OF TRACK, FIELD
AND ARENA AT HOME AND ABROADANNUAL MATCH ON LOCAL GOLF
LINKSStetson Field Day Was Well Observed This Year—Andrew Jack Wins Stetson Cup.

Stetson field day, the great event of the golfing season, drew a fine field of players to the links yesterday and with a large attendance at the clubhouse when the prize was awarded, the day proved a most enjoyable one in every particular. The weather was glorious—as it always is on Stetson day—and while the mixed foursomes were being played in the afternoon, Andrew Jack and E. A. Smith, the winners in the Stetson cup matches, played the final. Mr. Jack won handsomely, his second round in 36 bogeys for five holes. He won the club championship two weeks ago and yesterday's victory gives him the Stetson cup also, so he holds both of the club's big honors this year and is champion two years in succession.

At 5 o'clock tea and cake were served and half an hour later the presentation of the trophies captured the past season took place in the spacious club house which was thronged with fashionably attired ladies and gentlemen, the various red dresses blending artistically with the brilliant hues of the handsomely decorated reception room. Miss Mabel Thomson, the ladies' champion of Canada, was present and received general congratulations. (George McAvity, president of the club, presented the gentlemen's championship medal to Andrew Jack and the ladies' championship medal to Miss Helen Sydney Smith. The remainder of the prizes were presented by J. U. Thomas, Mrs. Geo. McAvity and Vice-President Magee. In the reception room Mrs. George McAvity and Mrs. Franklin Stetson received the guests. The committee of ladies supervising the arrangements were: Mrs. Herbert Schofield, Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. Geo. McAvity, Mrs. E. A. Smith, Mrs. Helen Smith and Mrs. J. D. Hazen. The winners of the year who received their prizes were as follows:

Ladies' Championship Medal—Miss Helen Sydney Smith.
Gentlemen's Championship Medal—Andrew Jack.

Thompson Cup—Miss Mabel Robertson.
Riley Cup—Miss Frances Stetson.
Barker Cup—Miss Mabel Robertson.

3rd—Mrs. Silas Alward.
4th—Miss Sarah Hare.

Mixed Foursomes—Gents' Prizes.
1st—J. R. Harrison.
2nd—Dr. Magee.
3rd—P. A. Peters.
4th—Jas. L. McAvity.

The Thompson cup was donated by Miss Mabel Thomson. The championship medals are the property of the winners for a year, who retain the accompanying pins, permanent. Vice-President Magee complimented the victors on their superb playing and thanked the ladies for their indispensable co-operation to make the club such a grand success. He hoped Mr. Jack would not have a monopoly of the men's prizes next year. At half-past six the gathering dispersed, and returned to the city with the exception of several dyed-in-the-wool enthusiasts who went out on the links for another round.

GOSSIP OF THE RING

Al Kaufman will meet the winner of the Kid McCoy-Jim Stewart contest.

Leach Cross and Willie Fitzgerald have been matched to meet for a third battle October 27.

Owen Moran and Groves have been matched to meet in a six-round bout at Biddeford, Me., October 23.

Arthur Cote and Young Donahue are matched to meet in a six-round bout at Biddeford, Me., October 23.

Larry Connolly, the South Boston welterweight, turned down an offer to meet Mike Russell, the Philadelphia boxer.

George Murray and Tommy Rawson will meet in one of the preliminaries at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night.

Al Kaufman may be seen at the Armory A. A. in the near future. Jim Pendegast has been mentioned as his opponent.

Marvin Hart will arrive in Boston tomorrow to prepare for his bout with Jack (Twins) Sullivan next Tuesday night.

Matty Baldwin had a pretty close call in his bout with Kid Sullivan, the Washington boxer, according to the majority of the reports.

A San Francisco promoter has offered Jack Blackburn, the Philadelphia boxer, a chance to meet Jim Flynn, the Pueblo heavyweight.

The meeting between Matty Baldwin and Jim Driscoll, scheduled for October 28, has been postponed to November 5. Driscoll is training at Tuckahoe, N. Y.

Stanley Ketchel says that he will meet Sam Langford if he defeats Billy Euphrates in the next battle. Promoter Coffroth has Ketchel's signature to a set of articles for the bout.

Kid McCoy's chance will come tonight when he faces Jim Stewart, the New York heavyweight, in a six-round bout. McCoy will draw a lot of the old-time followers of the game to see him work his famous corker punch.

