Smartly tailored on the correct lines ordained by Dame Fashion for this season's wear all represent excellent style and exceptional value. This is a rare opportunity to secure a chic semi-fitted or Russian tailored suit at half or less than half its original price.

A CREAM SERGE IN RUSSIAN style is belted and fastened by buckle and buttons in ivory finish and is trimmed with bands of military braid. An over-collar of color is in square sailor shape and very suggestive of outing wear. A pleated panel in the back of the peplum forms a distinctive touch on one of the higher priced models whose collar is daintily embroidered in gold, white and blue. Rows of tucks form a semblance of belt at each side of a panel back—and front—on an imported suit of finest French serge; the cream gros grain silk collar repeats the tucks in a band at the back. Prices, $8.75 to $25.00.

AMONG SILK SUITS are bargains to satisfy many. Nigger brown taffeta in Russian style has touches of tan on collar and buttons; the skirt is shirred to a deep yoke.

NAVY GROS DE LONDRES IS MADE WITH HIGH SHIRRED COLLAR AND HAS A HAND-MADE CORDED ornament at front and back of belt; the skirt has a shirred panel on each hip; this also in black and brown. A bouffant elbow puff above a high buttoned cuff, embroidery on belt, cuff, collar and yoke are smart traits of one of the high priced and greatly reduced models; this in taffeta or faille, in taupe, black, navy, or Russian green. Prices from $16.50 to $47.50.

WOOL POPLIN, GABARDINE, AND SERGE—often of fine French qualities—are the materials made in many attractive styles with belted, box, or semi-fitted coats often adorned with a collar of contrasting hue, or touch of embroidery or braiding; the skirts are in plain flaring, belted or shirred and pleated styles; all are excellent in material and design and represent enormous reductions from the original selling prices. Prices, $3.95 to $12.75.

You were Lequining?

Dorothy and J. M.—I fear disappointment awaits you for we have no bathing suits with stockings attached. The "Annette Kellerman" are knee length, sleeveless tight used mainly in swimming pools or under silk bathing suits. A charming "frill" blouse with wide ruffle revers, lace edged, and cuffs to match is obtainable in a self-striped white with hemstitched organdy collar, and the price is $3.85.

M. O. B.—Would four-inch silk tassels of a green exactly matching your sample be of any use? Such may be bought for 40c, but also a longer or shorter silk tassel in the same hue is available.

"Our Soldiers' Friend."—Masterlinck builded more than he knew when he wrote the "Blue Bird" and great probably is his surprise at the widespread adoption of the theme of his fairy play as a motif of decoration in all sorts of unlikely places. Do you think so? Blue birds ready to peck on new sports hats may be had at 35c or 50c; and apropos of this have you seen the new midday with blue birds embroidered in one corner of the sailor collar? They are charming. Cream knitting cotton seems not to be available; what we have is white, 60 s ball, sizes 4 to 20.

Lady Betty.—Still "Across the Water?"—and considering men's box and wicker sofas in the most practical way! The cheapest merino sock are day 18c and 25c per pair; all prices change so greatly in these war times that it is impossible to say what they will be in the autumn. A Wicker sofa in brown or natural finish and two feet wide sells at $10.00. To clean the whalebone hairbrush purchased from us a strong solution of Castile soap in warm—not hot—water will be found satisfactory. Am sorry we can find a special form of celebration for the sixth wedding anniversary.

Linda Lou.—How would a riding skirt of Khaki drill at $3.95 strike your fancy? Worn with a Leeds Plain shirt waist or coat bodice it should prove very smart and golf-ready in effect. These skirts are divided, but may be fastened in the front to conceal the division when walking. By the way, have you seen that in England women munitions workers have taken to trousers? If the Khaki skirt does not please you one in navy serge is priced at $3.95.

CANNOT AGREE ON HOME RULE

Asquith and Lloyd George Make Reply to John Redmond.

MEASURE IS DEFERRED

Negotiations to Effect Settlement Has Ended in Failure.

