

two children. His land is nearly paid for to the Canada Company. He is an intelligent farmer, and a very exact one. His method is chiefly to manage well what he does, and he is never disappointed in the results, as he has told me. His stock of cattle, &c. this fall was one yoke of working oxen, three cows, three yokes of steers of various ages, three head of young cattle, fourteen sheep, and about eight hogs, and two horses, and a colt. He has a neat log dwelling house, plaistered like an old country house in the inside, and a very large log barn, which contains his stable. This settler obtained several prizes at the show of the Stratford Agricultural Society in October last. The fall-wheat, which he exhibited, was as good as could be wished for.

4th. ROBERT PATTERSON, Jun.—He came from near Lung-holm, Liddlesdale, (Scotland.) He settled in 1838, near John Kelly, on No. Thirteen in the same concession.—He had not a farthing when he settled. Has a wife and six children. His clearance is about thirty-five acres with a dwelling house, and a good log barn, as neat and substantial a one as I have met with. His fences round his cleared land, are laid down exactly and neatly. I have no data within my reach, while I write this, to shew the number of his cattle, &c. but I know he has a stock of cattle. This is the settler I have previously referred to, whose crop of oats this year will yield fully sixty bushels per acre. This settler's father, brothers, and sisters have emigrated from Scotland since 1838, and are settled near him. It may be supposed how happy and comfortable these settlers now are, when they find themselves together again, in their adopted country, and surrounded with every comfort, and free of the harassing cares attendant on a farmer's or a labouring man's life in the old country.

5th. There is another family of Pattersons. The father, ROBERT PATTERSON, Sen. came from near Lauder, in Berwickshire, (Scotland,) to North Easthope in 1833. Settled on No. Sixteen in the second concession, and some adjoining lots. He has a large family of sons; three of them were able to keep the father (who is an elderly man) when he settled, and two of them, Walter and John, have since married, and are living on neighbouring lots, with stocks of cattle, dwelling houses, and barns.
