George Cadbury.

The Ideal Employer --- No Strikes at Bournville.

"Not for the glory of God but the benefit of the shareholders" was the blatantly cynical business slogan of a now famous witness before the Coet of Living Commission when charged with making undue profits.

But subsequent witnesses put him completely in the shade. His profits were admittedly small compared with those of the firms they directed.

In such times it is refreshing to recall the business career and policy of Mr. George Cadbury, chairman of directors of Cadbury Bros., Ltd., of Bournville, England, the world re-nowned cocoa and chocolate man-ufacturers. Certain it is that if all big businesses were conducted on his lines the present strained relations and even bitter antagonism between labor and capital would not be manifest. George Cadbury is now eighty years of age. It is sixty-five years since he entered his father's business. At that time it was steadily losing money owing to the father's zeal for public service to the neglect of his business. At the age of nineteen, in company with his brother Richard, four years his senior, George Cadbury took over the manage-ment of the concern, at that time em-ploying twelve workpeople. At the present time it has a pay roll of $500. I went to school in the old building which formerly housed the concern, but which had been converted into an improvised technical school. It has long since been superseded by a modern palatial structure with up-to-date equipment. Over 30 years ago Mr. Cad-bury's humanitarian spirit led him to transfer his business to Bournville, a pretty suburb of Birmingham.

He felt that healthier conditions could be provided for his staff, though the move was strongly discouraged by his friends. Visitors to the place have seen the beautiful cricket ground, two football fields, open-air swimming baths, recreation rooms and institu-tions for lads and girls. Competition for employment with such a concern is very keen and strikes are unknown.

Years ago Mr. Richard Cadbury died while on a visit to Jerusalem, so that the sole direction has long been in the hands of George Cadbury. A five-min-ute religious service, usually con-ducted by the head of the firm begins each day, and is attended alternately by men and women employes. Religi-ousness, Mr. Carbury belongs to "the Friends," more popularly known as Quakers. For over half a century he has been the moving spirit in the Adult School movement, personally attend-ing every Sunday morning at 7.30 and conducting the proceedings of one of the principal branches in Birmingham. To do this he cycles several miles from his home at Northfield.

For years Mr. Cadbury has been

To-day's Messages.

RAILWAYMEN WIN VICTORY.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. Railway workers scored a complete victory in the House to-day, through the incorporation of their plan for voluntary conciliation of labor disputes in each railroad bill. The House re-jected a plan for compulsory arbitra-tion, including anti-strike provision, and also a plan written into the bill by the House Interstate Commerce Com-mittee, which was described as a mid-dle ground between that adopted and compulsory arbitration.

BUDAPEST EVACUATED.
BUDAPEST, Nov. 14. Rumanian troops began the eva-cuation of Budapest this morning, the National Army holding the bridgeheads as they left. Budapest had been eva-cuated by ten o'clock and the National Army was occupying it.

SCHOONER RAMMED.
PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 14. The British schooner, Annie Conley, was abandoned off this port to-night after her side had been stove in by the steamer Ransom B. Fuller. Captain Thebedeau and his crew of three men were rescued by the Fuller and brought here.

THE BOUNDARY DISPUTE.
OTTAWA, Nov. 14. To the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council will be left the settle-ment of the long dispute as to the precise location of the boundary line between the Dominion of Canada and the territory of Newfoundland on Labrador Peninsula. Upon this question there has been some discus-sion for a number of years, and the controversy has become more acute since the Dominion Parliament ad-ded Ungava to the Province of Que-bec. Newfoundland has been claim-ing that the boundary line strikes the coast considerably further north than the Canadian Government and the Government of Quebec have been willing to concede. It is now announ-ced to the court that the question will be a wide one, reading as follows: "What is the location and definition of the boundary as between Canada and Newfoundland in Labrador Penin-sula, under the statutes orders in council and proclamation."

IMPOSSIBLE.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. The demands of the coal miners for a thirty hour week and a sixty per cent. increase in wages, and in un-derlying position by the operators alike, were declared "impossible," Secretary Wilson in opening to-day the conference called to bring peace to the bituminous fields of the nation, to obtain this peace the Secretary proposed three plans of procedure, declaring that the Washington wage agreement still is legally in force. Mr. Wilson told the operators and miners that the people of the United States were not "shylocks" and do not want to exact "the technical provi-sions of a bond when the conditions under which the bond was made have changed."

A GOOD SPORT.
LONDON, Nov. 14. William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, the American prohibitionist, whose cam-paign in England was rudely inter-rupted Thursday by a band of stud-ents, to-day, as a result of his attitude toward the adventure, is one of the most talked of and popular figures of the day. He commanded the biggest headlines in to-day newspapers and the general verdict of the headline writer was that he was a "good sport."

Mr. Johnson could not have desired a better advertisement than Thurs-day's incident, for his campaign against the liquor traffic and his future public appearances likely will command attention, by reason of the fact that he has announced himself as considering the hazing as a good joke. The students, who marched about him yesterday upset-ting traffic in a goody part of the West End, now propose to tender Mr. Johnson a banquet and of presenting him their tributes of respect. Baron Birkenhead, the Lord Chancellor speaking at a Peace celebration din-ner to-night, referred to the Johnson incident, and said it was profoundly to be regretted that a citizen of the United States should be subjected to such an outrage.

POET WARRIOR DISAPPEARS.
TRIESTE, Nov. 14. A telegram to the Trieste Stock Ex-change announcing the departure of Gabrielle D'Annunzio, says, "Gabrielle D'Annunzio left Trieste last night for an unknown destination in a torpedo boat, followed by other ships. Rizzo was left in command of the city."

PARIS HAS BLIZZARD.
PARIS, Nov. 15. A blizzard struck the Paris region last night when six to ten inches of snow fell, and the storm continued with unabated violence. The central markets are practically deserted and surface tram car and taxi cab ser-vice has been virtually tied up, and trains from the provinces are arriv-ing hours late. Some trains from the north have been stalled altogether, and all overland telegraphic commu-nication with Spain has been inter-rupted.

One often hear- ed it said that peo- ple who have been married a great many years grow to look alike. I think this is true, but why is it? A paragraph in a story I was reading the other day seemed to me to put the reason in a very lucid way, although it was not a story about mar-ried life. On the contrary, it was about the experience of a little old maid who had been in Brussels when the war broke out and who, in trying to get from Brussels to Paris, was left alone on a field where a battle had been raging and where dozens of wounded and dying men lay without care of any sort.

It Changed Her Heart and Her Face. This tremendous experience which she went through, that night, trying to help those men, changed her whole outlook on life. In her own words, "It was like being torn to pieces and put together again dif-ferent."

But to get back to the paragraph that made me understand better why married people sometimes look alike: it was a description of this woman as she looked to a fellow passenger on the ship in which she was finally going back to America.

"She had the colorless makeup of a middle-aged mouse," writes Mrs. Mantagu, "but her expression was amazing. It started and arrested me. All the old lines of the face were set to small ambitions and sor-rid desires, but the look which should have accompanied these lines were clean gone, wiped into something big and still and simple."

Do you see the connection?

The Way Our Faces Are Stamped. "All the old lines were set to small ambitions and sordid desires." That is, the way she had lived, the things she had wanted had set a stamp on her face. And isn't this true of everyone?

We are apt to think of resemblance as consisting of a likeness of
