BALL PLAYER AND ACTOR.

Many theatregoers may be wondering why Charles Grapewin, who will appear in "Between Showers," a new farce comedy, selected Mike Donlin, the famous baseball player, to support him in his latest bit, instead of selecting a more experienced comedian. Mr. Grapewin, who is a baseball player of note himself, had the same question put to him several weeks ago, and his reply was so quick that the questioner nearly lost his breath. "I selected Donlin for the part for the reason that I know he is just as good an actor as he is a ball player. When Mike first went on the stage, he was a drawing card on account of his playing with the New York Giants, but he was ambitious, studied hard, and is today a better actor than a great many of the performers on the American stage. He has natural ability, and is as good a performer as Jim Corbett, the famous pugilist, who would have been one of our greatest stage stars, but for the fact that he was a great pugilist before he took up acting. Of course, Donlin is a great actor on the stage. "Between Showers" is new and original in plot, with many novel and laugh-provoking situations, and is said to be as funny as Mr. Grapewin's famous Pipp."