The general opinion is that the Indiana Hoosier will have to get the punch over early in the contest in order to be returned a winner.

"It's hard to lose your friends," remarked the man who was down and out. "Hard" asserted the man who was on the high tide of prosperity. "It's impossible." Philadelphia Record.

HIS FACE ON LABEL;
M'AUILLIFFE SUES

Once Famous Boxer Refuses to be a Cigar Sign.

New York, Oct. 15.—"Jack" McAuilliffe, once lightweight champion of the world, and later man of the world, politician and horse owner, objects to being advertised as the patron and sponsor of a five-cent cigar. He has begun suit against Joseph Brothers, the manufacturers of the "Three Champion" cigars, upon which appears an embossed and highly colored label portraying John L. Sullivan, John Dempsey and John McAuilliffe, asking $5,000 damages in consequence of their alleged failure to comply with his request that his name and picture be removed from the label.

This is how Mr. McAuilliffe describes in his complaint the punishment administered to him:

"Greatly damaged and has suffered great anxiety of mind, humiliation and mortification, and has been exposed to ridicule and contempt and otherwise greatly injured."

Mr. Kristeller, of the firm of Watson & Kristeller, No. 100 William street, counsel for Mr. McAuilliffe, laid emphasis upon the fact that their client, who is now a prosperous stock broker, objected particularly to the fact that his name and portrait were used to adorn the box of a five-cent cigar, when he has always been the premier of his class.

Harvard's new dean of medical faculty is only 32 years old.

But Dr. H. A. Christian has won Reputation as Investigator and Hospital Practitioner.

Boston, Oct. 16.—The Harvard overhauls have confirmed the election of Henry A. Christian, M.D., as dean of the medical faculty. The office of dean has been vacant for more than a year, the last incumbent of the office having been Dr. W. L. Richardson.

Dr. Christian is only thirty-two years old. He is a graduate of Randolph Macon College, Virginia, and of the Johns Hopkins University, where he received his first medical training, and graduated in 1906. His pathological studies continued at the Harvard Medical School, from which he received the degree of A.M. in 1908. He has filled the position of instructor, assistant professor and professor of the last appointment being in succession to Dr. R. H. Pitt as Hersey professor of the theory and practice of physics.

Despite his age, his productivity as an investigator and his appointments at the Massachusetts General Hospital, the City Hospital and finally the General Hospital, which he is physician in charge, have equipped him for his new duties at Harvard.

His appointment is taken to mean that the policy of the Harvard Medical School will be to lay stress on the close relation between the physical and biological sciences and the clinical practice of medicine.

FOOTBALL FACTS

Fumbling is still Harvard's greatest weakness, but the coaches are working hard to eradicate it.

Carlton Apollonio, full back on last year's Harvard varsity, is living in Warren, O., and is coaching the Warren high school eleven.

Sprague, who is trying for the Harvard backfield, is one of the best kickers of the year. In yesterday's practice he was getting away spirals of upward of 80 yards.

There is no let up in the Harvard scrimmage practice after it is once under way. During the time the men are on the field they are worked much harder than in a game.

Fred Murphy will have a chance to show his real worth as a quarter-back in the West Point game Saturday. If he makes good, he is pretty sure to be in the Princeton battle in that position.

Williams will be placed at a marked disadvantage in the Dartmouth game by a lack of capable substitutes. With a first string of men in the game, Williams' chances would be very good, indeed.

West Point has taken advantage of the Carleton game last Saturday, stayed on the side lines wrapped up in a blanket and watched the rest of the struggle.

West Point has taken advantage of the Carleton game last Saturday, stayed on the side lines wrapped up in a blanket and watched the rest of the struggle.

Penn's ineligible are coming into line at a great rate. Judging from the expeditious manner in which the Quaker candidates make up conditions, brain work must be their long suit when they really get started.

Harvard's on-side kick has not gone exactly well in practice. The trouble seems to be that it is kicked off at too much of an angle to the line in the first place, and is not long enough in the second. A slight change in direction and a little longer kick would help.

LEWISTON MARE WON

At the racing meet at the Topham county fair at Brunswick, Me., on Wednesday, Brownstone, the Lewiston bay mare won the 2:10 trot or pace quite handily in consecutive heats.

