

ACADEMIE ST. DENIS.—At this institution under the charge of the Ladies of the Congregation was given on the evening of Thursday last a dramatic and musical entertainment by the young ladies, pupils of the establishment. This Academy is we are happy to learn in a flourishing condition, and confers inestimable advantages upon the residents of that quarter of the City in which it is situated.

CAST UP BY THE SEA.—By Sir Samuel U. Baker. Author of The Albert N'Yanza Great Basin of the Nile, &c. New York: Harper & Brothers. Messrs. Dawson Bros., Montreal:—

This is a tale of maritime, and African adventure by the great African traveller of the day, which will prove we are sure very entertaining to those for whom it was written. The adventures if improbable are well related, and the whole is illustrated with ten illustrations.

THE POETICAL WORKS OF CHARLES G. HALPINE. (MILES O'REILY). Edited by Robert B. Bouverell. Harper & Brothers, New York. Messrs. Dawson Bros., Montreal:—

All will agree that this book is well printed, elegantly bound, and handsomely brought out. There will be less unanimity as to the merits of the contents, for as to every thing else, so in poetry, tastes differ. There are certainly in the collection which the book contains pieces of sterling merit and great power, which show that the writer possessed indeed the brain and heart of a poet; and again there is much also that cannot claim to rank above doggerel.

CATHOLIC YOUNG MEN'S SOCIETY.—On the 2nd inst., the Rev. Father O'Farrell delivered a lecture before the Catholic Young Men's Society on the 'Irish Difficulty—The Irish Church.' As might be expected, from the nature of the subject, the St. Patrick's Hall was well attended by a most respectable and attentive audience. The Rev. lecturer, in a most lucid manner, explained what the Irish difficulty was, and the only way in which it could be removed, quoting more than once, from the speeches of the Great Liberator and others. The Rev. gentleman is well learned on this subject and afforded much information to his hearers. A vote of thanks was at the close passed to the Rev. lecturer.

We subjoin a copy of the Addresses presented to the Governor General of Canada, by the St. Patrick's Society, and the St. Patrick's Benevolent Society, of this City, together with His Excellency's replies thereunto:—

ADDRESS OF THE ST. PATRICK'S SOCIETY.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable Sir John Young, Bart., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., Governor General of the Dominion of Canada, &c., &c., &c.

May it please Your Excellency—The members of the St. Patrick's Incorporated Society of Montreal, participating in the general pleasure caused by Your Excellency's visit to this city, have deputed us, the President and other executive officers of the Society, to tender to Your Excellency their special felicitations upon this happy occasion.

Recognizing in the fullest sense the principle that allegiance is due to protection, we also beg to assure you of our devoted loyalty to the throne, which you so worthily represent and under the mild and just sway of which, in the Dominion of Canada, Her Most Gracious Majesty's subjects, without distinction of creed or origin, feel secure in the exercise of their rights as freemen, and we flatter ourselves that it will afford no little satisfaction to Your Excellency to know that the many years' existence of the St. Patrick's Society of Montreal furnishes unbroken proof of this rational loyalty, and that in common with their fellow countrymen throughout the British North American Provinces, they have on more than one important public juncture merited the cordial commendations of Your Excellency's predecessors, and others in authority, who were eye witnesses of their practical support of just laws justly administered. As we have already intimated in approaching Your Excellency to day, we are wisely influenced by the feeling of satisfaction pre-ailing throughout this entire community; but we trust it will be forgiven us to feel a degree of additional pleasure in addressing a fellow countryman, whose record as a private gentleman, an Imperial Senator, and a high public functionary is without blemish. It is not unknown that as an Irish landlord, you, in common with your kindred, have steadily acted upon the principle that 'property has its duties as well as its rights'; that as a member of the Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland, your course was moderate and conciliatory, and that as an administrator in distant parts of the empire, you have always kept in view that even the prerogatives of the crown would be valueless unless they tended to the protection and happiness of the people. These are traits of character which commend you to the affectionate regard as Irishmen, and bid us rely with confidence upon your rule in a Dominion, the aggregation of which embraces no inconsiderable proportion of the Irish race and in the general interest of which social, commercial, and political they are rapidly becoming participants.

