LONDON, Sept. 17. The great national strike, as it was described this morning by one of the Trades Union leaders, threatens the United Kingdom. Sympathetic strikes have already occurred in Liverpool and Birmingham, railways and docks being tied up. At Liverpool seven great depots were idle this morning, and others are likely soon to be closed for want of traffic. Peace seems to be a long way off in Ireland, as all attempts to settle the Dublin trouble, which was the direct cause of the stoppage of work at Liverpool and Birmingham, have failed. The difficulty of getting provisions into the Irish capital to-day has become so great, that it is believed the markets there have closed their doors.

Fisherman Writes

Editor The Evening Telegram.
Dear Mr. Editor—The old saying "Tory times are hard times" is very true and Morris and his gang of hoodlums have spared no pains to have this policy carried out. People living on the southern end of Quidi Vidi have always suffered inconvenience and hardships, especially in winter time, for the want of a road. We asked the Government time and again to attend to this necessity but our prayer was not listened to. To make this road would cost about $50,000. Morris could not see his way clear to grant this trifling sum but he was clear to grant requests involving thousands of dollars to land grabbers and others. Morris does not like the idea of catering to Quidi Vidi because he knows full well were all staunch Liberals. Out of the entire settlement of Quidi Vidi there are, to be accurate, only four Tories. By the way, these four get their paws greased. They get money to improve the roads near their homes. The time is now approaching for an election. Let us hope that the big swelled head chief will be driven out of power. Change, Mr. Editor, will be a god send to the fishermen. The Tory gang have been taking the blood and substance of the fishermen of this country long enough. The tidal wave is strongly against the Tory clique. The man who was once a clean government is Sir Robert Bond, the greatest statesman the country ever saw and who will be returned to power with the biggest majority on record in November next. Howley and Higgins have started canvassing this district. So far they got the cold shoulder every place they visited. Watch the ring of enthusiasm, ye Tories when Messrs. Kent and his colleagues, the three old loyal supporters of the Liberal flag come round.

With thanks for the use of so much of your space, Mr. Editor,
I am, sincerely yours,
FISHERMAN.

Quidi Vidi, Sept. 17th, 1913.

Yesterday's Wedding

At St. Andrew's Church, yesterday afternoon, the wedding of Miss Anabella Ross, daughter of Mr. Hector Ross, Superintendent of construction work with the Reid Mill, Co., and Mr. John Boyd Baird, son of the late John Baird, was solemnized. The Rev. J. S. Sutherland, M.A., officiating. The bride, who was charmingly attired, carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and was attended by Miss Kitty Stott and Miss Helen Brown, who wore beautiful costume of pale blue with hats to match. The ceremony was supported by his cousin, Mr. James Baird, Jr. Following the groom a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents Victoria Street, after which the bridal party joined the outgoing express for Canada to spend the honeymoon. After touring Montreal, Toronto and Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Baird will proceed to Georgia, where they will make their future home. The bride was a well known young lady in St. John's, a promoter of church work to which she gave much of her musical talent. Numerous and valuable presents were received by the bride. Last night a dance was held at "Donovan's" in honor of the event. The Telegram joins in the congratulations extended.

Nfldr. Found Dead.

Word was received this morning by the Canada Cement Co., that Dan White, who shipped at Montreal aboard the S.S. John Duncan of the Company's transport line, and is understood to have relatives here, was found dead in the hold yesterday at Erie, Pa., between which port and Montreal the John Duncan is now plying. White is supposed to have fallen from the deck to the bottom of the hold, although no person witnessed the accident. He is understood to have come from Newfoundland. The Canada Cement Co. would like to hear from relatives in regard to the disposal of the body. White was 24 years old. He shipped as a deck hand.—Montreal Star, Sept. 12th.

Brigade Shoot.

To-day commencing at 2.30, the annual brigade shooting competition for the cup, donated by His Excellency Governor Davidson, will take place at the South Side range, weather permitting. The contest will be confined to the three Brigades—C. L. B., C. C. C. and Highlanders, as the Guards will not be participating. This fact will be regretted when it is remembered that the Guards won the shooting contest for the last four seasons. Much rivalry exists in regard to to-day's shoot and a close contest is looked for. The trophy must be won three years in succession before it becomes the sole property of any one brigade.

The s.s. Hawk sailed yesterday afternoon for Bell Island with a full freight.

Wonders of Modern Surgery.

AN ARTIFICIAL GULLET.

London, August 15.—An interesting part of the proceedings of the Section of Surgery was a demonstration by Mr. Arthur Evans (London) of the case of a woman of 43, who had had the larynx and a large portion of the gullet removed for cancer four years ago. At the present time the patient was breathing through a tracheotomy tube. A rubber tube passed from the back of her mouth through an opening in the neck outside her body to an opening made in the stomach. She was able to chew all kinds of food and swallow, so that food passed into the stomach through this artificial gullet.

The operator was congratulated on all sides on the success of a most daring and ingenious operation. The patient was shown to the section and was seen to be in excellent health.

