

IV. ENDNOTES

<sup>i</sup> The opinions in this report reflect a summary of the perspectives within the Youth Internship Project and do not represent the views of the Canadian Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade or IMPACS.

The eight interns and their respective host organizations were as follows:

Lindsey Parry

Amnesty International – Auckland, New Zealand

Leah Willis

The Institute for Media, Policy and Civil Society – Vancouver, Canada

*Erin Phelan

Pacific Island News Association – Suva, Fiji Islands

Meghan Watson-Donald

Centre for the Studies on Free Flow of Information – Jakarta, Indonesia

Dorothy Bartoszewski

Aliran – Penang, Malaysia

Greg Raikes

Red Mexicana de Accion Frente al Libre Comercio – Mexico City, Mexico

Margaritha Santiago

Centre for Media Freedom and Responsibility – Manila, Philippines

Andrea Uzans

The Nation Multimedia Group – Bangkok, Thailand

*While Fiji was the host country for the intern, the intended country for media monitoring was to be an APEC member country in the Asia Pacific region (Fiji is not a member country).

<sup>ii</sup> The media monitoring results from Fiji are not reported in this synopsis due to a conflict of interest – the researcher also acted as a reporter during the study period, and had two APEC-related articles published in one of the newspapers that was being monitored.
