Barbarous Russia.

Dr. Talmege was warmly received by the Russian court and such people as were within his reach, and his impressions of the Russians are very favorable. There is a class—the ruling class—of Russians, cultured, polite, fit associates of the foremost people in Europe. But the vast majority of the people are still very far behind in civilization and Christianity. An American divine, Dr. Dowling, underwent himself in the fall of 1891 by telling his experiences during a recent Russian visit. A contributor to Harper's Magazine was ordered out of the country because he wrote of a high official as "an old wooden-head."

Bankrupt Law Wanted.

It becomes more apparent every day that some radical alterations are needed in our bankruptcy laws, as under the present existing conditions are placed at a serious disadvantage, and trade continues to suffer in consequence. And yet the government has no reason for not amending to legislate upon this all important question, notwithstanding the strong representations that have been laid before the committee at Ottawa by our best of trade showing the urgent necessity of taking prompt steps to remedy the hardships which obtain in dealing with bankrupt estates. Under the present law, or rather absence of law, unscrupulous dealers are enabled to hold over their goods until the creditor is exhausted with the facilities which the present system affords them for getting settlements pretty well on their own terms, and starting again as if nothing had happened. In some of the worst cases, where the creditors demand the full value of their claims, and the time has passed for the settlement in the hope of putting the unscrupulous trader on his feet, the latter simply puts his fingers to his nose and starts again as fresh as a lark under the name of his former name, or those of his friends and his wife's creditors, no matter how badly they may have gone through them. So both as some country debtors, becoming that when they feel inclined to wipe off their indebtedness, they with the collusion of a confederate, simply inform their creditors at a distance that they cannot pay, and then, when they are in a position to pay twenty-five cents on the dollar, more or less; and then, adding insult to injury, request a receipt in full of their indebtedness, and when the creditor has complied to their assertions on other solid facts, and the time has arrived for the application of some drastic measure to check the increase of this disgraceful state of affairs, and unless they are specially put into force honest traders will soon be the mercy of unscrupulous men who seek the gain of trade and commerce, can bleed their creditors at will. We repeat that under the present law, the creditor of Canada as a nation will eventually become adversely affected.

Child's Struggle.

The election riots in Southern Chile are of more significance than those unquieted with political events in that country would appear. They indicate the uncompromising struggle between the powerful conservative, or clerical party on the one side and the liberal factors of the liberals, radicals and Montevistas on the other. For many years in Chile's career as a republic the conservatives, in whose ranks are embraced the clergy, the aristocracy and most of the wealthy classes, held the upper hand in the affairs of State. Gradually, however, they lost their power in politics and with Balmain's election to the Presidency they seemed destined to disappear decidedly a minor part in the government. The revolt against Balmain's, however, largely restored the strength of the conservatives. Members of this party give immense sums of money to overthrow him. When the revolution ended the conservatives fought to regain control of the administration and have been ever since the principal opponents of President Montevista's policy.

The Athletic Treatment.

HOW BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEMS MAY BE REBUILT BY TRAINING.

Perhaps athletes are to be the physicians of the future, for it has become somewhat the fashion for men broken in health through overwork or high living to go to them for treatment. A well-known athlete who takes charge of such cases, treating his patients at a little farm he has owned, describes the regimen in his camp. Tobacco and liquor are prohibited, and a prompt rising at 6 o'clock without an extra wink of sleep is insisted upon. The first day, light calisthenics, both with and without running; then the patients dress in flannel and outer garments that are not too heavy and take a short walk. At 8 o'clock a breakfast of fruit, oatmeal or cracked wheat, with a little milk, eggs, butter or poached, toast or stale bread, and one cup of tea or coffee is served. No greasy food and little water or other liquids are allowed. After breakfast the patients rest for an hour or an hour and a half in the open air, if the weather is fine, or in a room with a good fire, if it is not. The patient is then taken for a walk of three or four miles in the morning, and a horse-back ride, in the afternoon, for a distance of ten or twelve miles, slowly at first and increasing the pace till it becomes a trot, then a run. When too tired to keep up, the pace is moderated until the men are rested, when more rapid movement is begun again. Returning home at noon the men are given a bath, and then a walk of five or six miles in the afternoon, and a horse-back ride, in the morning, for a distance of ten or twelve miles, slowly at first and increasing the pace till it becomes a trot, then a run. Feeling cold milk is the most frequent cause of scours in calves.

As long as they are subsisting on such diet it is warmed up. Some farmers who have had this trouble with their calves, have found that the milk should be warmed up. Good land will be stocked with sheep at the rate of five head per acre of plowed land.

With what stock the land be made to earn more than this way. An excessively fat mutton is not desired, either by the butcher or the customer, and it is often said of such animals that they are "too fat to be sold."