The classes were 2:15, 2:22, 2:28 and 2:35, and all were keenly contested. Six heats were necessary to decide a victor in the 2:25, the best time in that race being 2:24.

The summary of the 2:15 was: 2:18 Class, Trot and Pace; Paces $250. Brownstone, b. m. (Hayden) ..... 1 1 1 Queen Inez, br. m. (Burrill) ..... 2 4 2 Prairie Queen, b. m. (Dickey) ..... 4 2 3 Nancy S., br. m. (Bowen) ..... 3 3 4 Time—2:19, 2:16, 2:17.

In New York Oct. 12, Miss Geraldine O'Day, daughter of the late Daniel O'Day, of Standard Oil fame, died at the age of nineteen. She had a number of friends in New Brunswick, made on visits to relatives in Rosethy. The funeral took place on Wednesday morning.

WRESTLERS MAY MEET IN ST. JOHN

George Nedif and John Graham
may Meet in a Wrestling
Match in the Near Future.

George Nedif, an Assyrian wrestler now a fireman on board the Calvin Austin, has been recently saying he could throw anybody on board the steamer. There was also on the steamer John Graham, who belongs to this city and at one time resided on the Hickey road. Graham accepted the Assyrian's bold def and defeated him in a well-contested go, winning the first two falls out of three.

Young Graham has been in the United States navy for about four years and is a muscular young chap. In the above match Chas. McKenna and F. McGilivray were referees. Both men now want to have another match and John T. Nixon, of Manchester, N. H., says he is willing to invest $500 on Nedif. On the other hand, F. Coffron is also willing to back Graham.

The young Canadian, from match to match in St. John, Portland or Boston. It is quite probable that a match will be arranged in the near future to take place here.

George Nedif, the Assyrian, it will be remembered gave exhibitions here at a local theatre. Nedif tears two packs of playing cards in two, lifts an 85-pound dumb-bell with one finger, lifts two boys on a table with his teeth, and drives a sharp pointed steel spike three inches into wood with his hand. He is willing to bet $100 that nobody can duplicate his feats in their entirety.

Both Graham and Nedif are now employed on board the steamer Calvin Austin and the bout between them would be a good drawing card.

FOOTBALL ON SATURDAY

The match between the Marshalls and Algonquins on Saturday for the city football championship and Bullock trophy, is creating a lot of interest among followers of the rugby game here. The teams have been conditioning themselves for this struggle and each club is equally certain of victory.

Both the Greeks and Indians had opportunity to play away from home on Saturday but they have decided it better to begin the series.

The Marshalls' manager has announced that he is exerting every effort to have Dr. Malcolm, John Malcolm and George Stubbs reinstated and he has reason to believe that the M. P. A. A. will straighten the matter out so that the Greeks will be able to play the three men on Saturday.

Should this not come about, however, they will have to be dropped as the Algonquins have declined to play against them while under suspension.

Both teams will make some slight changes in their line-ups the personnel of which will be announced tomorrow.

The boys' and girls' branches of the Natural History Society will unite for the last outing of the season to be held tomorrow, leaving the museum at 10 o'clock. The outing will take the form of a basket picnic, and all junior members are invited to attend.

MRS. LANGTRY WON
BIG STAKE ON TRACK

Newmarket, England, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Langtry is once more in funds. Her horse, Yentol, won the Cigarette stakes, 2 1/4 miles, for three-year-olds and upward, on the Newmarket track. Pure Gem was the favorite.

The betting was 100 to 6 against Yentol and 7 to 2 against Pure Gem and Mrs. Langtry plunged heavily on her horse, backing him bravely at every opportunity.

In the coincidence that the actress won the same stakes in 1897 with her Australian-bred horse, Merman, and that on that occasion she also reaped a fortune of between $100,000 and $200,000 at just about the same odds, 100 to 7.

In the 1897 race Tol Sloan rode James H. Keene's St. Cloud. The Prince of Wales (now Edward VII.) escorted Mrs. Langtry to the field.

The crowd cheered equally the her appearance and Mrs. Langtry, who was at that time at the height of her beauty and success.

