue was whether or not a reasonable time had been allowed for the discussion of the present bill. The country must form their own opinions on this point. The Government had allowed for discussion of the Home Rule bill twice the time ever before given up by Parliament to any one measure. In conclusion, Sir William Harcourt said, Mr. Chamberlain's amendment was a good one, but it was not the measure of the day. He would not, on its own account, it wanted the bill hustled out of the way in order to enable it to patch up its reputation with other measures.

Mr. Chamberlain's amendment was defeated by a majority of 161. The Government's resolution was carried by a majority of 161.

The House then divided on Mr. Chamberlain's amendment. It was rejected by a vote of 161 to 161. Mr. Gladstone's resolution to close the Home Rule debate on Friday was adopted with the same division.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—In the House of Commons to-day, the Right Hon. Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying to a question asked by Mr. Robert L. Blythe, (Liberal), member for the Woodbridge division of Suffolk, said that the Government had found nothing in the course of events in India that would induce them to interfere with the single monetary standard.

THE HOUSE THEN DIVIDED ON MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S AMENDMENT. IT WAS REJECTED BY A VOTE OF 161 TO 161. MR. GLADSTONE'S RESOLUTION TO CLOSE THE HOME RULE DEBATE ON FRIDAY WAS ADOPTED WITH THE SAME DIVISION.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A few days ago two alack Hebrews arrived in the city from Hamilton, and informed Messrs. Breaslin and J. Roenthal, a young street pawnbroker, that they had a gold brick valued at between $3,000 and $4,000 which they were anxious to dispose of. The brick was found in a lot, where the brick changed hands for $2,000. When the Toronto contingent investigated the brick, they found it was only brass, gold plated. Detectives have the matter in hand, but no trace has been found yet of the confidence men.

Christopher Robinson, Q.C., counsel for Canada during the Behring Sea arbitration, has arrived home from England. Being asked what he thought of the decision, Mr. Robinson said: "The regulations are, no doubt, the result of the best judgment of the arbitrators, formed upon conflicting evidence. We succeeded on every legal question and in the regulations the claims of the United States received fair and full consideration." In Mr. Robinson's opinion the indications are in favor of the fishing industry being still profitable under the new restrictions.

Advocate of Sunday street cars held a large and enthusiastic meeting at the auditorium last night. Rev. Prof. C. C. Clack, Trinity University, and other prominent citizens addressed the gathering.

WINNIPEG WIRINGS. Writ for Brandon by Election Issued—"C" Battery Train Derailed Near Calgary.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 22.—(Special)—The writ for the Brandon City vacancy in the Manitoba Legislature has been issued. Nomination day will be September 1, and the election on September 8. W. A. MacDonald is the Opposition candidate.

Two well-known young men of this city were fined $50 and costs each this morning for shooting prairie chickens out of season.

The C.P.R. Atlantic express met with a mishap at Calgary last night. Two horses derailed the train. No one was injured on board except the driver, among those on the train was Prince Yoritoko, of Japan, and members of "C" Battery.

The six-year-old daughter of Daniel Doyle was badly burned to-day, her dress igniting from a burning pile of paper.

"BLOWN IN." Big Iron Works at Pittsburgh Start Their Furnaces to Work Again.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 21.—There is plenty of smoke issuing from countless chimneys of many iron mills, this morning, in the vicinity of Pittsburgh. The Sligo works of Philip Nimitz & Co. went into full operation this morning. Three thousand men are at work at Jones & Laughlin's to-day and night. The iron and steel industry is in full operation, as also the Lockhart Iron and Steel Co., at Chartiers. The Black Diamond Steel Works started in full blast to-day, giving employment to 4,000 people. Outside of the city there was a partial resumption, at reduced wages, at the National Tube Works, at McKeesport, three open hearth furnaces were placed in operation at the Carnegie Homestead plant, while the Oliver Coke Furnace Co. fired only. The hundred ovens at Uniontown, this morning, employing 300 men. Before the end of the week it is expected that other large plants will be placed in operation.

SAN FRANCISCO FAIR. The First Sod of the Site to be Turned on Thursday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—It is proposed to begin the work of grading a site for the mid-winter fair buildings immediately after the first sod of earth is turned on Thursday. There is much enthusiasm over the exercises, which are to be held that afternoon, and over two hundred big business houses have agreed to close and give their employees a half holiday. On Friday next the work of collecting cash and subscriptions to the fair fund will begin. Several of the local parlors of Native Sons have organized to assist in the success of the fair.

MANITOBA WHEAT CROP. Declared to Be the Finest Quality That Has Ever Grown There.