We beg Your Excellency will present to Lady Young our respectful congratulations on her visit to Montreal, and our warmest wishes for her continued happiness here and elsewhere.

REPLY.

The President and members of St. Patrick's Incorporated Society of Montreal

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN.—Your ample recognition of the principle that allegiance is due to protection, and your assurances of loyalty to the British Throne under which the maxims of equal justice and complete toleration have full sway, and are carried out practically to their legitimate consequences, are proofs of an intelligent appreciation honourably expressed of your position in the Empire, and of your reliance to your fellow countrymen: and I rejoice to find that you refer with becoming pride to the instances when in time of emergency you came forward to aid and strengthen the authorities of the land.

In returning your thanks, as I do very sincerely for your felicitations for Lady Young; and my first visit to the City of Montreal and your wishes for our welfare, I can only add, that I shall count myself very happy if my anxious desire to perform the duties assigned me, and any services which I may be enabled to render in Canada, merit a need of approbation such as you indulgently award not only to my discharge of public functions in other parts of the Empire, but also to my bearing in the more private capacity of a landlord.

(Signed.)

JOHN YOUNG.

The Address of the St. Patrick's Benevolent Society was now presented by Mr. Edward Spelman:—

ADDRESS OF THE ST. PATRICK'S BENEVOLENT SOCIETY.

To His Excellency the Right Hon. Sir John Young, Bart., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., Governor General of the Dominion of Canada, &c., &c., &c.

May it please Your Excellency:—

We gladly avail ourselves of Your Excellency's presence in this city to declare the respect the St. Patrick's Benevolent Society of Montreal entertain for Your Excellency's person and office, and the loyal feelings which as members of a justly governed Dominion, we cherish towards the August Sovereign whom you represent. Differing from our sister society, bearing nearly the same name, inasmuch as our mission is less of a national or public nature, and is confined chiefly to mutual benevolence between members and their respective families, we yet have a feeling in common with them for the elevation of Irishmen and their dependants in the social scale, and their thorough identification with the State, its duties, and honours. Viewing Your Excellency's appointment and position from this standpoint, your Excellency will perceive that we wait upon you with more than ordinary feelings of gratification. At some future day we shall probably ask Your Excellency's permission to submit to your view the Constitution and By-laws of our Society, sanctioned by Act of Parliament, which, together with some details of our operations accompanying them, will we trust, satisfy Your Excellency that we faithfully discharge the duty entrusted to us by the Legislature, and that, in our limited degree we sustain the character for benevolence towards the poor and the aged, the widow and the orphan, for which the dear old land of our birth has, amid all her trials, ever been distinguished.

We respectfully request that Your Excellency will say to Lady Young that we bid her welcome to this city—and that we trust her stay amongst us will be found as agreeable as we know the entire mass of our citizens desire it to be.

(Signed.)

EDWARD SPELMAN,
President.
JAMES F. GAHOON,
Secretary.

Montreal, Feb. 2, 1869.

REPLY.

To the President and Members of the St. Patrick's Benevolent Society:—

GENTLEMEN—I receive, with much pleasure, your loyal address, and thank you very cordially for the welcome you give Lady Young and myself.

I am glad to learn that, while you very properly cherish the memory of the land of your fathers, yet you identify yourselves completely with the land of your adoption. Such sentiments, steadily wrought into practice, eliminate difference, and draw closer and strengthen the ties which unite you to your fellow colonists in the Dominion.

Your welcome to me as a fellow countryman has a special value, which I am proud to acknowledge, the more so as it proceeds from a Society whose objects are so purely and wisely benevolent.

(Signed.)

JOHN YOUNG.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S VISITS TO THE CATHOLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Wednesday was devoted to some of the educational institutions of the city. The day was by no means favourable for locomotion. A heavy snow storm had begun through the night, and increased towards morning the streets being cumbered with snow to a considerable depth.

VILLA MARIA.

