THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA.

The discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, deceased, was one years ago I got the cords of my left of the most useful discoveries ever wrist nearly severed, and was for made by anybody, although very litabout nine months that I had no use the was said about it at the time. It able to appreciate the higher forms of of my hand, and tried other Liniments, was a great event in the history of the also doctors, and was receiving no world, and yet the press of that day benefit. By a persuasion from a thought so little of it that it was buried on an inside page, next to a free

Columbus discovered America in ARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever 1492 or thereabouts, but it was not Perhaps its music in which they since and find it the same as when I his fault. He did not know America from a slab of side pork, and he and his brave crew were agreeably surprised on landing to be greeted by the Metapedia, P.Q. high cheekbone of the American Indian. Columbus did not dream that in a few hundred years that sparsely settled country would contain 100,000,000 people, enjoying the benefits of a protective tariff and the open saloon and buying automobiles and encyclopedias

Greeted by the high cheekbone of the

The first thing Columbus did on his arrival was to plant the Spanish flag on a proud eminence. A little later he found it necessary to plant quite a number of the original inhabitants, who refused to be reconciled to the white brother. The climate did not agree with Columbus, who was troubled with the cone-clutch type of STAFFORD'S PHORATONE COUGH asthma, and he soon returned to

Columbus has never been recognized by llege students who do not know what he died of. This teaches us that fame is a bubble, and a soft soap bub-

We should all be glad that America was discovered when it was, otherwise many of us would not be here to enjoy the blessing of liberty, equality and 25-cent gasolene.

WAR PRICES.

I went to buy dachshund p u i down at the village store. "The war has sent the prices up," the dealer roundly swore. No matter what we buy, forsooth, the price thereof's a shame: and if the dealers speak the truth

WALT MASON the war is all to blame. They've raised the price of baths and shaves, of figtrees and of vines, of cradles, bridal wreaths and graves, of shampoos, shirts and shines. They've raised the price until in vain we try to play the game, and hear the merchant prince explain that war is all to blame. So I'm heroic when I spend my coin for bread and grease, and say I'll do it to the end, before I'll sue for peace. War's horrors cannot daunt my soul, though prices still soar high; so long as I possess a roll, I'll buy, and buy, and buy. And when the fearful strife is done, I'll say to those around, "I weighed too much to wield a gun, by nearly half a pound. But I blew in a goodly sum and thus gave. timely aid, to make the wheels of commerce hum, amid the marts of trade." And all the push will hand me praise, though I am shy of scars; they'll deck my bulging brow with bays, and touch me for cigars.

The young girl with her mind and body stirred by the wiedning deeping demands of physical and emotional life, instinctively recoils from the assumption that she is still a child, with only a child's thoughts and a child's desires. With her mind full of vague formless dreams of life and love, o romance and poetry, she is keenly sen sitive to even a suggestion of ridi cule. Touch her love thoughts and day dreams so lightly, and they curl

And they are slow to spread them selves out for the inspection of these who even unconsciously seemed unsympathetic. Let the girl who seems still a child to her mother, because of unsuspected reticiences, and reserves, which conceal the fact of her budding maidenhood from the eyes of the one who should be most decerning will often reveal those undiscovered aspects of her nature, fully and freely to a comparative stranger.
