Sir Robert Bond at Washington.

Sir Robert Bond, Premier of Newfoundland, has arrived in Washington on his mission to reopen reciprocity negotiations with the United States, no doubt on the same lines as the Bond-Blaine treaty of 1890, which the British Government vetoed at Canada's request. Under the terms of that treaty the United States agreed to give free admission to fish and fish products from Newfoundland, in return for which American fishery crews were to be given equal privileges with Newfoundland fishermen in the waters of Newfoundland, in the purchase of bait fishes. Another section of the treaty provided that Newfoundland duties should not exceed 25 cents on a barrel of flour, 1½ cents on a pound of pork, 2½ cents on a pound of bacon, hams, etc., 20 cents on a barrel of Indian meal and peas, 20 cents on a ton of salt and 6 cents a gallon on coal oil. Agricultural implements and machinery, imported by societies, crushing mills for mining purposes, plows, harrows, gas engines, and other machinery, were to be admitted by Newfoundland free of duty. Canada, which was to be excluded from all these privileges, at once entered a protest. The concessions to the United States in the matter of bait fishes would have deprived the Dominion of a powerful lever in the settlement of the North Atlantic fishery question, as American fishermen would be independent of the Canadian bait supply; in addition, the Nova Scotia fishery interests would suffer by the discrimination in favor of their American competitors. The tariff preferences on American imports into Newfoundland would also prejudice Canadian trade with the island. Newfoundland imports more from Canada than from any other country—$2,381,367 in the year ending June 30 last—but the Bond-Blaine treaty would have thrown the advantage to the United States, whose exports to the island are similar to our own. In the correspondence between the Canadian and Imperial authorities on this subject the latter laid down the principle that "no colony would be allowed to enter into a commercial treaty with a foreign country, which would be in any way detrimental to any other colony, and that on receipt of any complaint in that regard the Imperial Government would immediately disallow such a treaty." Apparently Sir Robert Bond received assurances from the British Government, during his visit to England, that no such obstacles would now be placed in the way, presumably because the Joint High Commission, to which Newfoundland was a party, had failed to reach an agreement. Whether Sir Robert Bond will succeed in negotiating another treaty is doubtful, in the United States Senate's present frame of mind. The Senate at its last session rejected all reciprocity overtures, from a fear of opening up the whole tariff question. However, the situation is a strong argument for the incorporation of Newfoundland geographically belongs to the Canadian system; all their interests are mutual and their union would give Canada a stronger hand in dealing commercially with the United States, especially in settling the long disputed fishery question.

Municipal Corruption.

Mr. Bryce in his "American Commonwealth" pointed out that municipal government was the greatest failing of democracy in the United States. Tweed and Tammany are almost outdone by the St. Louis scandal. The revelations show that a number of members of the House of Delegates, a body corresponding to a city council in this country, conspired to put through a corporation franchise for a consideration of $47,500. One of the delegates, who fled the country, came back and turned state's evidence. As a result twelve aldermen are under arrest for want of bail, some are on bonds and others have left the city to escape warrants, but are being pursued. The evidence, it is said, incriminates several St. Louis millionaires, members of the corporation that raised the bribery fund. The prosecuting attorney is threatened with assassination if he persists in doing his duty. The corruptionists were bound by an unholy compact to act in agreement and maintain secrecy under penalty of death, and added blasphemy to their crime by swearing to the oath in the name of the Deity. The franchise, which was for the city lighting, was put through the council, but it was attacked in the courts by public-spirited citizens who have been successful in unmasking this hideous conspiracy. It has been shown that an organized ring existed in the council to levy toll on those seeking civic legislation. The city of Milwaukee presents another sad spectacle of municipal corruption, the mayor and chief of police being exiles and other city officials being under indictment. It is safe to say the average of municipal probity in Canada is much higher than in the United States. One reason for this is that the American cities are more cosmopolitan, and the presence of so many aliens, new to the institutions of the country, lends itself to the machinations of the ward bosses, and weakens what might be termed the civic consciousness. But have we any right to throw stones at our neighbors? Montreal, until the reform element took hold in recent years, was disgraced by its council. A street railway franchise was boobyed through the city council of Toronto. Happily London has never had the same reproach, but occasionally has had to blush for an alderman or two.

