

CAPITAL AND LABOUR.

Capital is simply the savings of previous labour and is useful in sustaining present and future labour.

Capital, therefore, is produced by labour. Labour is simply toilome work, which is generally performed under the direction of bosses or task-masters, and is rewarded by drafts on the fruits of previous labour or Capital.

The custodians of Capital may abuse their position and grind the faces of labourers; and, labourers may form trades-unions and organize strikes; but, labour and capital will not quarrel any more than a man will quarrel with his meals.

MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY OF THE CITY OF MONTREAL.

At a meeting of this Company, held on the 26th December, inst., Mr. Charles Garth presiding, it was resolved:

That it is the duty of the Directors of this Company to express, in their own name and in that of the Shareholders, their sincere regret at the loss of their President, Jean Baptiste Beaudry, Esq., who died on the 29th of November last, and to offer at the same time, their most sympathetic condolence to his family;

That the late Mr. Beaudry, one of the founders of this Company and, for nine years, one of its Directors, was also its Vice-President when he succeeded, as President, on the 28th of January, 1876, the late Benjamin Comte, Esq., who died on the 22nd of the same month;

That his affability, his experience, his spirit of order and economy rendered him eminently qualified to fulfil the office, the duties of which he discharged with energy and impartiality;

That his great confidence in the system of mutual insurance, when properly administered, had led him to join the number of those whose energy and devotion made of this Canadian company an institution worthy in all respects of the public confidence;

That the Secretary is charged to present the foregoing resolutions to the family of the regretted President;

At the same meeting, R. A. R. Hubert, Esq., Prothonotary, was elected President for the current year, instead of the late J. B. Beaudry, Esq., and Owen McGarvey Esq., Vice-President, Pierre Lamothé, Esq., N. P. was also elected a director instead of the late J. B. Beaudry, Esq.

CANADIAN ITEMS.

IF ANY of our readers know of the address of Mr. M. Cleary, book agent, they will please forward it to this office.

Mr. THOMAS BARRY, Vice-President of the St. Patrick's Society of Richmond, Que., is in this city, and will accompany the Young Irishmen's Dramatic Company, which leaves this city to-night for Richmond to give an entertainment under the auspices of the above Society.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—In behalf of the orphans of St. Patrick's Asylum I acknowledge, with thanks, having received from the following young men, members of the Prince of Wales' Rifles, their annual drill pay:—Chas. Boyle, W. E. Mullin, Wm. Creamer, Thos. Culbano, B. Conaughton, J. A. McDonnell, J. McNamara, T. McCaffrey, J. Cutler, J. McCrory, —L. W. Leclair, priest.

OTTAWA.—Mr. Martin Battle collector of Inland Revenue for the district of Ottawa is a candidate for Separate School Trustee in Ottawa Ward. Mr. Battle would be a valuable acquisition to the Board and the rate payers will consult their best interests by returning him.

FATHER DUNPHY.—The great love which the late Father Dunphy felt for the Catholic people of Carleton and the ardor with which he entered into anything pertaining to their spiritual or temporal welfare, often manifested itself during the time he was amongst them, and the people appreciated his exertions in their behalf, being always willing to co-operate with him in his laudable efforts, and happy to accede to any request he made of them. Notably this was seen five years ago, when, at his invitation in St. Patrick's Hall, two hundred knelt and received the total abstinence pledge. This number increased until the Society numbered eight hundred on the register. Father Dunphy's successor, the Rev. T. Connolly, V. G., and whose name has been known for many years in this Province, as a zealous priest and earnest worker in the Temperance cause continues the good work in Carleton, and purposes on next Sunday evening to administer the pledge to the members of St. Patrick's Society,—the five years for which they had taken it having expired. It is expected that many gentlemen from St. John will attend the grand rally in St. Patrick's Hall on next Sunday evening, and, no doubt, will have cause to be pleased with its success. The members of St. Patrick's T. A. S. has just cause to feel proud of their Society, as, during the past five years, they have only lost, by expulsion for drunkenness, thirty-five members. Such an account speaks well for the stability of the members who compose the Society. During the past five years the Society has done a vast amount of good, by reclaiming some from the path of drunkenness, by the distribution of money to the sick members, and by its influence for good amongst the community at large. At present the Treasurer's account shows a balance in favor of the Society of $230.—St. John's Herald.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE POPE'S JEST.—At the announcement of the recent death of the Princess Bourghese, Pius the Ninth was deeply moved. "She was younger than I am," he said smiling sadly. He was afterwards told of the death of Field-Marshal Wrangel at the age of ninety-four. The Pope's countenance brightened; his smile lost its sadness. He began to count on his finger, "Hm—88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94—seven years left." We sincerely hope so.—London Examiner.