It was not until 1892 that Mrs. Langtry's colors, turquoise and fawn hoops and turquois cap, were noticeable on English race courses. Her initiation for the sport was encouraged by Abington Baird, who died in America in the early nineties, when touring with Charles Mitchell, the pugilist. Baird gave Mrs. Langtry, Milford, which became the nucleus of her stable. Later, she purchased Nobelman, Carrick and Pride of the Sea from Lord Calhoun, for which she paid high prices, but none of which had any great success.

It was in 1896 that her stable, Regal Lodge, began to succeed. During that year she purchased Merman. In 1900 Merman, with Tod Sloan up, won for "Mrs. Jersey" (Mrs. Langtry) the Gold Cup at Ascot, value 4,000 sovereigns, with 3,000 sovereigns in specie in addition.

Among other good horses, she acquires has raced with success, were Friar Tuck and Captive Pet.

Although still popularly known as Mrs. Langtry, the famous actress is really Mrs. Hugo de Bathe. She married a young English army officer of that name after she had obtained a divorce in California from Edward Langtry, the son of an Irish shipping merchant and a man of great wealth. She was at one time reported engaged to "Freddie" Gebhard.

Her name, Nefni rowna, a type eqd m.

ROSE JOINS IRISH-AMERICANS.

Ralph Rose, the champion shot putter, the Bill Robins, the Boston quarter-miler, who was one of the competitors in the famous 400-meter run at the Olympic sports, have joined the Irish-American Athletic Club of New York and will represent the winged foot in their respective events in the future.

Senator A. H. Comeau, of Meteghan, N. S., who arrived in the city on the steamer Prince Rupert yesterday, reports that Yarmouth and Digby Counties will give the Liberal candidates an overwhelming majority, the opposition not being considered seriously in view of the excellent representation of Messrs. B. B. Law and A. J. S. Copp.

THE ISLE OF PINES.
A BEAUTY SPOT
By E. H. JENKINSON

It is a trite saying that the Americans are developing into a nation of globe trotters, and are becoming far more familiar with the scenic attractions of the old world than with the beauties of their own country. Thus many a person who has sailed Alpine heights or revelled in the beauties of the Rhine, may dwell in absolute ignorance of the sublime magnificence of the Yosemite and the Yellowstone, or the splendour of Niagara.

It is a small wonder, therefore, that right at our very doors lies one of the most famous beauty spots of the world, concerning which the general public has very meagre knowledge, indeed. The Isle of Pines, while not one of Uncle Sam's possessions, is at least under his protector during the present administration of affairs in Cuba, and is entitled to more attention on the part of the American people than it has received.

POCKET EDITION OF THE TROPICS.

Size is not one of the claims to distinction. As a matter of fact, it is no larger than the average county in the States. It is about 20 miles wide by 40 miles long, and comprises some 800,000 acres, all told. To the man who is accustomed to the broad sweeps of country afforded by the Panhandle or the plains of Wyoming, it might appear to be merely a pocket edition of the tropics, but a closer examination would reveal the fact that it is, indeed, a jewel with a superb setting.

DISCOVERED BY COLUMBUS.

History tells us that the Isle of Pines was discovered by Columbus in 1494, having been christened "Evangelist Island" by that intrepid navigator. Its present name, "Isle de Pines" or "Isle of Pines," is of later origin; so called, it is said, by reason of the large number of beautiful pine trees that are native to the island, this being unusual for a semi-tropical country.

A strip of salt water and a marsh divided the island into two parts. The lower section, containing some 200,000 acres, abounds in mahogany, ebony and other precious woods, while the upper section, some 600,000 acres, affords in its mountains, hills and valleys rare vistas of scenic beauty, even rivaling the Bahamas. The mountains and hills are covered with forests, which include the state-royal palm and magnificent pines, the latter ranging from 60 to 100 feet in height. In addition to these are great masses of shrubbery, affording a riot of color and luxuriance such as may be found only in a tropical or semi-tropical country. Flowers of rare beauty and fragrance grow in boundless profusion and form a veritable carpet of richest coloring. The trees are filled with birds of the most brilliant plumage, adding beauty to the scene, and forming a picture which appeals with peculiar force to the lover of nature.

SPRINGS AND STREAMS.

Hundreds of sparkling streams, fed by apparently inexhaustible springs, pour forth their clear waters from mountain and hillside. Many of these waters are credited with medicinal properties, and have been made use of on this account since the days of Spanish possession. The famous Weyer spring is so named for the reason that this well-known general made regular pilgrimages to it in order to obtain relief from an ailment of long standing. And while giving these streams also yield vast stores of fish and afford the disciples of Isaac Walton an opportunity to ply the rod and reel to the heart's content.

