London, April 25—According to the Daily Express, a startling development has taken place in the search for the supposed Bacon-Shakespeare secret which the Duke of Beaufort and Dr. Orville W. Owen of Detroit are conducting in the bed of the river Wye at Chepstow. This startling development is the discovery, 80 yards from the scene of the excavations, of a cache which may possibly be the key to the mystery of the Shakespeare plays. The Duke of Beaufort's agent, H. Pierce Gordon, says that the spot at which the cache was found was indicated with astounding clearness in a series of New York papers which the explorers have obtained. These readings, it is stated, are of an extraordinary character, but Dr. Owen is reluctant to publish them until he has made a further examination of the cache.

Iron Master Not Backing Trust Company To End BEFORE GRAND JURY

Today's Developments in The Dynamite Conspiracy Case

WOMAN APPEARS Mrs. Ingersoll of San Francisco to be Asked to Identify McNamara as 'Bryce'—McMonigal Laughs as he Speaks of Dynamiting

(Canadian Press) New York, April 25—Andrew Carnegie testified yesterday before the grand jury as to his relations with the now defunct Carnegie Trust Company, which adopted his name as its title, but with which he has no connection aside from financial assistance rendered when the institution found itself in difficulties and appealed to him for aid.

In the collapse of the institution, it is said that vast sums of money which Mr. Carnegie loaned it have been tied up and he believed that during the hour and ten minutes in which he was before the grand jury late yesterday afternoon, he related some details of these loans and was asked to what extent he had promised further aid.

He was questioned in connection with the printed, but unconfirmed statements that state banking department officials had testified to close the trust company when they first learned of the impairment of its capital, because of an understanding that Mr. Carnegie would see the institution safely through, as a matter of personal sentiment. It is understood that Mr. Carnegie's testimony was in contradiction of the rumor that he had made any such promise.

Witness for Joseph G. Robin, who stands self convicted of grand larceny which started the failure of the string of banks, including the Carnegie Trust Company, was in consultation with District Attorney Whitman today arguing in favor of clemency for Robin who is to appear for sentence next Thursday. Robin's counsel said that if his client were allowed his freedom on a suspended sentence he believed he would rehabilitate several of the banks which he had helped to wreck, and thereby save the money of depositors.
