There is not much change in the shapes of Men's Shoes this fall. At least, what few changes have been made are not of a radical nature. The fairly high toe still leads, although many men are becoming infatuated with the long pointed toe with low flat heel.

The quality of the "SPECIAL" is really better than ever, as experience has demonstrated that our customers want good goods. $4.00 to $8.00.

Government Wins In Carleton County

Hon. B. F. Smith and Mayor Sutton Elected; Conservative Majority Reduced; How They Won

Woodstock, N. B., Sept. 21.—The government candidates, Smith and Sutton, were elected today by very substantial majorities. Smith had 666 majority over McCain and 600 over Upham. Sutton had 495 over McCain and 535 over Upham.

Carleton has endorsed graft and dishonest government. The opposition here were told by their friends all over the province that it was useless to contest Carleton county with the great campaign funds in the hands of Teed and Fleming as disclosed by the royal commission. Had the people of any other county but Carleton given such a verdict in favor of the New Brunswick government, the public would be far more alarmed at the prospect, but here in the nest of pillagers of the province, here in the county of the deposed premier, here where party politics in some circles drown all considerations of public decency and public interest, the verdict of today will simply add to the determination of every man in the province who is in earnest for better government.

THE OPPOSITION PARTY DID NOT BUY A SINGLE VOTE AND DID NOT SPEND A CENT FOR LIQUOR. The false and foolish statements of the Standard regarding opposition "run and money" did not deceive anybody in Carleton county. Scared blue by public sentiment they were crying out "Boodle!" and judging the opposition methods by their own.

Majority is Reduced.
An analysis of the returns shows considerable gain in Woodstock, and gains in Wilmet and Johnville and several other centres. Smith had 190 less majority than over Simms two years ago, though there were 700 more votes polled. The personal promises and inducements held out by Smith would unsettle and disqualify him in a federal election. The New Brunswick election law provides no penalty beyond the loss of $80 and loss of franchise. To proceed against a briber someone must sue him in a magistrate's or county court for $80, and with the juries selected by government officials the executive committee men here feel that it would be nearly useless, but still there are many who would like to see the law enforced.

The Vote By Polls.
The vote by polls was as follows:

William Dean Howells, novelist, was talking about a poet.

"His work is overdone, overelaborate, overdone," he said.

"In short, his work reminds me of the young husband who said to his bride at the end of the honeymoon:

"Darling, I'll have to leave you every morning hereafter to go to business; but, to make parting less abrupt, I'll no longer take the 8.15 express as I used to do—I'll take the 8.30 slow accommodation."

HOLLAND FEEDING GERMAN CHILDREN

More Than 1000 Sent There and Many Come Daily; Controversy About Them Raging

The Hague, Netherlands, Sept. 5.—(Correspondence)—The question whether German children should be entertained in Holland and fattened there on Dutch milk and butter has led to a storm in a teacup here. Columns of the newspapers have been devoted to articles on the subject by learned professors and editorial writers.

"Germany is a besieged fortress," it is declared on the one hand, "it is neutral and, what is more, opposed to all Holland's interests to help defeat the object of the besiegers by relieving distress there."

"How can that be?" is the question put in reply, "when Germany has free access to Holland, Scandinavia and Switzerland? Holland is sovereign of her own frontiers and the feeding of hungry German children is our good right, and not the faintest violation of neutrality."

"If you have money to spare for poor children," is the retort, "give the benefit of it to many thousands of half-starved children in your own cities, who are suffering from too large exports to Germany; or lavish your pity upon the millions of suffering children in Poland, Serbia, Belgium and Northern France, the countries ruthlessly desolated by Germany. Moreover, you are endangering our own food supplies by giving the Allies ground for thinking that the goods imported here will indirectly help their enemy to hold out."

"Even assuming that Germany is a besieged fortress," runs another argument, "does not a brilliant sometimes allow the siege of a city to be prolonged by sparing the women and children as much as possible? And if you say we are helping Germany to hold out, so does such noble work as that of the Red Cross, which is universally recognized to be within the province of neutrals, strengthen the forces of the belligerents."

"It is but an act of chivalry and compassion; it would be a shame to exclude it by carrying logical strictness to extremes," says another. "That's all very well," is the answer, "but to nourish German subjects is to prolong the war and so sacrifice more of the Allies' men; and if the Dutch government is to public charity here, at least let it point out to Germany its obligations toward the country and to the civil population of the regions occupied by German armaments."

So runs the strange controversy, and meanwhile, all unconscious of the mild terms they have raised, little parties of German children, many of them pale-faced, but some looking in fairly good condition, are daily crossing the Dutch border. They come in parties varying from a dozen to several hundreds, and are being accommodated about the country, mostly in children's holiday camps and such institutions, but also by twos and threes in private families.

The work has been organized by various committees set up by Hollanders, and with family ties, in Germany and others, and naturally the German authorities have willingly extended their co-operation. There are now between 1,000 and 2,000 such children in the country, and they are still arriving.

A movement is also now on foot to bring children from the occupied districts of France, so that Holland promises to develop into quite a children's refuge, following the claims upon its hospitality made by the Rocks of Belgian fugitives, part of Antwerp's escaping garrison and many hundreds of fleeing prisoners of war.

A WISH
(Edgar A. Guest, in Detroit Free Press)
I'd like to be a boy again, a care-free prince of joy again.
I'd like to tread the hills and dales the way I used to do;
I'd like the tattered shirt again, the knickers thick with dirt again,
The ugly, dusty feet again that long ago I knew.
I'd like to play first base again, and silver's curves to face again.
I'd like to climb the way I did, a friendly apple.
For knowing what I do today, could I but wander back and play the boy that boyhood gave to me.
I'd like to be a lad again, a youngster, wild and glad again,
I'd like to race and run again and drain from life its fun again.
And start another round of joy the moment one was through.
But care and strife have come to me, and often days are grim to me, and sleep is not the thing it was and food is not the same.
And I have sighed and know that I must journey on again to sigh.
