"Nothing But Lies."

Never was there a comedy produced in New York that enjoyed a better reputation as a mirth provoker than William Collier's latest and most successful comedy of business life, "Nothing But Lies," This is the comedy which Edward H. Robins and his Players will present all next week, Players will present all next week, commencing Monday evening, as the farewell performance of the present Robins season at the Royal Alexandra. "Nothing But Lies" is the sequel to that other William Collier comedy, "Nothing But Truth," and, like its predecessor, is a well-told story sur-rounding the lives of certain well-todo business men. Seats are on sale today at the theatre box office for all the barrier separating this, the world and what we have come and the matinees will be as usual, Wednesday and Saturday. The Wednesday matinee will be the last popular Robins matinee of the season.
