Mercantile Summary

IN the letter of M. W., from Parry Sound, in last week's issue, the mistake was made of printing Severn river, instead of Seguin river, in the 19th line, when accounting for the stoppage of night work at the sawmills in Parry Sound, by reason "of low water in the Severn river." The statement would not mislead anyone who knows the locality, but for the sake of those who do not, we regret the error.

WE learn from the total issue of our valued exchange, the Glasgow Herald, that the shilling war fund of that paper, devoted to the relief of the families of soldiers fighting in South Africa, amounted to 144,401½ shillings at 17th August last. This remarkable contribution of single shillings reaches £7,220, sterling, equal to $36,100. Doubtless, it is only one of many similar funds being raised by patriotically-disposed newspapers or other agencies in the United Kingdom, but it serves to show what a host of willing givers there are for such an object, when anybody affords them an opportunity to give.

WE have seen a copy of a St. John newspaper, which devotes nearly a column to describing a steam fire engine, built for that New Brunswick city by the Waterous Engine Works, of Brantford, Ont. It is called a second size crane neck piston engine. The running gear is fitted with Archibald roller bearing wheels, which lessen the strain on the horses. It appears that the city has for many years been buying American fire engines, the product of the Amoskeag works at Manchester, N.H. But now that the Waterous engine has been tested, they wonder that it had not been known before. Mr. Kerr, chief engineer of the fire department, who had been strong in advocating the purchase of an Amoskeag engine, said he had only words of praise for the new machine. This Waterous engine was a revelation to him and he felt that the city had in it a prize.

A MERCHANT named W. W. Fenelon, of Rhinelander, Wis., was shot and instantly killed ten days ago by J. Bascom Robbins, of Big Sandy, Tenn., a traveler, who was making his first trip through Wisconsin, for the Chicago Crockery Company. Robbins attempted a flirtation with one of the women clerks in the store. His advances were repulsed by the employee, and Mr. Fenelon took a hand in resenting the insult, upon which Robbins inflicted on the merchant a mortal wound. Robbins was taken to the county jail, and afterward spirited out of the city, as it was feared that public feeling might result in violence. This is one of the shocking occurrences that almost reconcile one to the lynchings which are so often heard of in the States. The life of such a "worthless fool," as the Dry Goods Economist calls the murderer, should not rank in the balance with that of a valued citizen, protecting his employee.