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—W. W. Ogilvie, the milling king of Canada, estimates the yield of wheat in Manitoba and the North-West Territories at about 20 bushels per acre, or a total yield of about 19,000,000 bushels. The quality of the crop, he says, is the best ever grown in the Northwest, and if the weather continues fine for the next ten days the crop may be considered safe. Over half of it has already been cut.

IN MEMORY OF LINCOLN. Handsome Statue of the Martyred President Unveiled With Much Ceremony in Edinburgh.

EDINBURGH, Aug. 21.—The statue of Abraham Lincoln, the martyr President of the United States, erected as a memorial to the Scottish-American soldiers of the American civil war, was unveiled to-day in the presence of the municipal authorities, many distinguished guests, a number of Americans, and a large crowd of residents of Edinburgh, including most of the elite of the town and people from the surrounding country. The statue of Lincoln, which is cast in bronze, stands upon a base of polished red granite. Upon the sur-base is a frieze in relief, in bronze, his face turned to the left, in which the right hand of the emancipation proclamation. Several battle flags are shown to the left of the statue. The monument is erected in the cemetery set apart for the burial of Scottish-American soldiers, a handsome plot of ground in Calton Hill, which was given for the purpose by the town council. The ceremony of unveiling the monument was an imposing one, and was of an international character. A large detachment of Princess Louise's regiment (the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders) acted as a guard of honor. Their scarlet uniforms with yellow facings added color to the scene. The band of the regiment accompanied the detachment. The municipal officers were all attired in their robes of office. The ceremony was presided over by Sir William Arrol, Prof. Christie, of Edinburgh, leader of the procession, prayer, and Sir William Arrol then made a speech, in the course of which he said that the monument unveiled would be an object lesson to teach the duty of protecting the unity of the Empire. Henry R. Heath, of New York, who with Mr. Wallace Bruce, the American consul here, was one of the originators of the monument, then read the inscription on the monument, also made a brief speech. The cord holding the wrappings was then pulled by Miss Bruce, daughter of the consul, who was assisted by a young lady. As the statue was unveiled, the crowd cheered repeatedly and the band played "Rule Britannia." Cheers were then given for Mr. George C. Bissell, the sculptor, after which the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner." Consul Bruce then, in a few well chosen words in which he touchingly referred to the services rendered the Union by the Scottish-American troops, and the duty of America to recognize the fact that many of them had given their lives to maintain the supremacy of Federal Government, formally presented the monument to the town. The Lord Provost, the Right Hon. James Buchanan, and the Lord Provost, on behalf of the municipal government that it would always be safely guarded.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL. Happenings of Yesterday Told Briefly for Busy People's Reading.

The Union National Bank and the People's National Bank, both of Denver, Col., have reopened for business. San Francisco's unemployed have formed a "United Brotherhood of Labor," with about 3,000 members. The Brotherhood is building a soup kitchen and proposes to replace Chinese with white men wherever possible. The defence in the Curtis murder trial are producing evidence in support of their theory that Detective Grant was shot by a mysterious third party who made good his escape. A large number of the choice exhibits at the World's Fair will go from Chicago to San Francisco to form part of the attractions at the Midwinter exposition. Mr. Wyman, of the Marine hospital service, Washington, has been notified of the appearance of cholera, in epidemic form, at St. Petersburg.

The following circular is being sent for signature to every actor, manager and professional singer in America: "I hereby agree that I will not give my services free for any benefit entertainment in aid of any petition, lodge, society or club, or for any object (except in cases of national calamity or public disaster) unless 25 per cent. of profits therefrom shall go to the actors' fund. The trustees of the actors' fund can give what they wish of the money." The U. S. Iron and Tin Plate Co. is in partial operation, as also the Lockhart Iron and Steel Co., at Chartiers. The Black Diamond Steel Works started in full

CABLE NEWS.

The French Elections—A Second Ballot Necessary in Nearly Every Paris District.

Welch Miners Fail to Make Their Promised Raid, Thanks to Police Preventive Measures.

The March Postponed.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The threatened invasion of Ebbwvale, Wales, by an army of 40,000 striking miners from the Rhondda valley, whose intention is to force the non-union miners to quit work, has not yet occurred, though the original idea was to begin the march yesterday. The weather was threatening towards the day and towards evening it began to rain in torrents. This had a deterrent effect on the strikers, but it is more than likely that the measures taken by the police and military to protect the non-union miners and the working miners had more to do with the postponement, if not the actual abandonment, of the programme than the weather. Every preparation had been made to receive the strikers, and at the slightest attempt at rising they would have found themselves under the guns of the military. Considering all the circumstances the strike leaders thought discretion the better part of valor, and the invasion for the present has been postponed. Many non-union miners are working in the Ebbwvale district to-day. They are under police and military protection, which will not be withdrawn until the danger of attack is past.