Shortly after eleven His Excellency started to pay a visit to the Convent of Villa Maria, the educational institution conducted by the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame, at what was formerly Monkland's, the residence of Lord Egin when Governor General. The distance from the city is about 2 miles, and occupies what in summer is a lovely situation commanding an extensive view, and surrounded by spacious grounds. The drive out yesterday was through a close and blinding snow storm, the roads were very heavy, although they had been recently broken out, and the marks of the sleigh runners were obliterated almost as soon as made. The trees could be made out like blurred sketches by an artist of the Turner school, being somewhat hazy and indistinct, and the thickets of the atmosphere rendered every thing undistinguishable a few yards off. The sleighs drove heavily, but in due time reached Villa Maria. Here His Excellency was received by the Lady Superior, Sister Naurity, and ushered into the drawing room. Among those who had preceded and accompanied His Excellency were Col. MacNeil, V. C., A. D. C., Mr. Turville, His Worship the Mayor, the Hon. John Rose, the Hon. A. Campbell, Hon. John Young, Col. Duchesnay, Messrs. Victor Hudon, P. P. Poirerille, C. A. Leblanc, Louis Beaudry, Louis Batainey, Dr. Trudel Messrs. J. C. Baker, Robert Mont, A. M. Delisle, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Delisle, Mrs. Delisle, Mrs. Poirerille, Mrs. Mont, Mrs. Leblanc, Mrs. Beaudry, Mrs. Batainey, Miss Symes, Miss DesRivieres, &c., &c. A short conversation took place, during which it was stated that there were 19 teachers in the Institution, by whom besides being taught all the branches of a liberal education, including modern languages and literature, drawing and painting, vocal and instrumental music, harp, piano, organ and guitar, needle work plain and ornamental, the pupils were initiated into the mysteries of cookery, as forming an important part of a woman's duties. Of pupils there are at present 118, their ages ranging from seven up to nineteen, all of whom looked healthy and intelligent, as they were ranged in order to receive His Excellency in the Grand Hall in which an address was to be presented. During the time His Excellency was proceeding to take his seat the National Anthem was played and a few other pieces were given during the course of the visit. The young ladies who played were, Misses Vanner, Leprohon, Tremblay, Pouliot on the harp, Miss S. Chaput on the organ, and Miss Coyle on the piano. The whole of the young ladies were dressed in black, the only ornament being a bouquet of artificial flowers, worn by each, the workmanship of their own hands.

Miss Doyle, one of the pupils, read the following address, with great sweetness and modesty:—

EXCELLENCY

Ere your arrival in our Western clime, fame had made you known to us, even in this our mountain solitude, and anxiously did we anticipate the advent of the illustrious representative of our Most Gracious Majesty; he who had done so much, not only at home, but in distant lands, for the honour and glory of the Empire whose sun doth never set. Warm and sincere was the welcome which greeted Your Excellency in this noble City of Mount Royal; yet no less warm, no less sincere is that which we proffer you, while we hasten to inscribe, with pride, your name among those of the illustrious visitors who have honoured with their presence this Villa, once the residence of the Governors of Canada.

Eloquence has done its best to felicitate Your Excellency on your arrival in this city, and every feeling of loyalty, devotedness and regard finds a faithful echo in our young hearts. Pain would we strew your path with flowers, as when your noble predecessor and his gracious lady came, in the lovely summer time, to crown our efforts at the termination of the scholastic year. But though the stern winter has blighted the fair scene, we can proffer Your Excellency flowers which shall never fade—fervent wishes for your happiness—a future no less brilliant than the past.

May your name, Excellency, be enshrined in Canadian hearts, associated with all that is most prosperous, great and glorious in the history of the New Nation, over whose destiny you have come to preside.

Miss Leblanc then in French expressed the gratification it afforded them to receive a visit from His Excellency, regretted the illness of Lady Young, and requested his acceptance of a bouquet of hot-house flowers which had been specially arranged in expectation of Her Ladyship's visit. The bouquet was then presented by Miss Newcomb, and kindly received.

His Excellency replied in French, saying:

Ladies and Gentlemen, I thank you very cordially for the words of welcome which you have just addressed me by the mouth of this amiable young lady, and also for the magnificent bouquet with which you have presented me. I am happy to have had the opportunity, as representative of Her Majesty, to visit this asylum of youth, this sweet and peaceful retreat, dedicated to study, to the acquirement and practice of those amiable and sterling qualities which make woman an angel in the home in which she dwells. Here, young ladies, you may learn to imitate in a more modest sphere, the domestic virtues of which our Gracious Sovereign gives upon the throne so lovely an example to the Christian world.

