without under-sleeves. The cuffs are oddly shaped and attractive, and the blouse altogether is a most satisfactory one. It will be found equally well adapted to the gown and to the separate waist. This one is made of messaline, with trimming portions of allover lace, piping and buttons of velvet.

The blouse is made in one piece, and is closed at the back. It is arranged over a yoke and the edges are stitched to position. The cuffs are joined to the sleeve edges and the under-sleeves are sewed into place beneath these cuffs. When the collar is used, it is joined to the neck edge.
