CONDUCTS CHOIR FOR LAST TIME

Dr. A. S. Vogt, Retiring Conductor of Mendelssohn Choir. Tendered Farewell.

WELCOME NEW LEADER

Dr. H. A. Fricker Speaks in High Terms of Society's Achievements.

Dr. Augustus Stephen Vogt took his pr. Augustus Stephen Vogt took his real farewell of the great choral aggregation which he has made famous on two continents, at the Toronto Conservatory of Music last night. And for the last time he conducted the Mendelssohn Choir thru four numbers in that masterly manner that has won warm encomiums for the choir in the numerous musical Choir thru four numbers in that masterly manner that has won warm encomiums for the choir in the numerous musical centres it has visited. The occasion was the formal presentation of a three-quarter life-size oil painting of Dr. Vogt on behalf of the members of the choir. Accompanying the potrait was an illuminated address, which complimented their late leader on his magnificent achievement in establishing Toronto as the temple of choral art on the continent. It also expressed the hope that in the years to come Canada would be enriched thru his labors.

An opportunity was presented to Dr. Herbert Austin Fricker, the new leader of the Mendelssohn Choir, to meet the members, and he said he sincerely hoped to make himself worthy of their great reputation. In order to familiarize himself with the choir, he conducted it thru several numbers in spirited fashion, and later discussed the program for the winter with the members.

The chair was taken by G. H. Parkes, president of the society, and the presentation was formally made by Sir Edmund Walker, honorary president, who expressed the sincere regret of the organization in losing the services of Dr. Vogt. Dr. Vogt, he said, was alone responsible for the high pitch of musical perfection attained by the aggregation and the citizens should feel indebted to him. His work had established Toronto as one of the foremost musical centres on the continent.

It was announced that sewer pipes are now being laid on Stanley and Victor avenues.

Dr. Vogt's Reply.

Dr. Vogt, in reply, spoke of his association with the society, which would ever remain among his fondest recollections, and hoped the organization would reach still greater heights of success. When he had decided to sever his connection with the choir his first thought was where could the leader be found who would carry on the work. If the proper man were found the future of the choir was assured. He congratulated the society in securing the services of Dr. Fricker, and he wondered if the citizens would realize the great work which the new leader would perform for them. It had been his pleasure and privilege to meet Dr. Fricker in Leeds and to listen to the work of his pupils, and he had no fear for the destiny of the Mendelssohn Choir.

Choir.

If the people of Toronto knew what cities like Detroit, Buffalo and Cincinnati were doing in the development of music it would surprise them, and they ought to be aroused to their responsibility. He sincerely hoped that the concerts of the choir would have the same support as in the past. Toronto was to be congratulated in having obtained Dr. Fricker to carry on the work of the organization. He was one of the foremost choral leaders in the world.

Introducing Dr. Fricker to the members, Dr. Vogt said: "I hope your compaction with the choir will be as pleasant as mine."

Responsibility Increased.

'I feel I come before you as a kind of promissory note." said Dr. Fricker, "and I hope it will bear as much interest as you expect." He said he considered it a great honor to be the head of such a great organization, He had thought much of it when in England, and he had thought more of it since coming to Canada. While it was delightful for him to be connected with the choir, he was conscious that it slso increased his responsibility.

Dr. Fricker said he had been looking forward to the time when he would be able to hear the choir, to feel a new sensation and learn and realize what Dr. Yogt had done for music. The association between the choir and its late leader was what he expected. He felf proud of having the opportunity to follow him, and he would leave the future to take care of

Jury Recommends Inspection of Steering Gears and Brakes of Motors

At 12.20 this morning the jury sitting at the inquest conducted in the morgue ast night on the body of John W. Sills resented Coroner J. C. Evans with a verdict charging John Phillopi with crimverdict charging John Phillopi with criminal negligence. Sills was struck by a motor car driven by Phillopi at the corner of Symington avenue and Bloor street on the morning of Sept. 2f, and so badly injured that he died twelve hours after having been admitted to the Western Hospital. The jurymen also were of the opinion that more rigid laws should be put into effect regarding the inspection of the brakes and steering gears of motor cars.

of the brakes and steering gears of motor cars.

Sills' home is at 433 Berestord avenue, and at the time of the accident he was riding his bicycle east on Bloor street to work.

When he was within 50 feet of Symington avenue the motor car driven by Phillopi swerved from the north side of the road and struck Sills. Sills' skull was fractured and he was injured internally. Phillopi was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence at the accident and his story was that he had swerved onto the wrong side of the road to avoid hitting a boy who was riding in the same direction as he was driving his car. Arthur Visick gave expert evidence on behalf of the crown as to the condition of the brakes of the motor car. He said that the brakes were not in very good order and that judging by evidence given by witnesses to the effect that Phillopi was going at a fast rate of speed it would be impossible to bring the car to a stop within a short distance. The hand brake his examination ghowed to be worthless and in his opinion the steering gear was defective.

While the average consumer in our cities is giving vent to his resentment against the middlemen in general and against the big middlemen (the packing and distributing corporations, for example) in particular, he overlooks two vital facts. First, that he himself is probably a middleman of the least ssential and less efficient sort and dependent for his living upon the continuance of an effete economic condition; and, second, that any government as it is true the food controller cannot prices or wipe out the middlenman or 'sell goods at cost."

It would seem to be in the mediate interests of Toronto householders to direct that 14 cents be the maximum retail price for cod steaks. in Toronto. But indirectly such an order would ruin the very man it aimed to benefit. For such legislation directed against one class of trade could not consistently be denied against other classes of trade. It would force out of the business not only the ordinary dealers in cod steaks, but to be consistent, all small fish dealers. The small milk dealer must then be asked the large milk concerns—a thing he cannot do owing to his smaller volume of turnover. The ordinary butcher would then have to give way to the bakery to the large bread factory, and

"The first duty of the food controller, let me remind you, is not to cut prices, eliminate middlemen, 'sell goods at cost,' or correct in a day economic evils which an unthrifty and luxurious use has allowed, even encouraged, to grow up, but to protect Canada, the Canadian troops and our share of the war of the empire against disaster thru famine—I use the word without any exaggeration. I can do this only by decreasing consumption, and, as far as possible, increasing production. Against the other price-raising factors, against competitive buying by foreign governments, against unequal distribution of resources, against speculatforeign governments, against unequal distribution of resources, against speculations, greedy middlemen and wasters, the public will be vigilantly protected. But, with wages better than ever and unemployment unknown, with the purchasing power of a dollar in the food market very little lower than its purchasing power in the labor market, the middle and well-to-do classes of Canadians still buying luxuries, really cheap food would for the present be a disastrous invitation to these classes—the really poor need no exhortation from me to urge economy—.
