An Anonymous Writer Holds Out a Threat to Geoghegan's Friends Who Talked to the Press.

COURT OF TRIERS HAD NO DOUBT

As it was written by one connected with that the tenants who have not paid up for the investigation and was present during the whole of the sittings, its contents are in a measure official and worthy of attention, although he was not manly enough to sign his name to the published letter. "I am more than surprised at the attitude of Mr. Geoghegan is friends. If Mr. Geoghegan is innocent, neither he nor his friends should be content with things as they are at present. He stated at the conclusion of the trial, in the presence of six elergymen, that he was perfectly satisfied with the way in which the Board of Triers had conducted the case. He must also have felt that the witnesses were telling a straight story, for he was given the opportunity to cross question them, but on each occasion declined, saying he had nothing to accept a position with an insurance company.

To Stop Child Immigration. At this evening's meeting of the debates section of the Canadian Club, J. J. Kelso of Toronto, introduced a resolution in favor of child immigration to Canada beling abolished. Those who spoke in support of Mr. Kelso were: Rev. Dr. Lyle, Rev. C. E. Whitecombe, John Flett, T. R. C. Fessenden and J. C. McCullough.

straight story, for he was given the opportunity to cross question them, but on each occasion decilned, saying he had nothing to ask.

"The only thing he table dissatisfied with is the judgment of the court of triers on the evidence adduced. He will not appeal, and there is not a man who has read the evidence who thinks for a moment that he will. He knows it would be conviction all along the line, with a heavier penalty, should they have the power to inflict it. The bishop reviewed the evidence with the greatest care. His Lordship would have acquitted him had the evidence been weak. He had the power. Instead of acquitting him, he unhesitatingly confirmed the decision arrived at by the board.

"Why, then, it is asked, if the evidence was so strong, did the accused get so light a sentence? Largely, I believe, for three reasons: (1) His good works for over twenty years could not be forgotten. (2) The members of the board were strong personal friends and desired to give him an opportunity, after seven years, of redeming his chiracter. (3) Because only one immoral act was laid against him by the presentors, whereas several came out in the course of the trial. The church advocate advised the board, in weighing the evidence, are advised the board, in weighing the evidence advised the board, in weighing the evidence advised the board, in weighing the evidence, "Abusing the court and saying that the proceedings were conducted with closed doors, will not remove the stain. He was tried by honorable men. They discharged a painful duty conscientiously. The evidence came under the scrutiny of the head of the diocese. There was no difference of opinion. They unanimously declared him guilty. This ought to satisfy the members of the Church of England at any rate. I am sure it will, and I am satisfied that it!

will satisfy all right-minded, sober thinking men. If I am mistaken in this, I ask them to urge Mr. Geoghegan to appeal. I saw in one newspaper that the unsigned letter was the evidence that convicted the accused. This is a false statement. The evidence that caused the board to convict was, apart from that document only sufficient.

Much information has been obtained since you last met relative to the extent and value of the deposits of gold and valuable minerals in the Yukon and other parts of Canada. The returns from the Yukon have so far been sufficient to meet the heavy expenditure it was found necessary to incur for the purpose of preserving law and order, and it has been thought expedient in the public interest to authorize the construction of a line of telegraph for the purpose of maintaining speedy communication with the people of these distant territories.

A motion to wind up the Bell Organ and Piano Company, Limited, and asking for the appointment of a receiver, was made before Justice Street yesterday at Osgoode Hall by Mr. A. W. Alexander of Guelph, a shareholder for $405 ordinary and $500 preferred $100k, and the holder of twelve of per cent. first mortgage debentures of $500 each, the total interest upon which claims is $360.

The Bell Company was incorporated, with head offices in London, England, in 1890, and the license was extended, allowing it to do business in Ontarlo, in 1891.

In the affidavits filed Mr. Alexander states that in August, 1898, the shareholders in England passed a resolution putting the company into liquidation, as the High Court had appointed a receiver. However, a scheme was mooted, he continues, to reconstruct the English company, to meet unsecured liabilities by the issue of second mortgage debentures, and though this had not yet reached fruition, the English branch, continues the petitioner, has been, he believes, meeting liabilities out of the assets of the Canadian company.

Further, he states, the company in Canadian speepared a financial statement, admitting insolvency, therefore, he calls for Tames. The same proceedings are operating in England, and pending the arrival of the necessary documents, the motion was enlarged for two weeks.

The head offices and factories of the company are at Guelph.

manager of the Bell Organ and Plano Company, Limited, in this city, was seen at his home this evening and asked for a statement regarding the suit brought at Osgoode Hall to wind up the company. This he readily consented to furnish.

A. W. Alexander, who made application for the winding-up order, he said, was formerly manager of the company, and held $6000 worth of debentures. The total value of the company's debentures was $300,000. There was a reconstruction of the business and a new company took over all the business of the original concern on March 1. Mr. Alexander, he claims, is the only dissenter of all the debenture-holders. He recently made a similar application before Judge Stephens in the High Court of Justice in England, and his application was ruled out of court. Alexander was made to pay costs in the action for both sides. The application he made in England, Mr. Hawkins says, is identical with the one made in Toronto.

Treaty Negotiations.

