Churchill's Naval Policy.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day.

It looks as though Churchill will have to rely upon the Unionist support to carry out his policy concerning Germany's comprehensive naval programme. He admits in fact though not in words the principle of two British keels to every new German keel. The Radical section and Ministerial press are expressing unflinching hostility; the Radicals and Laborites are also working every possible influence against Churchill's policy. The Pall Mall Gazette says: "Our anxieties for the future are little relieved and if we mistake not these anxieties are shared by Churchill himself. Unless the big programme is again brought forward next year and pressed rapidly to completion we shall in the spring of 1915 in ratio have 3 ships to 2 of the next strongest power, and our absolute supremacy will have departed and we shall be unable to grapple with the emergency however urgent in any distant part of the world without weakening to a dangerous extent our defence and home seas. The Mother Country will shrink from no sacrifice in warding off this perilous threat to our imperial existence. She will use her resources to the last, but if imperial unity stands for more than a mere phrase the time has come for the daughter States to range themselves firmly by her side. A hint from them will do more than ought else to show our rivals the futility of their endeavor to wrest the trident from our fist, and will be cheap in the long run whatever it cost."

The following telegram was received from Boston Wednesday by Rev. Mr. Hewitt the Anglican pastor of Petty Hr: "My brother John was lost overboard from the 'Muriel' on February 4th. Clara Chafe, the signer of the message is a daughter of Mrs. Chafe who was a resident in Boston some time. John Chafe the deceased, was a fine able young fellow who only left his home at Petty Hr. last fall and went fishing out of Boston. It is thought he was washed overboard from the vessel. The first of the weekly entertainments given by the British Society Club was held in the Club rooms last night and an enjoyable two hours was spent. The chair was taken by Mr. J. M. Lawrence, V.P., and a large number of members and visitors were present. Mr. W. H. Goodland, the President of the Society, read a most interesting paper on "Traditional Beliefs and Legends," which kept his hearers interested from start to finish. The paper was illustrated by numerous stories of folklore, which showed very great research. Songs and recitations were contributed by Messrs. F. Bussey and W. Tucker, which were well received, and at the close interesting speeches were made by Mr. J. W. Lawrence and W. H. Hynes. A smoker will be held on next Thursday night.

OBITUARY.

Yesterday many dear friends were apprised of the death of Mary Grant, wife of James Grant, and daughter of William St. John, an old-time victualer of St. John's West. The deceased lady carried the respect and love of the very many with whom she came in contact. Her kindness and hospitality did not confine itself to any person or creed, but, like a stone-thrown ripple in the water embraced everything within its radius. She represented a type of charity not often met with in these days and which, alas, is becoming rarer every year. Goldsmith's Village Clergyman, with his long-remembered guest, seems to have been her ideal and on her crest might well be written these words: "It is more blessed to give than receive."—R. I.P.—P. C. B.

Light, Warmth and Food.

These three words embrace the most urgent necessities of life, and it is an extraordinary thing that in each case our thoughts turn to Gas; this after all is but natural. We want Light, gas gives us the best, cheapest and healthiest artificial light known. Again, we want Warmth, and the gas fire is at hand to give it in its best form; and, lastly, we must have Food, and here the gas cooker never fails us. All this is absolutely true, as we have shown over and over again. If, however, any of our customers are in the least doubtful on any of these points, we cordially invite them to consult us. In the meantime, our advice is to get good burners and buy makes of well-known makes, to use modern gas stoves and cookers, and, above all, to keep your gas appliances (whether old or new) in good order, for in this lies the true secret of efficiency and complete satisfaction.

A New Champion

Los Angeles, Feb. 22.—A new featherweight champion was proclaimed here to-day when Johnny Kilbane, of Cleveland, Ohio, clearly out-fought, out-gamed and outslugged Abe Attell, the hitherto invincible champion. Kilbane's victory was clear-cut and decisive, and came as a surprise, as the fight began with odds of 10 to 4 on Attell, and little Kilbane money in sight. Johnny had the better of all the rounds, with the possible exception of two. He left the ring with one mark over his head. Attell was badly bruised. Nine thousand people witnessed the fight.