OSHAWA, CANADA.—At the last monthly meeting of the St. Patrick's Benevolent Society No. 273 I.C.B. U. S., and No 17 of Canada, the election of officers took place, which resulted as follows:—President Henry Howard (re-elected); Vice-President, John Gallagher (re-elected); Secretary, Thomas Byrne (re-elected); Treasurer, Dennis Balf; Chief Marshal, Jas. Gibbons (re-elected); Assistant Marshal, John Hunt (re-elected); Librarian, Lawrence Cayley; Stewards, Henry Howard and Bernard Murphy; Messenger, John Hunt; Hall Committee, Daniel Buckley, Henry Howard, and M. J. Wall; Band Committee, M. P. Warren, M. J. Wall, and Henry Howard; Investigating Committee, Daniel Buckley and Henry Howard.

THE MILITARY RESOURCES OF ENGLAND.—The military resources of England on paper are:—In the United Kingdom, 105,000 regular troops, 134,000 militia, 14,830 yeomanry, 174,241 efficient volunteers, 16,000 first-class, and 21,000 second-class army reserve, making a total of 454,000 men. Of these, the active army, about 80,000 men of the militia reserve, and the first-class reserve, are alone liable to serve out of the country. The British army in India is not to be taken into consideration in the estimates of forces available for a war on the Balkan peninsula, or about the Black Sea, for it has to remain in India for obvious reasons. It is stated from English sources that the paper estimate of 454,000 men would be reduced to about 100,000 men in case of actual war with a foreign power. England's navy, however, is her strength. It numbers 68 iron-clad, 300 steamers, and 170 sailing vessels, all available for war service. The iron-clads are all powerful vessels, some of them registered as high as 12,000 tons. A portion of this fleet is now at B-sika Bay, at the foot of the Dardanelles, and within easy reach of Constantinople. Last summer there was some talk of an English army being landed at Gallipoli, on the straits, 140 miles below Constantinople, and making that point the source of distribution, as it was during the Crimean war.

EPPE'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Eppe has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Service Gazette. RUSSIAN PERSECUTIONS.

The spectacle which Russia is at this moment presenting to the world is a strange one, and no less afflicting than it is strange. When a Nero or a Diocletian persecuted the Christians they did not play a double game by waging bloody wars against hostile nations under the pretext of defending violated rights and oppressed consciences. But whilst Russia is covering the plains and the hillsides of Bulgaria with dead bodies and ruins, and affirming that she is fighting only for the liberty and faith of the Christian people of these countries, the Catholics continue to be persecuted in the interior of the Muscovite Empire with ever increasing severity. We might cite many examples in support of this statement, but we think that the following will suffice:—

