World Office, Vednesday Evening, March 20. Price movements in the Cobalt securities to-day were too narrow to admit of good trading facilities, and the volume of transactions consequently was less than recently. The markets were wanting in aggressive support, but at declines buyers were plentiful in the active issues. The trading on the whole lacks vivacity and bullishness has subsided under the trend of quotations. The Toronto markets are still largely influenced by New York still largely influenced by New York and many sales for the larger market have recently been put thru here. There was no special feature to the business to-day. Small net declines were made pretty well all round, and the trading was evenly dull and dragthruout the entire day. The smaller offerings were favorably view-ed by long traders, but any thing more than light rallies for the present are not thought to be responsible.

In April of last year Dan Mosher and five companions came to Cobalt from Prince Albert, Sask., and after taking a look over the Cobalt camp, concluded that they would go further north. In the month of May they got some of the 27 40-acreciaims which have been staked. Several shafts have been sunk on these veins and good gold values are said to have been found in every foot as far down as they have gone. Commodious camp buildings have been erected, and they are confident that the future of the new camp, which is known as the "Mosher Gold Camp." is very bright. Camp," is very bright.