Kilbane brought blood from Attell's mouth in the second round. A right to Attell's eye nearly closed it.

In round three they clinched, and Kilbane complained to the referee that Attell bent his arm. In the next clinch Attell was warned for "heeling." By the fifth round Attell's eye was swollen and nearly closed, and Kilbane kept pecking at it. Attell fought the fight in the seventh, but in the eighth Kilbane went after him and started the blood flowing again. The champion clinched, and was hissed for holding and butting. With the fight half over the Cleveland had a good lead on points and seemed much fresher.

In round eleven Attell lead for the ribs and landed his left low, for which he was warned by the referee. Attell kept talking throughout the bout, and in round 13 exclaimed to his opponent, "You knocked River out, did you not?" "Well, come on and make it two." Just as Attell said "two," Kilbane landed a vicious left to the jaw, which ended Attell's remarks.

In round fifteen Attell showed a burst of his old time speed by getting out of a bad hole, but an instant later Kilbane put two lefts to the sore eye.

As they clinched a spectator yelled to Attell that his face was greasy. "Well, it's coming out of me, I'm a Jew," smilingly retorted the champion.

At the opening of the 16th round Referee Eytton grabbed Attell and motioned Kilbane to his corner. Taking a towel the referee rubbed the grease from Attell's body. Head to head Kilbane rained blow after blow on Attell's body. As they clinched, Attell butted Kilbane over the eye, making him bleed profusely. The spectators jumped to their feet and began hissing Attell and Referee Eytton.

Both rushed and fought furiously in the 17th. Attell complained of Kilbane's holding, but was himself warned not to use his head again. Kilbane clearly outboxed the champion and continued to do so in the remaining rounds, with Attell on the defensive. Referee Eytton promptly awarded the verdict to the Cleveland man. It was a popular decision.

The Coal Strike

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day.

After the session yesterday of the joint conference of representatives of Government, owners miners adjourned till this morning. The Miners' Executive gave out the resolutions which were adopted prior to the opening of conference and later presented by the Delegates to the Ministers at the joint session. These resolutions in effect state the miners will sanction district negotiations for settlement of rates for peace workers other than coal getters, when owners have conceded minimum rates provided for in schedule drawn up by Miners' Federation with 5 shillings as irreducible minimum for men, 2 shillings for boys. The resolutions indicate that a contrary view was widely held. The miners still insist that the settlement of the strike must be national in scope. This one miner's delegate frankly admitted, "Leaves no ghost of a chance for immediate settlement." Meantime there are indications that English colliers who are in a position to make favorable terms with owners are growing restive. At Sunderland the miners of the neighboring districts met yesterday and protested against continuance of strike. They agreed that Durham lodges should urge members to return to work if a truce was not effected by end of week. In Lanarkshire, Scotland, two pits have been re-opened with non-union miners work.

Suicide Case.

Further particulars are to hand of the rash act, under sad circumstances, which occurred at Sound Island, Placentia, on February 15th, as previously referred to in the Telegram, in which Samuel Bailey, a 48 year old resident of that place committed suicide by jumping overboard. Bailey's mind was deranged for three months previous to his death and his strange actions warranted the closest attention and watching of his friends. On the day in question Bailey reached a serious stage of insanity and was being watched by four men. In some unaccountable way he got clear of his guards and immediately ran down to the nearest wharf and jumped overboard. The four men chased him to the pier and succeeded in reaching him in the water, but were unsuccessful in saving him as when he was brought ashore life was extinct. The water at this place was very shallow and it is supposed that he struck in his descent and was killed or drowned. The friends and relatives of the unfortunate man, who was well known at Sound Island, are still grief-stricken over the affair.

Died in Woods.

The Minister of Justice Department to-day received the following message from Noah Simms, J.P. of St. Anthony: "Alfred Rice, of Grand-lier, left his home Wednesday to cut firewood. Not returning at night a search party went out from this place to-day at 3 p.m. His body was found six miles from his own house. Suspected to have died from heart failure."
