Weary Old Father.

When Father eats his supper, and sits him down to read a book by Edith Tupper, or, perhaps, a d v e n t u r e, "Queed," oh, let him sit in quiet until the evening's through, and do not raise a riot over things he ought to do. Too often Weary Father can find at home no peace, his folks raise such a pother, their clamors never cease. It's "Dad, go split some kindling before you have your fun; the little pile is dwindling, and soon there will be none." "Oh, Daddy," says the daughter, "I wish yourself you'd hump, and bring eight tubs of water, and then some, from the pump." "Our Noah's ark is busted," complain the little boys, and Father, sad, disgusted, begins to glue the toys. "The cow is in the garden," shrieks Ma, "and you sit there, so help the Dolly Varden, and do not seem to care!" From suppertime to bedtime the old man's on the go, until his seeling-red time will cause some blood to flow. Some day, beneath the pressure, his brain will seem a blur, and then, from here to Cheshire, he'll strew the earth with fur. His endless worries read him, they come in such a batch, and soon we'll have to send some one's booby hatch.

Twelve New Performers at Rossley's.

The clever tabloid company, twelve in number, open their engagement at the Rossley Theatre to-night, featuring Felix Martin, the famous Irish comedian. Felix Martin was the big hit in "When Bunty Pulls the Strings" at the Apollo Theatre, New York City; also in the Chauncy Olcott Co., and many other big productions. He is funny; the real Irish humor and one of the finest dancers in the vaudeville world to-day; clogs, top boots, soft shoes, Russian Buck and Wing tips and reels, and every kind of dancing. Young Tom Langdon, a good Irish ballad singer; Tommy Levene, the funny Hebrew comedian, and an all round company of artists. To-night they present one of the funniest comedies: "The Battle of Too Soon"; you will laugh. Mr. Rossley has decided to give only one big show each night, so as patrons will get the benefit of a good long programme and a whole night's enjoyment. See the big show. Quantity and quality.

Bloodhound Arrives With Eight Thousand Seals. Crew Refused to Work Because of Insufficient Food. Ship Passed Wreckage Ninety Miles S. E. of Cape Broyle.

The S. S. Bloodhound, Capt. Jesse Winsor, arrived in port from the ice fields at 12.30 a.m. yesterday, having for 8,000 seals, nearly all of which are young harps.

The ship struck the patch on March 19th about 30 miles S. E. of St. Anthony, and in about two days 4,000 were taken, the remainder being picked up in small quantities as the ship worked south.

The Sagona was seen about two weeks ago and the crew then reported her for 12,000. The Diana and Ranger were sighted on Friday last about 70 miles east of this port. Both appeared light. The Kite and Fosgate were not heard from.

Ship Brings Corpses.

The ship brought the body of Lorenzo Bartlett, of Noddy Bay, which was found off Sacred Islands on March 20th. The unfortunate man had gone out sealing in company with six others, and while crossing the ice fell in. He was pulled out by his companions but within half an hour he succumbed, and as they had great difficulty to get along themselves they were obliged to leave the body on the ice, where it was found by a watch of the Bloodhound. At first the body was thought to be that of a man named Pynn, of Ha Ha Bay but upon the ship's arrival the man was identified as that of Bartlett by persons immediately acquainted with him. The remains are now at the morgue.

Crew Complained.

During the trip the crew of the Bloodhound complained of the way they were being fed and wanted to be landed. At 10 o'clock on Wednesday night last 90 of the crew brought their gruffs and ropes to the quarter deck and the next morning informed the Captain that they would work no longer, neither would they let the remainder of the crew work. The result was that only nine men, comprising the officers, engineers and stokers were left to work the ship, and as very little could be done with so small a crew, the captain told the strikers that the ship would have to drift. At 10 a.m. Friday the men agreed to work if the ship was headed for home.

Various stories concerning the shortage of food are told by the men, but the captain claims that the men received the usual supply except that there was some shortage in the allowance of peas and beans.

Steamer Sighted Wreckage.

When the ship was about 90 miles S. E. of Cape Broyle, Capt. Winsor reports passing through a large quantity of wreckage at the edge of the ice floe. The wreckage was first sighted on Saturday morning and consisted of deck sheathing. As the ship continued her course pound boards, flag poles, pieces of timber, a sea-man's chest, a cap, and a bottle tightly corked were seen, and for some distance the ship sighted drift-wood. Weather conditions did not permit an examination of the wreckage which was no doubt from a sealing steamer. The bottle was seen by nearly all the crew, and when they learned of the absence of the Southern Cross they were of the opinion that the bottle contained the story of what brought the wreckage there.

The S. S. Kyle left to-day in search of the wreckage reported by the Bloodhound, and as the bottle is a very small object it is expected that much difficulty will be found in locating it if they succeed in locating it at all. Still the wreckage may be identified, and some further light thrown on what is now only a matter of conjecture.

A word to those who wear "Twenty-five cent Glasses." Do you realize that by so doing, you virtually admit that twenty-five cents is the value you place upon God's greatest gift to you? There is no law to prevent you from injuring your eyes by using such glasses excepting, perhaps, the law of common sense. Of course you don't know why cheap glasses play such havoc with your eyes, and health generally, nor does the man who sells them to you know. An eyesight specialist can tell you, and if you would interest yourself to the extent of asking him to explain, you would never look through a pair of them. Anything more perfect or beautiful than the human eye would be impossible for man to conceive. Then, why, when physical aid is needed to enable it to perform its functions with greater ease, do you use cheap glasses or submit yourself to persons of questionable ability to make a watch of the Bloodhound. For assistance, go to R. H. Trapnell, the Eyesight Specialist who will faithfully examine them and give you none but the best quality glasses if glasses are needed at all. Thousands are ready to testify to the great benefit received at his hands—mar18.eod,tf
