Everybody loves the great out-doors, the birds, the wild flowers, the trees—and wants to know about them.

The whole wonderful world of nature, with its fascinating stories of wild life—animals that puzzle us; big fish of the sea and river; bees and wasps; things that creep and crawl; the winter sleep of animals. All are beautifully illustrated, and told in

The Book of Knowledge Each story an adventure; each picture an impression unforgettable. Its joyous invitation rings out to the children, "Come on and let us see the world and explore its magic kingdoms!"—It is odd to think that the sponge we use in the bath was once alive and breathing oxygen like a fish, and that the chalk used on the blackboard at school was once a living insect.

One of the boys has taken the leadership of an ambulance corps from the help he received from the First-Aid lessons. MRS. A. E. RICE, Collingwood, Ontario.