While the gospel of good roads is being preached in this country with only indifferent success, it may not be amiss to call attention to the fact that down in the Isle of Pines it is not only preached, but put in practice. The government has constructed about 50 miles of calzadas, or government roads, which will compare favorably with the average city boulevards, and the work is going steadily forward. An appropriation of $250,000 has been made by the Cuban government for road building, sanitation and public buildings since the Magoon administration was inaugurated, and it is expected that an additional appropriation of $100,000 will be made in the next budget.

These roads, which connect the two more important towns and are tapped by intersecting roads reaching to all parts of the island, appeal alike to the bicycle rider, the horseman and the automobilist. They are in themselves an element of beauty as well as utility, and have contributed no small part toward the favorable impression made on visitors.

The diversity of island scenery found in valleys, on hill and mountain side has a counterpart in the variety of fruit that may be grown within a small area. In Government garden in the City of Santa Fe, for instance, may be found 47 different kinds of fruit, all growing and ripening to perfection, affording a continuous fruiting season of 12 months in the year. In other nearby gardens may be found rare plants transplanted from Jamaica, the Bahamas and other tropical and semi-tropical countries to adorn the grounds of the well-to-do residents of this little island and, incidentally, to charm the eye of the casual visitor and impress him with the salubrious climate of the place. Among the trees used for ornamental purposes may be mentioned the Spanish Laurel. It grows to an immense size, one specimen which adorns the public park at Santa Fe measuring 110 feet in diameter. Not a few of the American residents have undertaken to rehabilitate the rich old Spanish mansions, one of which is the winter home of Thomas Keenan, a wealthy Pittsburg business man. This mansion is located on the side of a mountain near a rich quarry of the finest onyx. Others have built modern American homes. Among this latter class is W. C. Schultz, a Fond du Lac (Wis.) business man, who has lived on the island for seven years, and who built the first American residence to be erected in the City of Santa Fe.

CLIMATE IS IDEAL.

All visitors to the Isle of Pines agree that its climate is ideal. Tempered daily by the trade winds, heaven's choicest gift to the tropics, the extremes of both heat and cold are avoided and frost is unknown. This makes it a winter paradise, but the island is really seen at its best during the months of April, May and June. At that time the tree and plant life take on new beauties and the panorama of color reaches its climax.

One of the peculiarities of the island is its apparent freedom from storms of a violent character. While Cuba has suffered from time to time from hurricanes and cyclones the little island, only 40 miles away, has been practically immune from them. This, it is believed, is due to the fact that it is protected on three sides by Cuba and is afforded still further protection by numerous keys.

TWO GOOD TOWNS.

There are two good towns on the island. One is the City of Santa Fe, with an elevation of 400 feet above sea level, and having its port at Jucaro. Then there is Nueva Gerona on the other side of the island, the two towns being 12 miles apart and connected by a beautiful calzada, which forms an ideal drive. The Isle of Pines affords a fine pleasure ground for those who enjoy hunting and fishing. While there is no large game on the island, an abundance of quail, wild pigeon, ducks and sand hill cranes make good shooting. The rivers abound in fish, most of these being of the "gamey sort," while lobsters, too, are found. The many clusters and chains of small islands surrounding the coast make it one of the most delightful places for yachting. Lovara of this truly royal sport may spend the winter in comfort, sailing about the island, fishing and incidentally engaging in that most enticing sport of tortoiseshell hunting.

Though the American population of the Isle of Pines was confined to a dozen or so people no longer ago than 1901, it now numbers about 2,000, and the social life of it is not being neglected. There are church societies and schools, while at Santa Fe the Hibiscus Club, an organization with a membership of a score or more of ladies, meets regularly and follows out lines of work not far different from those taken up by women's clubs in the States.

The men on the island—well, here is what Richard Harding Davis, the well-known novelist, has to say of them after visiting the island: "The men I met—and I went all over the island—were genuine settlers. They were men who had sold their farms in the States and had come to the Isle of Pines to make a new home, and were busy as bees in making it."

These men are as fine representatives of the American of modest means as you will find in any part of our country. From every part of it they have come, but chiefly from Iowa and Wisconsin.
