d, had no impelled by political and in any of its since it will be not now, continued in the without and person that majorities are denjoyed in past, it had decided in the intersof Canada that the people should mounte on the issues on their superson the issues on which his ounce on the issues on which his arty would appeal.

There were four issues which over-shadowed all others. On the fiscal pol-icy he urged that free trade would injure Ontario and Quebec, high protection would injure the prairies, and the Liberals, therefore, believed in the middle course in the matter of tariffs. The ministry proposed, how-ever, to call in an advisory capacity outstanding representatives of the financial, the manufacturing and the agricultural interests, also representatives of the women of Canada, but the government would continue to be onsible for its tariff and taxatic policies, and not shelter itself behind this board, although going to it for advice. This he thought would be of great help without dividing or re-ducing parliament's responsibility on these important questions.

Opposes Monopoly In regard to the railway problem, he believed that the publicly-owned Canadian National Railway should have a fair show, and the privately-owned C. P. R. have fair play. He opposed an absorption of one road by the other, either to make a public or a private monopoly, but steps were to be taken to provide for the elimination of costly and injurious compet ition where it could be done without detriment of the service to the publie. His slogan was, no monopoly on land or sea.

Concerning another problem, that of immigration, a minister had been appointed to give his entire attention to that department. Steps had been taken to co-ordinate the efforts of the government with those of the C.P.R. and Canadian National Railways. Emphasis would be laid on quality more than anything else in connect ion with this line of activity.

The other important issue was that of senate reform, and the prime minister dealt at considerable length on this. He said his government had been faced with a hostile senate throughout the term of the parlia-ment. He outlined the difficulty of reforming the upper house, although his ministry were agreed that it greatly needed reforming. It could only be reformed from within, he

"Who appointed them?" was shout ed by several listeners. "I will come to that," the premier replied.

Waited for Strength He then explained that instead of forcing an appeal to the people when the senate first started to throw out government measures he had waited until time should increase the Liberal strength in the upper chamber. Eight new senators had been appointed on Friday, and two more were to be appointed.

Mr. King said that while he believed in an independent senate on gen eral questions every senator appointed by his government had undertaken to support the policy of the Liberal party on the question of senate re-form, and this policy would, if con-tinued, eventually enable the reformation of the upper house, with the consent of the majority of the senaconsent of the majority of the sena-tors themselves. There was also the calling of an interprovincial confer-ence but the government wanted the end restion of the people on this que ion of senate reform before the conference met. In connection with the senatorial appointments, he an-Pounced that Hon. Charles Murphy, postmaster general, and John Lewis, former acting editor of the Globe, had been made senators.

Nearing a Breakdown

A Condition That Calls for a Reliable Tonic

Many women give so much of their ime to the cares of their household that they neglect their own health. and sometimes reach the verge of a have a goodly heritage. breakdown before they realize that heir health is shattered. Often the heart palpitates violently at slight exertion, the stomach fails to digest food and discomfort follows. The nerves become weak and headaches grow more frequent. The body grows weak and they are always depressed. This condition requires immediate treatment with such a reliable tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which enrich and build up the blood, carrying renewed energy to every part of the body. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a rundown condition is proved by the following statement from Mrs. Alex. McInnes, Bowsman River, Man., who says:—"About a year ago I had a serious illness which left me very anaemic. I was not able to get around to do my work; in fact I could scarcely walk. I was troubled with palpitation of the heart with the least exertion. One day a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they had done her much good. I followed this advice and took the pills for some weeks when I felt as well as ever. I have since been able to attend to all my household duties. The dizziness and palpitation have left me and I bless the day I tried Dr Williams' Pink Pills. They are just the medicine for those who are weak and run-down." You can get these pills from any
