Chattel Mortgage Suit

On Wednesday, at the court house, Winnipeg, Justice Bala, heard an application in Bert and vs. Canadian Rubber Co. On Jan. 5, Jas. James Lamonte, who carried on a boot and shoe store at 481 Main street, gave a chattel mortgage to the Canadian Rubber Co., on the whole of his stock to secure $8,184. On Feb. 20, the company entered into possession and advertised a sale of the stock for March 4. On Feb. 20 Lamonte made an assignment to Bertrand. On Feb. 28 the sheriff seized the stock under execution in a suit of Clark vs. Lamonte.

Bertrand contends that, when the Rubber Co. took the chattel mortgage they knew Lamonte was insolvent and it amounted to a fraudulent preference. The statement of claims was then filed asking the court for an injunction to restrain the Canadian Rubber Co. from selling or liquidating the stock comprised in their mortgage. An interim injunction was granted by Judge Kellam on March 6.

On the matter coming on for argument an adjournment was made for a week to allow an affidavit to be made by Lamonte to be filed, and for his cross-examination on the same, but if the parties are ready to proceed before that, it will be brought on for argument.