I shall ever preserve an agreeable remembrance of the few moments I have had the pleasure of spending among you. I thank you for the wishes you express for the happiness of Lady Young, and shall not fail to present her with the bouquet you intended for her gratification, and I could not find a more graceful and faithful interpreter of your sentiments than the pretty flowers of which it is composed.

Before leaving the Grand Hall Miss Christal presented a petition to His Excellency for a holiday in honour of the visit, which was smilingly granted.

His Excellency and the visitors were then conducted through the dormitories, which are lofty rooms, well-ventilated and scrupulously neat and clean, their appearance testifying to the care bestowed on the pupils. Some slight refreshment having been partaken of, the distinguished visitors took their departure, and His Excellency and party drove to the St. Lawrence Hall, where they had luncheon with His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario.

VISIT TO THE SCHOOL OF THE CHRISTIAN BROTHERS.

Tuesday morning about half past eleven, His Excellency the Governor General visited the schools of the Brothers of the Christian School, in Coré street. The Governor accompanied by His Worship the Mayor, the Hon. J. Rose, the Hon. M. Campbell, Colonel McNell, A.D.C., Col. Duchesnay, P.A.D.C., and Mr. Turville, Private Secretary.

The Governor's entrance into the hall, which was crowded with pupils, was heralded by the brass band playing 'St. Patrick's Day.' Among those present were Mr. A. M. Delisle, Dr. De Bonald, and a large number of the professors and teachers.

After His Excellency had taken his seat on the raised dais with his suite, the singing class under Brother Flaminio Professor of music, sang a grand effect.

A pupil named James Wilson then presented the following address:—To His Excellency, the Right Honourable Sir John Young, Bart., G.C.B., &c., &c., Governor General of the Dominion of Canada, &c., &c., &c.

May it please your Excellency:—

We the pupils of the youthful Christian Brothers' Schools of Montreal, humbly request your Excellency to accept the unfeigned sentiments of gratitude that cause our hearts to palpitate with jubilation at the sight of Your Excellency's glittering presence within our Institution.

Long ere Your Excellency had pressed the soil of our New Dominion, renown had accompanied even us, with the sterling qualities that distinguish Your Excellency, and which will be one of the main-springs of the happiness and prosperity of the population who repose 'neath the aegis of your able administration.

We beg to assure Your Excellency that we shall ever consider it an incumbent, but most agreeable duty to offer up our prayers to the Throne of the Most High, that He may favour Your Excellency with the wisdom and fortitude requisite for those in whose hands the reins of the Government are placed, and on whom the destiny of nations so greatly depends.

On account of the honour conferred on us by the thrice welcome visit of Her most Gracious Majesty's worthy representative, this day shall ever be cherished among the happiest of our life, and when the balcyon season of our school-days shall have been engulged in the past, and that we shall have gone forth to meet the 'rough realities of life,' we shall look back with fond recollection to this memorable day.

Might we presume to request Your Excellency to tender Lady Young our most sincere wishes for her health, prosperity and happiness.

THE PUPILS OF THE CHRISTIAN BROTHERS' SCHOOLS.

A French address was read by pupil, Arthur Clement.

His Excellency replied in English as follows:

REPLY.

It has given me much pleasure to receive your kind addresses of welcome, and I am sure they will give equal pleasure to Lady Young when I inform her, as I shall not fail to do, of the kindly mention you make of her name.

The youthful spirit of patriotism which they breathe, amply proves that you are treading in the footsteps of those, your seniors in years, from whom during my short sojourn amongst you, I have already received so many convincing proofs of loyalty to the throne and attachment to British institutions.

In due time their places will be yours, and your task will be to complete and consolidate in institutions of which they are wisely laying the foundations.

No fitter preparation for the work can be devised than a good christian education. This, the institution in which we are now assembled offers and places within the reach of each one of you.

To beg of you to avail yourselves of the precious offering, and to entreat you to make good use of the golden hours of youth would only be to reiterate advice which I am sure is daily inculcated; but, if by chance, a passing word of mine should weigh with even one here present and truthfully as the seed in the good ground, I shall deem myself more than amply rewarded for my attendance to day at the Institution of the Christian Brothers of Montreal.

