

"The young are naturally inspired by the record of noble deeds done by those who have gone before them. The first duty of every British subject is to defend his country in time of need, and the man who has a knowledge of what has been accomplished by his forefathers in war will be more prepared to do this well than the man who has been bred in entire ignorance of his national history."

So writes General Lord Wolseley, and surely every man and woman who reads these lines will endorse the sentiment.

To this end we would remark that Miss FitzGibbon's admirable story of the life of her grandfather, LIEUT.-COL. JAMES FITZGIBBON, a hero of the War of 1812-14 and of the Rebellion of 1837, which we last year published under the title of

is one of the best books a Canadian father can put into the hands of his son. There is no false gloss to cover the horrors of war, but in a most interesting way are related the events of those stirring periods of our country's history with which the book deals. The price is ONLY $1.00. We should like to see it in every Sunday-school library

THE STICKIT MINISTER

AND SOME COMMON MEN.

Paper, 50 cents. Cloth, $1.25.

The late Robert Louis Stevenson, in speaking of "The Stickit Minister," said it "affected me strangely, so that I could not read it without a gulp." "The whole book," he wrote a friend, "breathes admirably of the soil. The 'Stickit Minister' and the 'Heather Lintie' are two that come near me particularly. They are drowned in Scotland. They have refreshed me like a visit home."

This is a strong and exceedingly clever story, the scene of which is laid partly in Toronto and partly in Europe. It has a high moral, a strong temperance sentiment, and is a book that can safely be placed on the shelves of Sunday-school libraries.
