

Make His Home Coming a Splendid Surprise

War arouses curious emotions. We don't cheer very much now when any of our boys start for "points east," and when the 125th and the 215th bade farewell, how quiet and subdued we were.

Who knows—perhaps even then we sensed the gravity of the task ahead -

But sometime—grant that it may be soon—all who are left of them—Brantford's own sons, Brantford's own brothers, Brantford's own husbands and Brantford's own father's will come Home.

And on that Glorious Day, we want every man of them to feel that he really has come Home.

How Can You
Cheer When the Boys Come Home
If You Have
Not Helped Take Care of Their Dependents!

We want him to find wife and children—mothers and sisters—all who have been dependent upon him—as proud, as happy, as contented and as prosperous, yes, even MORE PROSPEROUS than they were on the day he went away.

We, the citizens of Brantford promised him that it should be so—and we may be proud, immeasurably proud, of the fact that so far we have kept our promise.

The one hundred and fifty thousand dollars that our citizens will subscribe within the next four days is for the redemption of Brantford's promise to take care of the dependents of our men who are facing our foe on the battle line. What is our duty as citizens?