JOHN YOUNG.

His Excellency read a reply in French.

Among those whom Rev. Brother Anthony, the Director of the Institution presented to His Excellency were: Dr. S. S. DeBonald; Rev. Brother Amulvin, Director of St. Mary's; Rev. Brother Ad-herberts; Rev. Brother Canall, Director of St. Joseph's School; Rev. Brothers Owen, Servilian, Flannan, Colmas, Marcion, and Thodolus.

The band having played the National Anthem, His Excellency took his departure.

THE ACCIDENT OF THE ST. PATRICK'S HALL.—Mr. A. Hutchison has been selected as a collector on the part of the St. Patrick's Hall Association; Mr. Thomas S. Scott on the part of Mr. Hopkins, the architect; and Mr. F. J. Rostick on the part of Messrs. Howley & Sheridan, the contractors, to enquire into the cause of the falling in of the roof of St. Patrick's Hall. They began an investigation yesterday morning.

BUILDINGS TO BE CONDEMNED.—The Witness understands that by the falling of the roof of St. Patrick's Hall, the authorities have instituted an examination of many large buildings erected within the last few years, and that several apparently handsome and substantial structures will be condemned as unsafe to be occupied until certain extensive alterations are made of a substantial and strengthening nature.

The Present Telegraph says: A young woman with a child about three weeks old, took the cars at Ottawa, for Prescott on Thursday morning last. On reaching Prescott she took a seat in the ladies room at the Station House, where she remained about twenty minutes, when a discovered the child was smothered. She returned with the corpse to Ottawa. We understand that foul play is suspected.

HALIFAX, Feb. 2.—Reports are talking of bringing out James W. King in opposition to Mr. Howe. Mr. King was defeated at the last election by 600 majority.

The following is from an article on repeal in the Halifax Chronicle:—A Repeal League has been formed in this city. Its object is to win a repeal of the Union by lawful means, and we wish sincerely that it had determined to win Repeal by all or any means consistent with the principles of Christianity. The time for trifling has gone by. Less talk and more work is demanded by the people. But still it is necessary that the people's indignation should be curbed by Providence. While there is hope of repeal, the slightest glimmering of the hope, through peaceful means, we must cherish. Should there be disastrous conflicts of any kind the flame must rest upon our adversaries. We wish to talk no disloyalty—for it is imprudent to do so. It is not our purpose to call to mind the benefits which would accrue to us from annexation; nor yet to picture with the slightest exaggeration, the wrongs inflicted upon us by our mother, England. We would not tell of the inter-indifference which meet our petitions—the petitions of a free people, free by birth as freemen, free by inheritance, if freedom can be inherited. We would not call to mind British sympathy with Crete, nor yet Garibaldi's glorious reception in London. Not a word of Kosuth would we say, nor a word of the London extacies over the triumph of United Italy. It is not our province just now. Loyalty which feels the shibboleth of civilization. Loyalty which feels the dust of official documents with a sacred respect, and looks upon Downing Street as Mecca, seems to have come in vogue with the Unionists among us. This loyalty is forgetful of self-interest—forgetful of all which makes the lives of British freemen safe—forgetful of all that renders dear any allegiance. We do not complain of an early Repeal, we cannot control it; we do not complain of ignorance, for we cannot always enlighten it. So we let Repeal loyalty hold its sway until time and reading will smother it. The day is coming fast, however, when the people will say, 'We are a free British race; we are only too willing to subject ourselves to it; but that rule must give us ample freedom, not license or we shall hate it as we now love it. The time has now come for every man to make up his mind as to the great question of our day. There can be no half-and-half thoughts no hatred of Union combined with a determination to shirk out existence under it. The passive man must give way and the active take their places. We have two one revolution, and another must not be far off, and those who undertake the guidance of public affairs must be ready for that event.

The League is a powerful ally in the Repeal cause. It will tolerate no accident of the issue really before us. Its cardinal principle is Repeal; if Repeal be impossible, we trust it will simply and firmly say, 'We will not endure Union with Canada; we shall pay no taxes to the Dominion Government, except when we are forced by the bayonets, as the power to abide the bayonet is always auxiliary.