The negotiations which were set on foot during the recess between Her Majesty's Government and that of the United States in reference to the settlement of certain questions in dispute between Canada and the latter country were. I grieve to say, greatly delayed by the iliness and subsequent death of two of the most eminent members of the commission appointed for that pur pose. Considerable progress had been made on several of the subjects submitted, but a serious disagreement arose between Her Majesty's commissioners and the commissioners of the United States on the question of the delimitation of the boundary between Canada and Alaska, and the question was referred by the commissioners to their respective Governments, the commission being adjourned till the second day of August next, in the hope that in the meantime the difficulty might be overcome.

In compliance with the Act passed last session a plebiscite was held on the question of prohibition. The official figures of the vote will be placed before you.

Penny Postage.

I observe with pleasure that the Mother Country, Canada and other British possessions have recently adopted a penny postage letter rate. The satisfaction with which this action has been received by the Canadian people is a further proof of the general desire existing amongst our people for closer relations with the Mother Country and the rest of the Empire.

Temporary Loss of Revenue.

I am also glad to be able to state that the satisfactory condition of the finances of the country permitted a reduction, on the first of January last, of the Canadian domestic letter rate from three to two cents, and although such reduction involves a temporary loss of revenue, it is, nevertheless, confidently expected that the cheapened rate will prove of such service in the promotion of trade and in the general interchange of correspondence that within a reasonable time the revenue of the Postoffice Department will be restored to its forwer for the contraction of the contraction of the contraction of the promotion of the promoti up in the way he does, and his bows were consequently of the lowest, easiest and most graceful kind. On the retirement of Black Rod, Mr. Speaker put on his shovel hat, gave an extra hitch to his flowing robes, arranged his gorgeous gold chain and sallied forth, preceded by the sergeantarms with the mace on his shoulder and followed by the "Faithful Commons" and the more or less faithful press. Respect for the Dead.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier then moved that this House at its adjournment stand adjourned until Monday next. The right, hon, gentle man said the House would understand by simply looking at the wreath they observed on a desk on the other side. Almost within the last few hours death had removed from amongst them one of the most respected and one of the most estimable members of that House in the person of Mr. Wood, late member for Brockville. Mr. Wood occupied a prominent position in the the more or less faithful press.

Commoners Get a Show.

The arrangements this year were better than usual, and although the space without the bar of the Senate, which is supposed to be reserved exclusively for the members of the House of Commons, was not quite exclusively reserved, still there was a very marked improvement and the majority of those who stood behind Mr. Speaker while His Excellency was reading his speech, were members of Parliament and pressmen instead of being pages, messengers, sessional clerks and others, as has been the case in recent years. As soon as Mr. Speaker had taken his stand in the little "dock," which is specially prepured for him in the Senate Chamber, His Excellency gracefully raised his cocked hat and bowing read the speech as follows;

Death Evens It All.

Then, perhaps, the better part of their nature engaged, as they were, in daily connict, and sometimes in very bitter connicts, would unconsciously arise in their hearts, and there would arise a sense of affection for those against whom it was their duty to oppose everything. But when death removed them they felt personal regret and perhaps it might be a lesson to them that those feelings should have a higher expression than that they should be the expression of vain thoughts. Hear, hear.] The right hon, gentleman also made graceful aliusion to the late Mr. Jameson of Winnipeg.

Sir Charles' Tribute.

Sir Charles' Tribute.

Sir Charles' Tupper thanked the leader of the House for the very courteous manner in which he accepted the suggestion that he House should adjourn in consequence of the death of one of his [Sir Charles'] former colleagues and a gentleman who, as the leader of the Government stated, and occupied a very high position in the House in the estimation of members on both sides. As an able lawyer, as a gentleman who brought a very profound knowedge in the matters connected with the profession to which he belonged, to bear on the House, in his attention to public business, and one who discharged his duty not only to his party but to his country by giving his most careful and candid consideration to every question that came before them, the late member for Brockville righting telephones.

His loss they deplored all the more because they were feeling that on that side of the House the business might be affected by his loss, and its conduct not be so well fulfilled. He joined the leader of the House in every way in what he had said. The late Mr. Wood was a gentleman who occupied a position not only as a member, but as Deputy Speaker of that House, and who conducted those duties in such a manner as to command the respect of gentlemen on each side of the House. He also joined the right hon, gentleman in his reference to the late Dr. Guay, whom everyone not only respected, but who knew his as a generous opponent and an agreeable supporter.

Annoyed His Excellency.

His Excellency spoke clearly and distinctly but not in a very loun tone, and the filmannered chattering which invariably goes on during the reading of a speech from the Throne, so drowned his voice that scarcely a word of it was heard. This talking on the part of members and others who are admitted to the floor of the Senate at the opening and closing of Parliament is a most unmitigated nuisance, and some means ought to be taken to suppress it.

The meeting of the T.A.C. Reorganization Committee, called for to-night, has been postponed until Monday night next at the Bossin House. At this meeting the arrangements, as proposed to be entered into between the new club and the capitalists, through whose liberality it is to be reopened, will be set out.

Moriz Rosenthal has been heralded as "the greatest planist of the day." Those Wood occupied a prominent position in the House of Commons. He had been an important mentor in the last Administration, and those on his side of the House, in conjunction with his honorable opponent, the leader of the Opposition, thought it would be fitting that the House should adjourn for a day or so before they proceed to the scrious labors of the session. He need not tell the House that Mr. Wood occupied such a position in that place that his loss became a personal loss to all of them. Hear, hear.] He was greatly respected by his friends and much loved by his opponents. His judicial mind, his character had left a feeling of bereavement. On that side of the House they had also lost a great friend in the late Dr. Guay. It was not only a sense of bereavement that they felt, but a sentiment that was hard to express.