A Farewell Luncheon. EDINBURGH, Aug. 21.—Right Hon. Jas. A. Russell, Lord Provost of Edinburgh and other municipalities, gave a farewell luncheon to Mr. Wallace Bruce, the retiring American consul here. The officials presented to Mr. Bruce a silver loving cup as a token of their esteem and of the appreciation of his services in the cause of Scotch literature. Many of the leading citizens of Edinburgh were present at the luncheon, and much enthusiasm was manifested.

A Second Ballot Necessitated. PARIS, Aug. 21.—The city of Paris comprises 35 districts. The returns received from these districts show that second ballots will have to be taken in 31 of the 35. M. Jacques Poin, who represents the St. Gaudens district of Haute Garonne in the last chamber, and who is a leader of the Conservatives, has been defeated in this district by a successful opponent is M. Bepmale, a Radical.

Papal Congratulations. ROME, Aug. 21.—Within the past few days the Pope sent an important letter to Mr. Russell, Lord Provost of Edinburgh, and to the United States, and the Pope is performing in that country. The Pope will send Cardinal Gibbons a present on the occasion of the cardinal's celebration of the anniversary of his consecration as a bishop.

New German Warships. BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Vice-Admiral Holtzmann, secretary of state for naval affairs, is said to have obtained the approval of the Reichstag for the construction of a new battleship, which will be named the "Grosser Kurfürst." The new warships in order that Germany may not fall too far behind France and Russia in naval armament.

Germany's Cholera Report. BERLIN, Aug. 22.—The Imperial Board of Health announced that there have been 1,000 cases of cholera in Germany, three of the persons attacked died.

Revolt in East Africa. LONDON, Aug. 22.—A special dispatch to the Times from Zanzibar, saying that the Arab soldiers stationed at the only port of the Kismayo on the island of that name, have revolted and killed the agent of the East African Co. at that place. The Arabs threaten to destroy the town and the steamer Kanika, which is now at Kismayo. The British officer Blanche has gone to quell the insurrection.

They Never Got There. LONDON, Aug. 22.—The march of the striking miners from the Rhondda Valley to Ebbwvale, Wales, which began at 10 o'clock last night proved a complete fiasco. The object of the strikers was to force the miners in the Ebbwvale district, who are still at work, to leave the mine and join the strikers. About 4,000 men were in line when the march began. Shortly after the start was made, the marchers were met by a strong military band, and the marchers were ordered to disperse. The marchers refused to do so, and the military band made to force them to disperse. The marchers were then met by a strong military band, and the marchers were ordered to disperse. The marchers refused to do so, and the military band made to force them to disperse. The marchers were then met by a strong military band, and the marchers were ordered to disperse. The marchers refused to do so, and the military band made to force them to disperse.

Winnipeg Warnings. WINNIPEG, Aug. 21.—Reports published in Toronto that the Manitoba emigration and immigration would be closed on October 1 is confirmed by the Department of Agriculture here.

About the first of October a new time table will go into effect on the C.P.R. Railway. The new time table will be a great improvement on the old one, and will be a great benefit to the travelling public.

Bishop Chase, from McKenzie River, is a guest at Bishop's Palace St. Boniface. He started on his journey two months ago and has been travelling slowly.

Quarrier in Quebec. QUEBEC, Aug. 22.—The last political meeting to be held in the province by Mr. Laurier and his friends took place at St. Jean, Port Joli, county L'Isle, yesterday. The meeting was a success, and Mr. Laurier and party came up to Quebec last night, to be present at the funeral of Hon. Isidore Thibodeau this morning.

Col. Baker Coming Home. MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—Hon. Col. Baker, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Immigration and Education for British Columbia, is here on his way from England.

Well Earned Rest. TORONTO, Aug. 22.—Rev. J. M. Cameron has resigned the pastorate of Oak Street Presbyterian church, which he has held for the past twenty-four years.

Died at Sefton. STREATHAM, Aug. 22.—Thomas G. Margate died suddenly of heart failure on Saturday while participating in a football match.

Miss Hanson's Body Found. SORKE, Aug. 22.—The body of Miss Hanson, of Montreal, who was drowned here some days ago, has been recovered.

To Investigate N. F. Affairs. NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—It was announced this morning that the receivers Oakes and Ropes, of the Northern Pacific railroad, will leave here to-morrow for Milwaukee, where they will meet the other receiver, Henry C. Payne, and together they will make an examination of the road's affairs. Until this examination is completed they will make no more statements.

