Washington's Watel.

The Christian Watchman relates the following striking anecdote of Washington in illustration of the practical good sense which he manifested in everything. The incident speaks volumes upon the character of the Father of His Country: "His personal friend, Governor Morris, was about going to Europe, and Washington, along with several letters of introduction, gave him his charge, 'to buy him at. Paris a flat gold watch, not the watch of a fool or of a man who desires to make a show, but of which the interior construction shall be extremely well cared for and the exterior air very simple.' What a mind of wisdom do these words suggest about men as well as watches, 'the interior well cared for and the exterior air very simple!' Boys, remember Washington's watch and be just like it yourselves!"

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure dearness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Caterrh, which is northing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

The SAVING REVELATION

By Virginia Leila Wentz

Copyright, 1905, by Virginia Latie Wents

The day had been bard, bright and cold. Out in Central park there was the jangle of sleighbells in the airpeople, for the most part, making for home, because the strong wind which had suddenly swept up the city streets was now driving a dizzy herd of snowflakes before it.

Women sitting in their sleighs, under the full stare of the setting sun, did not feel their rugs and furs one whit too heavy. Down in the city's narrow streets and wind swept tenements the poor drew their shawls and coat collars higher round gray, pinched Helena Christy had to hold her toque on with both hands. Her cheeks and lips were as red as June roses. Some chiffon ribbons blew out from under her furs and flapped across her com panion's face. They had the faint scent of some flower or other. Whatever it was, it was the scent he loved best in the world.

But if either the woman or the per ame awakened any sentiment in him the expression of the Hon. Kelsie Siddons did not show it. His handsome, manly face wore the aspect of stern restraint habitual to him.

As he leaned against the sleigh cushlons and beheld the diminishing perspective of electric light pricking itself out down the snowy drive, caught sight of the blue mounted police on their mettlesome steeds and recognized familiar faces in the long procession of sleighs and carriages rolling northward, he was conscious of only one thing-he had set out on this drive with the fixed purpose of asking the woman beside him to become his wife. And her home lay Just at the lower end of the park.

He was a man who never went back on his fixed purposes.

As they were turning out of the park on Fifty-ninth street Helena was say-ng: "The woman who is werth while never undervalues the offer of marriage from any man. Be he much or little, it is the greatest compliment he can pay her. Coming from you, my friend, such a compliment is the more to be valued. But I cannot marry you."

The man did not answer at once.

Neither did the expression of his face seem to change. He tucked the lap robe around her a little more securely.
"Do you know," he remarked when he had finished with the fur robe, "I'd like to treepass a little further some time and ask permission to discuss the matter with you?" They were pulling up in front of the big white stone apartment house where she lived.

"As I said," came back Helena's voice lightly as she undid his work of robe tucking. 'In asking me to marry you you paid me a great compliment. In exchange, I dare say, I owe you permission to indulge your hobby for argument and discussion. Come in now, won't you, and have some tea with me? I warn you no amount of argument can profit either of us; but still, come."

Within, behind heavily curtained windows, in sharp contrast to the biting cold without, were sweet warmth, seft rugs, draped screens, shaded lamps, all the dainty plenishings of a modern boudoir. In the fast growing dusk the fire-light flashed on the little silver kettle beginning to steam at the spout; on the Dresden and old Wercester ware on the ebony tea table; on the woman who had drawn a low cushioned chair close

"The situation is like this," the man was saying in rather much the same

The woman smiled openly. "Does the prosecution here close its defense?" Her father also had been a judge. "Sugar and cream? Yes? Well, here!" She deftly poured out the fragrant denk.

As the man reached for his cup he As the man reached for his cup he looked at her a trifle perplexed.

"Are you offended?" he asked. "I've made an offer of marriage in a perfectly businesslike way, having heard you offen declare that a marriage contract is like any other contract and should be entered into only when both parties are aware of what they are doing and are rid of glamour."

argument by saying that she has de termined to become an old maid!"
The Hon. Keisie Siddons was leaning forward, his strong, muscular hands clasped loosely before him, a whimsical smile on his lips.

"Ob, you will never die an old maid!
I will answer for that!" The smile vanished. He resumed his stolid manner. "But your refusal of me is final, I take it?"

inquired, with a touch of defiance which comported ill with the tunultuous beating of her heart and a most annoying feeling of tremulo her lips.

