but, according to Prof. Redard of Gencva, they do take away certain ill effects that often accompany the use of anesthetics. It is a well-known fact that external impressions received during the period of somnolence have great bearing on the dreams. From this Prof. Redard conceived the idea of utilizing music. It was found that the music had a tendency to take away the disagreeable excitation previous to the use of the chloroform or other anesthetic. The awakening was also found to be free from excitement.
