

verification in the field of arms control and disarmament contained in the Canadian Programme of Action for the second half of the UN Disarmament Decade, outlined in his address to the UN General Assembly in September 1985.

Mr. Clark also announced that $25,000 of the Canadian Government contribution would be directed towards all aspects of the production and distribution of the United Nations Disarmament Yearbook so that this useful reference document will be available to a larger audience. The Yearbook is prepared by the United Nations Department for Disarmament Affairs and serves both a specialized readership and those among the general public interested in activities at the multilateral arms control and disarmament forums. The Yearbook fills an important information role in the context of the World Disarmament Campaign.