The man rose and went to the window. Far off, across the park, arose the big hotels on the plaza, their lofty outlines seen obscurely through the snowdrift. The lights of swiftly mov-ing sleighs and carriages down below glimmered faintly, and above all and through all trembled the unearthly voice that is never slient, though it may speak in various moods—the voice that molds into itself the cry of human joy, the wall of human sorrow, the roar and crush and rush of the million mindless things that man has made to serve less things that man has made to serve his ends—the voice of the great city.

"I think," he said at last, and his voice seemed to Helena to sound far away, "that I forgot to mention one thing in my proposal. I should have told you, perhaps, that I love you, that I've loved you since the day when we first met, that I'd rather have your love than the power of a king or the love than the power of a king or the wealth of a Croesus, that I should count it fine and wonderful beyond all imagining—a moment to die for if I read in your eyes that you, foo, loved me. Not wishing to been beggar of love, I've waited all these years be in a position to offer you the things which I was bold enough to mention as rendering me eligible for your hand."

His voice had become provokingly low and husky. Now he turned to her almost fiercely:

"You who are so collected and calm, what can you know of love and pas-sion? Now I realize that I've tolled all these years in vain—no, not wholly vainly, for I'm going to kiss you once—here, now—if it means the worst!"

He caught her to him and rained kisses upon her—her lips, her eyes, her brow. When he released her it was with the full consciousness that he had committed as unforgivable wrong. He stepped backward until there lay between them a broad strip of fire lit rug.

But the woman held out her arms to him, and the lashes of her eyes

"Sweetheart," she whispered as she crossed her slim hands behind his dark head and drew it down to her level, "why didn't you tell me that you loved me at first? That was the saving revelation!"

There is no doubt that at one period every one could move the "pinna," or external ear, at will. The muscles for the purpose are found in man, as in the horse and the donkey, although disuse has caused them to become inoperative. The Australian aborigines, the Papuans, and other savages, whose acuteness of hearing excels ours, can all, speaking generally control the move speaking generally, control the move-ments of the plana completely. So can certain peculiarly constituted individuals among civilized races, although where these occur they are usually ex-hibited as "freaks" at shows and the

A Queer Express. Not many years ago, on the high-roads about Wittenberg, in Germany travelers frequently met an old woman trudging slowly along, pushing before her a light wheelbarrow loaded with bundles and parcels. The old woman was at least sixty, but she was so was at least sixty, but she was so cheerful and uncomplaining that the people had no hesitation in employing her. She had many knickknacks and parcels to carry to and from the city, into which three or four times a week she pushed her barrow, which folks called the "Wittenberg express." This plucky old woman walked with her express wheelbarrow at least ten miles each trip, and her earnings, a small fee for each parcel, served to support her. each frip, and her earnings, a small fee for each parcel, served to support herself and her two invalid daughters, who could do only a little sewing. The old woman would allow no one to pity her. She liked the work, she said, and was only sorry that as she grew older she could not make such frequent trips, for her earnings were helping herself and her children.—St. Nicholas.

Red Rose Tea

Is entirely free from that bitter, herby taste which is so often complained of in other Teas.

It has what might be called a fruity taste, a rich, ripe flavor that is very pleasant to the palate.

If you try a package you are likely to be another one of the many who advertise Red Rose Tea by telling their friends how good it is.

Regular Irregularities.

In the days when Lord Castlereagh was plundering Ireland he once re-roached himself aloud for never having tried to remedy the damp and marshy state of the Phoenix Park in Dublin.

Said an Irishman standing by:-Said an Irishman standing by:—
"Faix, it's because your Excellency has been too much engaged in draining the rest of the kingdom."

Alas! emigration has done that to even more purpose than British exactions in the bad old times.

A strong lass from a cabin having gone to England, made her appearance in a very short time, so the wife of her mother's landlond said to her:—
"Why. Biddy. I thought you were going to service."

"Ah! I can't be always rubbing and scrubbing and polishing. Ah! what charming than were their mothers.

Irishmen make the bravest soldiers in the world. The sense of fun is more irrepressible than ever. The one thing lacking is a certain aptitude for making the most thrifty use of life, and perhaps it is the absence of this which causes the Irish to be so dearly loved, and gives their beautiful land an indescribable and unique charm—Home

THE WATCHWORD OF WOMEN.

Modesty is woman's watchword.
Whatever threatens her delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason majay a woman permits diseases of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of unpleasant questionings, offensive examinations, and obnoxious local treatments, which some physicians find necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women whe have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter, have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to true modesty. Any sick woman may write to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence; all letters being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential, and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long halled as "as God send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well.