The discussion of Mr. Redmond's motion to adjourn the house of commons in order to call attention to the rapidly growing feeling of unrest in Ireland, and the deplorable effect on the government not proposing to carry out in entirety the terms offered by it for a settlement of the Irish difficulty as accepted by the Irish party, began with a speech by Mr. Redmond. The Irish Nationalist leader declared he did not want to attack any party, but merely to state the facts which, he said, spoke for themselves. He said that when two months ago Premier Asquith had returned from Ireland, and announced that the present system of government had broken down, and said the cabinet had unanimously requested Mr. Lloyd George to bring about, if possible, a provisional settlement of the home rule question by the consent of everyone concerned, he was thrilled by the hope that in the interest not only of Ireland, but of the empire, the Irish question might be put out of the way until the war had ended.

Premier Asquith in Reply, pointed out that the agreement was subject to the approval of and revision by the cabinet.

Two main points, he said, had emerged from the agreement and these had been accepted by the cabinet. The Unionists and home rulers. The Unionists, the premier said, influenced very largely by the attitudes of Mr. Redmond and his friends during the war, had agreed that home rule should be brought into immediate application, while the home rule section should not be brought in without their consent.

Redmond Unreconciled. Mr. Redmond repudiated the interpretation placed upon the agreement by Premier Asquith, and asked whether it was not a fact that on Saturday last, War Secretary Lloyd George and Herbert L. Saeul, the home secretary, had sent him a message saying that a decision had been reached by the government on the two points mentioned.

Stands by Agreement. "Saturday last Mr. Lloyd George and the home secretary informed me that the cabinet had decided to insert in the bill two provisions, one for the permanent exclusion of the Ulster counties and another cutting out of the bill the agreement for the retention of the Irish members at Westminster during the transitional period. This declaration was declared to be final.

"I stand by every word in the agreement, but I will not agree to any new proposals which would mean an absolute and disgraceful breach of faith on my part towards my supporters in Ireland. I warn the government that if they introduce a bill on the lines of 1914, I will oppose it at every stage."

Mr. Redmond concluded by declaring that while the attitude of himself and his friends was unalterable, the Nationalists hold themselves free to exercise their individual judgment in criticising the government's vacillation, not only in the conduct of domestic affairs, but in the conduct of the war.

bers would resist and attempt to force the bill with these modifications. This had enough fighting. We will have other great questions to deal with, and it is inconceivable that we should resume our old quarrels.

Continuing, Mr. Lloyd George said that if that was the intention to introduce a bill bringing home rule into immediate operation under any conditions and he regarded it as deeply and thought that it was a disaster. He still believed a high spirited and courageous race could only be governed with their consent, and the government certainly would not force this proposal on them.

Carson's Stand. Sir Edward Carson said that when he went into negotiations he thought only of what was best to help win the war, compared with which home rule or anything else mattered little. He would have never touched the negotiations except as war measure, and had made it perfectly clear from the beginning that the six Ulster counties must be struck definitely out of the home rule act. He was not asking, however, for permanent exclusion, Sir Edward added. No settlement made by this parliament could be permanent. He stood by the agreement announced by the prime minister that the Ulster counties could not be included without a bill.

An Eloquent Appeal. Concluding Sir Edward appealed to the Nationalists not to lose all the good that had come out of the negotiations.

"It would not be a bad day for this country, for Ireland and for the war, if Mr. Redmond and myself should shake hands on the floor of this house (Loud cheering). But if that is to be done there can be no idea of coercion of Ulster. Let Ulster be struck out of the bill. Then go on, whether if you can be won by good government. If the hopes of a settlement in Ulster and the rest of Ireland are shattered now, it would be a calamity, had enough fighting. We will have other great questions to deal with, and it is inconceivable that we should resume our old quarrels. "Fortunately for England and for Ireland the partition plot is dead and damned. Millions of the Irish race will rejoice with all their hearts tomorrow over its death."
