

dreds together, and darting after insects or feeding leisurely as they advance towards more congenial climes. For two or three weeks these processions along the rivers and their banks, tending towards their destination, are still continued. Mingled with the wandering host are sometimes also seen the different species of Swallow, — a family to which they are so much allied in habits and character; but by the 20th of September the whole busy troop have disappeared for the season.

I have observed Nighthawks flying over the city of St. John, in New Brunswick, during most of the summer months, and have known of the eggs being found frequently on gravel roofs in that city.

NOTE. — The FLORIDA NIGHTHAWK (C. virginianus chapmani), a smaller race, breeds in Florida and westward on the Gulf coast.