A Circus Campaign.

Tom L. Johnson, Democratic candidate for governor in Ohio, is adding to the galaxy of politics by his original mode of canvass. There have been always a good many circus features in political campaigning across the line, but Mr. Johnson has out-barnumed everything on record. Instead of hiring halls he has a portable auditorium in the shape of a huge circus tent, which is moved from place to place by an army of retainers, accompanied by a brass band. The honorable Tom, himself travels most of the time in a red automobile. Describing his meeting at Port Clinton, Ohio, last Thursday night, the Cleveland Plaindealer says:

"The tent was pitched this morning in a spacious cow pasture, from which the cows had previously been temporarily evicted. The cavalcade was on the move from Fremont at night, over rough roads, but met with no mishap. Mayor Johnson and Lottin went to Cleveland on an early train from Fremont, and Mr. Bigelow, candidate for secretary of state, was brought to Port Clinton by Arthur, the mayor's professional chauffeur. The fame of the 'red wagon' has spread throughout the land, and it was greeted with frequent acclamations while on the road today. Mayor Johnson came out from Cleveland on an afternoon train. He was accompanied by Taxman Peter Witt, who is the latest and most novel acquisition of the show. Mr. Johnson announced that he had come back to the show to stay for the rest of the week. Mrs. Johnson will journey with the circus to Oak Harbor and Toledo. William Jennings Bryan will probably join the troupe at Toledo."

The tent is a great advantage in the rural districts, enabling the candidate to address immense gatherings that could not be accommodated in theaters or halls. Johnson is incurring plenty of ridicule from the other party, and has become the butt of the paragraphers, but he is drawing great crowds and creating a furore. The main plank of his platform is the proper taxation of public service corporations, an anomalous position for a man who has made millions out of street railway franchises. His defense is that he had a right to profit under a system of taxation tolerated by the public. He is at present mayor of Cleveland, and seems to have given the city an energetic and efficient administration. If he succeeds in the gubernatorial race, he will be the logical candidate of the Democratic party for president in 1904.

Satirical.

[Washington Star.]

"Did you know," said the young man who tries to pose as a handy volume of information, "that there was a time when it was considered a crime for a man to kiss his wife on Sunday?"

"Indeed," rejoined Miss Cayenne, "and now there are a number of instances in which it would probably be looked on more as a penance?"

The Bridge of Sighs.

THOMAS HOOD.

This familiar poem was written by Thomas Hood about 1830. It and "The Song of the Shirt" are the two poems by which he is best known. He wrote two series of "Whims and Oddities," which appeared in 1826-27, the "Plea of the Midsummer Fairies," the dramatic romance "Lamia," "Tynley Hall," and many exquisite songs and ballads. He had the faculty of blending mirth and pathos in his poetry as in his life his comic and serious being a struggle against poverty and ill-health, which he maintained with cheerful fortitude. He died in London in 1845.

One more unfortunate,
Weary of breath,
Rashly importunate,
Gone to her death!

Take her up tenderly,
Lift her with care;
Fashioned so slenderly,
Young and so fair!

Look at her garments,
Clinging like encumbers;
Whilst the wave constantly
Drips from her clothing;
Take her up instantly,
Loving, not loathing.

Touch her not scornfully,
Think of her mournfully,
Gently and humanly;
Not with the stains of her,
All that remains of her
Now is pure womanly.

Make no deep scrutiny
Into her mutiny
Rash and unfeeling;
Past all dishonor,
Death has left on her
Only the beautiful.

Still for all sips of hers,
One of Eve's family—
Wipe those poor lips of hers,
Oozing so clammyly.

Loop up her tresses,
Escaped from the comb,
Her fair auburn tresses;
Whilst wonderment guesses
Where was her home?

Who was her father?
Who was her mother?
Had she a sister?
Had she a brother?

Or was there a dearer one
Still, and a nearer one
Yet, than all other?

Alas! for the rarity
Of Christian charity
Under the sun!
Oh! it was pitiful!
Near a whole city full,
None she had none.

succeeds, and impresses himself and has his own way?"

