Lieut.-Colonel Allison H. Borden, Commanding Officer of New Highland Brigade.

(Presbyterian Witness.)
 We are glad to see the announcement that a Highland Brigade is to be raised in Nova Scotia, with Lieut.-Colonel Borden of the 85th battalion as the commanding officer. There are two features of this new movement which we believe will commend it to the young men of this province. In the first place, a Highland brigade would undoubtedly appeal more strongly than any other sort of unit to the section of our population which is descended from Highland stock, and it is from these that a large proportion of the recruits for this brigade will no doubt be drawn. Highland regiments are famous in the history of our Empire, and there is a certain amount of prestige which attaches to the name itself which will prove a factor in popularizing the new brigade. But a more important feature and one which, we believe, will prove a powerful influence in drawing recruits to the Highland brigade is the personnel of the commanding officers, especially the fact that the popular commander of the 85th is to be the chief officer of the new brigade. The personality of an officer has more perhaps than anything else to do with the popularity of a particular regiment or unit. There have always been officers in the British Army of such high reputation and attractive personality that men considered it an honor and a coveted privilege to serve unprominent among them these, under their command; and der them. What would not the British Tommy do and dare for men like the late Lord Roberts—"Bobs," as they affectionately called him—or "Kitchener of Khartum"? Of course we have no such veterans, of world-wide reputation as these great soldiers, in our new Canadian army. But we have men who even since the beginning of the present war, have won the confidence and affection of the men in the Maritime Provinces, is the commander of the 85th Highlanders.

 Colonel Borden is not only an efficient officer, he is also a Christian gentleman, whose moral influence over his men is well known. He is soldierly in his bearing, kind and courteous to all under his command—just such a personality as attracts and inspires young men and we believe his name would be one of the most powerful factors in a recruiting campaign. We believe the organization in charge of the recruiting arrangements for the Nova Scotia Brigade have a powerful incentive to place before young men in offering them an opportunity to serve their King and Country under the leadership of Colonel Borden.

Within those busy minds of ours all sorts of fancies play hide and seek with our more serious selves. The baser passions are always battling with our purer thoughts and in the strange hodge podge it is not surprising that we do not always recognize which is in the ascendant.

We question often the sincerity of others when in reality, our own motives may seriously be questioned. We try to appear pleased when chagrin is really the dominant feeling deep within us; and we are placid and calm externally when a very volcano is raging within.

The French Government has placed 100,000 francs at the disposition of the French Minister at Christiania for the aid of the sufferers from the fire at Bergen.