Removal of a Branch of the Artery. The Section of Surgery discussed a new branch of surgery, "Intra-arterial Surgery."

Sir William MacEwen's contribution to the debate was by far the most interesting and informing of the day. He drew attention to two points in that large subject. In the first place, he wished to demonstrate a patient operated on by him 18 years ago, whose left lung had been removed in its entirety for tubercular disease. The patient had been brought from Glasgow and was seen by the section to be a strong, healthy-looking man whose left side was hollow and fallen in. He was engaged steadily at work. At the time of the operation the right lung was diseased but the removal of the hopelessly diseased lung was followed by improvement in the condition of the remaining lung.

That experience had been found in other four similar cases. In all these cases the chest of the diseased lung had been adherent to the great vein at the root of the neck, and at a late date the vein had been cut. The vein and that piece of lung were removed. In the first case the patient for some days suffered great distress from the "fopping" of his heart to and fro as his position was changed. This symptom was obviated by stitching the pericardium to the front part of the chest wall. Photographs of the five men operated on were shown, as also were photographs of the lungs removed.

An Artificial Kidney.

A demonstration which excited very great interest was that of Professor Abel, of Baltimore. He presented a new and ingenious method of removing substances from the circulating blood, which can hardly fail to be of benefit in the study of some of the most complex problems. By means of a glass tube tied into a main artery of an anaesthetized animal the blood is conducted through numerous celloidin tubes before being returned to the veins through a second glass tube. The celloidin tubes are immersed in saline solution. All diffusible substances circulating in the blood pass through the intervening celloidin tubes, and can be found in the saline solution, where they can be subjected to fractional analysis. In this way Professor Abel has constructed what is practically an artificial kidney. In many instances the working of the excretory organ is more rapid than that of the actual kidney of the animal; 3 per cent. per hour of urilic acid can be removed from the blood. Although primarily the apparatus is of use in the estimation and analysis of the diffusible contents of the blood, it is possible that the principle may ultimately be adopted in the treatment of disease. At the close of the demonstration, which excited the liveliest interest and discussion, Professor Abel was accorded round after round of applause.

Transplantation of the Kidney.

Dr. Ernest Jeger demonstrated a number of specimens to show what had been achieved experimentally in dogs. He had successfully removed a piece of artery and attached in its place a piece of vein taken from the same animal. He had transplanted one kidney of a dog from its abdominal position to the neck, joining the renal artery to the carotid artery, the renal vein to the jugular vein, and the function of that kidney was continued unimpaired.

A Boy's Promise.

The school was out, and down the street
A noisy throng came thronging;
The hue of health, a gladness sweet,
To every face belonging.

Among them strode a little lad,
Who listened to another's sad:
"I can't—I promised mother."

A shout went up, a ringing shout,
Of boisterous derision;
But not one moment left in doubt
That manly, brave decision.

"Go where you please, do what you will,"
He calmly told the other;
"But I shall keep my word, boys, still,
I can't—I promised mother."

Ah! who can doubt the future course
Of one who thus had spoken?
Through manhood's struggle gain and loss,
Could faith like this be broken?

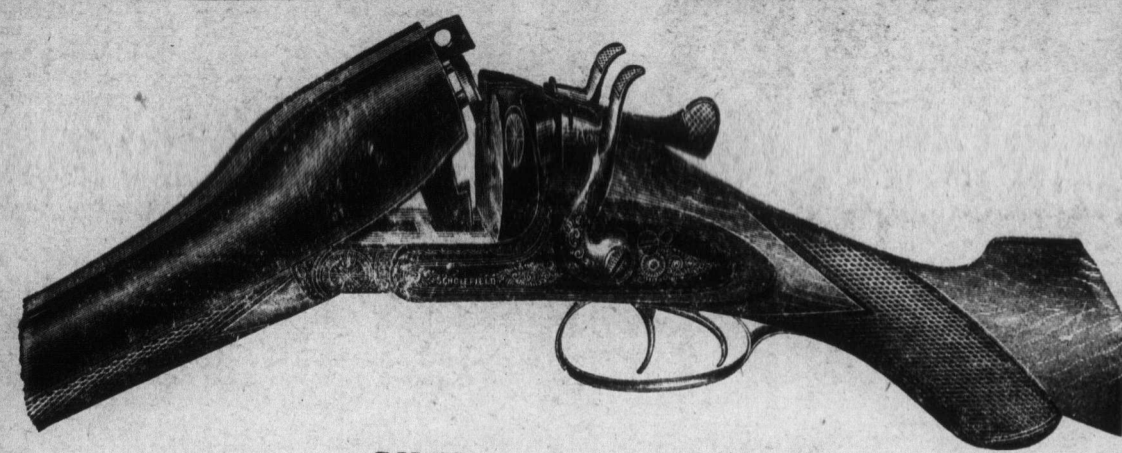

God's blessing on that steadfast will,
Unyielding to another,
That bears all jeers and laughter still,
Because he promised mother.