In the city of Nieswics, in Lithuania, the capital of the immense domains of the Radevill family, there formerly existed three Catholic convents founded by the piety of the princes of this house. Two of them were suppressed ten years ago, viz., that of the Benedictines, which has been turned into a schismatic church, and that of the Dominicans, which has become a Russian school. There still remained a convent of Benedictine nuns, who were joined in the year 1868 by the Sisters of the same Order, brought from the suppressed convent of Minsk. A desire was even manifested to compel these Sisters to adopt the Russian ritual. They refused to do so, and their final dispersion was accordingly decided upon. It was the infamous administrator of this diocese, Zylinski, the docile instrument of the government, who went to Nieswics to put this order into execution. He allowed the Sisters only five hours to make the preparations for their departure. Most of the inhabitants, with the Princess Radevill at their head, supplicated him in vain not to be so relentless in his summary tyranny; he was inflexible. And this conduct has gained for him the decoration of the Cross of St. Ann, for which he has certainly worked very industriously. The Benedictine nuns, however, found time to convey to the castle of Prince Radevill all the most precious articles that were in the church. The Princess and her young daughter accompanied them, serving as their guides. The police did not dare to prevent them from performing this act of kindness, as this princess' father, Prince Anthony Radevill, who is now at Berlin, is a Prussian subject, and a cousin of the Emperor William, a circumstance which had a powerful influence on the police officer and the gendarmes. During the time that this was taking place Zylinski ordered some of the wagons used by the peasantry to be brought along for the purpose of conveying the nuns to the railway station. To convey cloistered nuns in such wagons!—This was an idea worthy of the man who had betrayed his God and sold his conscience. Fortunately, the Princess Radevill did not allow a single outrage to be perpetrated upon those unfortunate Benedictine nuns. She let them all her carriages. The nobility of the neighborhood, who were visiting at her house, followed her example; and even word was sent to others in the immediate neighborhood to send their carriages. And the Sisters were thus able to leave their convent in which they had spent so many long years in prayer. They wept bitterly; and the thing that grieved them most was they had to go so far away from the tomb of a Sister beside which they were accustomed to pray; for they considered her an saint and looked upon her as their special protectress. They even related miracles with which she had answered their prayers. The sight of these poor Sisters hunted from their holy and peaceful home, and weeping over their undeserved misfortune, very deeply affected the people of Nieswics who flocked to the convent to bid them adieu. The sorrow of the multitude broke out in murmurs and sobs when the agents of the government brought out on a bed which she was never to leave, a Sister over ninety years old, whom the pitiless government would not leave to die inside the gate of the convent in which she had spent her life. The nuns were conveyed, first to the carriages, and then by railway, ever under the care of the gendarmes, to some convent or other in Vilna. But there was not room enough for all of them, and so some were sent off to Grodno, whither they were escorted by the gendarmes.

These odious persecutions of the Latin Catholics are only the first act of the drama of which the United Greeks of Chelm have seen the last. These poor people whom the Government has taken the most barbarous means to drive into schism, and who have faithfully remained Catholic in spite of Muscovite tyranny, no longer to their old churches which have been given to the schismatics, content the popes who have been imposed on them, and live after the manner of the early Christians.—They are always harassed by the persecutions of the Russian authorities, and defend themselves as best they can. Their means of wreaking vengeance and by no means praiseworthy. But yet they give evidence of their ever increasing hatred of the schism, and of the Government of the Czar. On this point a St. Petersburg journal called the Nevada furnishes the following facts:— On the 28th of September, of the present year, the quondam United Greek church of Biala, in Podlachia, which is now in the hands of the schismatics, was opened in the early morning by the beadle for the purpose of ventilation, and that officer who is an old soldier, was sweeping out the court yard. Two unknown persons approached him, exchanged a few words with him, and then entered the church. The beadle was in no way annoyed about this, thinking that they went in to pray. After he had completed his sweeping, he went to close the church door; but no sooner did he look inside than he was appalled. The icones, or images of the saints in the Byzantine style, the sermionik, or table which is used for an altar, the anase, a pulpit in which the Pope reads the Gospel, the gates of the door leading to the sanctuary, the sacred vessels, and the carpets were all rumbled tony-tony, thrown together in indescribable confusion, broken or spoiled.—The poor beadle ran to tell the pope, the pope made no delay in informing the police, and the police searched everywhere for the culprits, but they could not find them. And this is not an isolated fact. Another schismatic church that formerly belonged to the United Greeks like the one at Biala, which is situated in the little town of Konstantynow, and only a few leagues distant from the one already mentioned, was put in the same state of confusion on the very same day, with this aggravating circumstance that the destroyers returned to accomplish their work, and they twice sent the police hunting for them to no purpose. The first time they found their way in by a window which they broke; but they had not time to do much damage.—They again entered on the night after by breaking the principal door, and smashed to pieces whatever they found inside. The Russian journalist piously exclaims that they "did not even respect the rich presents with which the Czar had deigned to gratify this Church in memory of the return of the United Greeks to orthodoxy."—Catholic Record.
