Gured Eczema Like Magic

buffered for Years-Tried All Kinds of Treatment—Surprised at Results From Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can soon tell when people are enthusiastic about medical treatment by the language they use. After experimenting with all sorts of oint-ments in a vain effort to obtain relief and cure, the writer of this letter was stonished at the quick and satisfactory results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"It worked like magic," she writes. Indeed, it is surprising the healing that is often effected in a single night by this great ointment. The stinging and itching are relieved at once, and cure is only a matter of time and patient treatment.

Mrs. Clements, 13 Strange street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have suffered from eczema for years, and after using all kinds of ointments, at last tried Dr. Chase's Ointment. worked like magic and proved a Godsend to me. I would advise anyone suffering from eczema to try one box and be convinced." 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates Co. Limited, Toronto.

will be made to publish all interesting letters received. The large amount of correspondence which is sent us has, hitherto, made it impossible for every letter to appear in print, and, in future, letters received from subscribers will receive first consideration. A friend of the magazine, offering a kindly criticism, writes that the Correspondence column has at times an air of monotony, as one writer after another follows the same phraseology. The Uplifting of Mankind

Sask., July 26, 1913. Dear Editor:—I have been a reader of your valuable magazine for some years, and must congratulate you on the successful progress of this publication, which appears to improve with each issue. In a recent number one of

E invite readers to make use of but who after being brought under the these columns, and an effort gentle influence of these columns, and an effort gentle influence of womankind have started on life's journey in a different manner altogether, after their convalescence. I think the profession of a nurse is a noble thing, as here we find women who are devoting the best part of their lives to alleviate the sufferings of others, and it is their careful untiring attention which wins the admiration of these men -one can find the same applies to our civil hospitals. I must admit that all our nurses cannot have this same influence, as some are of a different nature, and look upon their calling as a hard stern duty to perform for their livelihood; and again we find some of their patients who have not got it in them to appreciate the kindness bestowed upon

Now, we will go a step further; one will often see in the police courts of the older countries cases where men are charged with cruelty to their wives, where very often at the last moment the wife will plead for her erring husband, and is often too willing to forgive him for his harsh treatment towards her. Now, this is one of the things it is almost impossible for mankind to fathom, especially as your numerous correspondents mentioned these cases usually originate from the a subject which greatly appealed to my | poorer classes, whose homes are mostly mind, so that I cannot refrain from in the slums of our big cities, and who writing a few lines on the same subject. "The uplifting of mankind by good and true women." Having travelled and true women." Having travelled in various countries I have had such cases brought under my notice in various will now endeavor to quote a few instances where one will find such

If the readers of the W.H.M. can bring to their imagination the scenes of a battlefield after a hard fought battle, the awful carnage of men and animals, and go in among the silent dead, one cannot but admire with reverence their courage and noble sacrifice, in which they have given their lives for their country's cause. But it is to the wounded to which I wish to draw your attention—one will hear prayers from this one, and curses from another close by. The doctors and ambulance men are attending to the immediate needs of these men, after which the ambulance comes along with its attendants, and picks them up to convey them to the field or permanent hospitals as the case may be according to the location of the field of battle. After their admittance where they can be attended to in a proper manner, they are made as comfortable as their circumstances will allow. It is here where one can find what the good influence of womankind can make in a man's after life in many cases. The hospital with its clean surroundings is like a haven of rest to these men after their weary journeyings through the country, and the quiet gentle nurses attending to them give them a different view of life. I have seen men who before entering one of these places were what one might term "hard cases," cases it is much the same. A young man probably have been brought up in squalor and uncomfortable surroundings from childhood. One will again see ladies of gentle birth going about the slums, doing deeds of kindness, and helping those who are sick and in distress, going in and out of places where it is not safe for a single policeman to pass along after dark. Even the hardened criminal and other law breakers look upon these quiet women as angels of mercy, and they go about wherever they will unmolested. In fact there have been cases where one man has fought another for passing some rude remark when one of these ladies has been passing—probably she has done some kind act in the home of one of the men.

Again, we will travel a little further and see the lassies of the Salvation Army wending their way amongst the worst class of mankind, doing little deeds of kindness, here and there speaking a kind word to one, and helping those who cannot help themselves. These little seeds they sow often bear fruit in after years. We will see a drunken man turned out of a saloon, helpless; one of these lassies comes along and helps him to the shelter or hall, cares for him, and in some instances we will find this is the turning point of his life. Probably this is the first time he has had any one to take any interest in his daily life. We will also take our soldiers and sailors institutes, where there are usually some good earnest women working for a good cause; who have been the means of leading many a young man back to the straight path, and have helped him to make a success of his after life, and in individual
