

Mr. McIvor: On a point of order, I would like to inform the hon. member that that—

An hon. Member: No point of order.

An hon. Member: Sit down.

The Deputy Chairman: Order. I think we have decided more than once that you cannot meet a debatable point by calling it a point of order. If the hon. member for Fort William does not agree with the statement being made by the hon. member for Dauphin he will have an opportunity to correct it, but he cannot interrupt the hon. member in the middle of his speech without his permission to give his own views on a debatable point.

Mr. McIvor: Mr. Chairman, it was a misrepresentation. That is why I stood up.

The Deputy Chairman: I am not concerned with whether it is a misrepresentation, I am concerned with whether the hon. member for Fort William has the right to butt in at this stage.

Mr. Zaplitny: I have no desire to misrepresent anyone. The hon. member will have an opportunity to straighten this out on his own time. I was referring to the attempt by the hon. member for Macleod to use the old McCarthy trick of guilt by association. He is trying to make a communist out of everyone who opposes this bill because he says the communists are opposed to it. Let me ask the Social Credit party: where do they find themselves in this debate? Here they are acting as a spare tire on the Liberal jalopy. If they believe in guilt by association then they are the tail end of the Liberal party. What is more, I would rather be associated with a party in this house which was opposed to this bill, even though we

Northern Ontario Pipe Line Corporation disagree on the details, than be the instrument of the oil oligarchy of Alberta, the timber tycoons of British Columbia and the beer barons of Saskatchewan—I mean Manitoba. The same thing may apply to Saskatchewan, but we have evidence from Manitoba to show that the breweries of Manitoba have been financing our Social Credit friends. If they believe in guilt by association, let them choose their own partners. May I call it ten o'clock.

Mr. Hansell: Mr. Chairman, may I—

An hon. Member: Ten o'clock.

The Deputy Chairman: Order.

An hon. Member: Ten o'clock.

An hon. Member: Closure.

The Deputy Chairman: It being ten o'clock I leave the chair, unless the hon. member is rising on a question of privilege, which I think is unlikely, if I may say so.

Mr. Hansell: I was rising to correct a statement.

An hon. Member: Ten o'clock.

The Deputy Chairman: I am afraid that we have ruled already that corrections of that sort cannot be made during the middle of a member's speech, and that is the stage at which technically we are at the moment.

Progress reported.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Mr. Harris: We shall continue with this tomorrow.

At ten o'clock the house adjourned, without question put, pursuant to standing order.