Badness is often preceded or accompanied by goodness of the kind. To prevent both badness and goodness, use HALL'S Balm. It is a remedy for all kinds of badness and goodness.

UNCLE SAM'S SENATE. Senator Morrill Argues Against the Purchase of More Silver—A Question of Procedure.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 21.—The veteran Senator from Vermont, Mr. Morrill, occupied the attention of the Senate to-day with an argument in support of the bill discontinuing the purchase of silver bullion. The speech, which was at the same time witty and serious, was read from printed notes and occupied a little over an hour in the delivery. The bill was then laid aside.

LABOR DEMONSTRATION. Mass Meeting in New York—Its Ardor Cooled by Police and Rain.

Anarchism Denounced—Bread, Work and Protection by Government Demanded.

NEW YORK, April 19.—About 3,000 people gathered in Union Square, a little before 8 o'clock to-night, in anticipation of the speeches to be delivered by the fiery spirits in the agitation of the unemployed. Whatever fire had been smoldering was entirely subdued by the dizzling rain and the presence of some three hundred policemen, and a dozen central office men were sufficient to curb incendiary talk. In consequence, the meeting was tame. The speakers found it difficult to pitch their voices so as to penetrate a sea of umbrellas. The few spontaneous outbursts of endorsement were only aroused by the propositions that it was time to make America a free country, and that the sweating system must be abolished. Not more than 1,000 men came into the square with the parade, which was advertised to leave the Golden Rule, on Rivington street, at 6 o'clock. There were no banners, and no band of music headed the cosmopolitan column. People looked up to the square at Tenth avenue and Broadway from all directions. The police patrolled the circle on each side of the square at intervals of 25 yards, and another line of blue-coated backed the crowd which blocked the street. Adolph Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

LABOR DEMONSTRATION.

Mass Meeting in New York—Its Ardor Cooled by Police and Rain.

Anarchism Denounced—Bread, Work and Protection by Government Demanded.

NEW YORK, April 19.—About 3,000 people gathered in Union Square, a little before 8 o'clock to-night, in anticipation of the speeches to be delivered by the fiery spirits in the agitation of the unemployed. Whatever fire had been smoldering was entirely subdued by the dizzling rain and the presence of some three hundred policemen, and a dozen central office men were sufficient to curb incendiary talk. In consequence, the meeting was tame. The speakers found it difficult to pitch their voices so as to penetrate a sea of umbrellas. The few spontaneous outbursts of endorsement were only aroused by the propositions that it was time to make America a free country, and that the sweating system must be abolished. Not more than 1,000 men came into the square with the parade, which was advertised to leave the Golden Rule, on Rivington street, at 6 o'clock. There were no banners, and no band of music headed the cosmopolitan column. People looked up to the square at Tenth avenue and Broadway from all directions. The police patrolled the circle on each side of the square at intervals of 25 yards, and another line of blue-coated backed the crowd which blocked the street. Adolph Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the sweating system. The speakers were interrupted by calls for the fiery little woman, and she came out, which raised a storm of counter shouts, "We don't want her," "Don't let her talk," "No Anarchists."

LABOR DEMONSTRATION.

Mass Meeting in New York—Its Ardor Cooled by Police and Rain.

Anarchism Denounced—Bread, Work and Protection by Government Demanded.

NEW YORK, April 19.—About 3,000 people gathered in Union Square, a little before 8 o'clock to-night, in anticipation of the speeches to be delivered by the fiery spirits in the agitation of the unemployed. Whatever fire had been smoldering was entirely subdued by the dizzling rain and the presence of some three hundred policemen, and a dozen central office men were sufficient to curb incendiary talk. In consequence, the meeting was tame. The speakers found it difficult to pitch their voices so as to penetrate a sea of umbrellas. The few spontaneous outbursts of endorsement were only aroused by the propositions that it was time to make America a free country, and that the sweating system must be abolished. Not more than 1,000 men came into the square with the parade, which was advertised to leave the Golden Rule, on Rivington street, at 6 o'clock. There were no banners, and no band of music headed the cosmopolitan column. People looked up to the square at Tenth avenue and Broadway from all directions. The police patrolled the circle on each side of the square at intervals of 25 yards, and another line of blue-coated backed the crowd which blocked the street. Adolph Ury introduced the speakers, James Stewart, a custom tailor who once lived in Glasgow, opened the meeting by roundly scoring Emma Goldman. They did not want any anarchists or any anarchy, he said. "What they did want was the help of the city and the Government, and above all the abolition of the