The answer is intended for the politicians who wonder their striving and scheming brings failure for all citizens who want to produce an effect in the world.

Tom Johnson succeeds because he actually believes something. He is not drifting with other men's opinions, or shifting around with the wind. He has actual convictions. He has, above all, the enthusiasm, the earnestness, the force based on genuine belief—therefore he is able to move, to interest, to influence his fellow-men.

A Nervous Wreck
Weak and Exhausted.

Could Scarcely Drag Herself
About the House, But Found
New Health and Strength and Gained Eleven Pounds While Using

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

Take the case of Mrs. West, as described in her letter quoted below. "Break was pale, weak and run down in health. Her blood was thin and watery, and her nerves so starved and exhausted that she was prostrated. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured her, and added new, firm flesh to her body to the extent of eleven pounds. You will find her letter interesting."

Mrs. S. W. West, Drayton, Wellington county, Ont., writes: "About ten years ago I got terribly run down, and finally became a victim of nervous prostration. I had no appetite, seeped to lose interest and ambition and could scarcely drag myself about. Hearing of good results from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I used three boxes with great benefit. In a short time I gained eleven pounds, and as I was very thin and weak, I began to use the remedy I was very proud of the increase of weight."

"Then the following spring I became rather poorly, and they again built me up, and gave me such a good appetite that I wanted to eat nearly half the time. I was so leashed with the cure that Nerve Food brought about that I recommended it to others, and they have since obtained the benefits they had obtained from this preparation. You may use this testimony in order that others may learn of the good there is in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

If you have been affected as Mrs. West has, if you are not feeling real strong and well, you will be surprised at the good that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will do you. It puts color in the cheeks, rounds out angular and wasted forms, and brings new hopes, new confidence and new life to take the place of despondency, weakness and disease. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Municipal Ownership.
Manchester is in the transition stage, but will have in the course of a few years 150 miles of electric lines under municipal operation. London has a working balance of £102,361 from its northern and southern tramways, but it is absorbed by interest and sinking fund payments. Huddersfield is the only town having a deficit for working expenses, although Dundee barely balances its account. About 50 new schemes for the municipalization of tramways are now in progress.

RESULTED ONLY IN TALK

The Stone-Mitchell Conference
Effected Nothing.

Operators Expect Crisis to Come This Week—Mother Jones Missing.

Wilkesbarre, Sept. 15.—President Mitchell says Gov. Stone has no propositions to make for a settlement of the strike. The silence of Mr. Mitchell is interpreted to mean that the Harrisburg conference was barren of results. The coal operators say the conference between Gov. Stone and President Mitchell was merely a friendly talk, and that neither party submitted a proposition. The operators think the crisis will come this week.

"MOTHER" JONES MISSING.
Parkersburg, W. Va., Sept. 15.—"Mother" Jones, the coal strike agitator, is lost, and the Parkersburg police have been appealed to by her daughter to locate her. "Mother" Jones has long been an interesting figure in the strikers' circles. She has a vigorous personality, and is known as a fighter to the last ditch. She was recently arrested for contempt of court, but was pardoned, though she asked to be sent to jail.

NO SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT.
Shenandoah, Pa., Sept. 14.—Tomorrow will begin the nineteenth week of the coal strike. The date on which some had predicted that the strike would end has passed, and the hope which was instilled into the people in this locality because of that prediction has been succeeded by a feeling that the controversy is wearing on.

The reiteration by the coal operators during the week that no concessions would be made and the resolutions passed by nearly all the local unions to refuse to work, are renewing their allegiance to their officers and pledging themselves to continue the strike until concessions are granted, show that neither side to the controversy is weakening.

Gen. Gobin, in charge of the State troops encamped in this county, denies that he is preparing to remove the troops at an early date or that he expects an order from the governor to withdraw the troops. He says he does not anticipate an order of that kind until there is a settlement of the strike.

NOTES.
The authorities of Barcelona continue to make many arrests of anarchists, as well as of strikers, who seek to stir up trouble. The street car strike at Ottumwa, Ia., is assuming a serious aspect. The blacksmiths in the employ of the company have struck. The city depends on the street car for its electric power, which may be shut off.
