

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED

Thousands Testify to the Lasting Benefit secured from Catarrhzone
CURES WITHOUT DRUGS

One of the latest discoveries in medicine was given to the public when "Catarrhzone" was placed on the market about fifteen years ago. Since then thousands have been cured of asthma and catarrh. An interesting case is reported from Calgary in a letter from Mr. E. Thompson, who writes: "Nothing can be said too strong for Catarrhzone. I suffered four years on asthma in a way that would beggar description. I went through everything a man could suffer. I was told of Catarrhzone by a clerk in Fidelity's drug store and purchased a dollar package. It was worth hundreds to me in a week. I place a priceless value on the benefit I have since derived. I strongly urge every sufferer to use Catarrhzone for asthma, bronchitis and catarrh." The one-dollar package lasts two months; small size, 50c; sample size, 25c; 1 storekeepers and druggists, or the Catarrhzone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Kurds Wonder About Future Of Their Country

Formerly Owed Allegiance to Both
Turkey and Persia But Position Uncertain Since Armistice Was Signed

(Toronto Mail and Empire)

Kurdistan is the area stretching in a boomerang shape from Diabekir across the north of the Mosul Vilayet and bending down to the Jebel Hamrin, the low hills some sixty miles east of Baghdad. The Kurds are by some believed to be the modern descendants of the ancient Medes and speak a language which is a dialect of Persian, or, as is also contended, has developed parallel with modern Persian from a common present tongue. Their written language is Persian and it is in Persian that the educated Kurd prefers to converse. Coterminal with Irak, they have attracted to their area some Arab tribes, but these, while preserving the traditions of their race, have, to all intent and purpose, become Kurds. The Kurds who dwell on the foothills at the edge of the Irak inhabitant settled villages, the houses of which are frequently built of stone. They reap two harvests each year, but by far the more important is the spring harvest of wheat and barley. Wheat is most plentiful in the district of Erbil—the scene of Alexander's victory in 331 B. C.—and it is from these regions that the province of Baghdad used to obtain both the bulk of the wheat which was consumed in her big cities and the surplus which her merchants exported.

Before the war there were fruit gardens everywhere and grapes, raisins, figs, pomegranates, pistachio nuts, and figs in abundance. From the rainless districts mostly by Jews, the favorite intoxicating spirit of the country. Other exports were gill nuts, bug, tragacanth, hides and wool. The wool came from the flocks owned for the most part by the nomad tribes which in the summer live in the hills and in winter bring or rather are brought, by their flocks to the plain, for the sheep is master and when the climate changes turns towards the regions were instinct tells him the season will suit him, as surely as the migratory birds make their annual journeys. These upland Kurds live in hair tents and subsist chiefly on the sheep—on which they depend for their supplies of milk, cheese, wool and meat—and also on the spring crop of wheat or barley. The spring crops depend for their irrigation on the rainfall; the summer crops, where these are sown, consist of maize and millet, and are watered by small canals, by the karez system of continuous wells so familiar throughout Persia and Baluchistan, or by springs which are fairly frequent. Sulaimaniyah, Keut Sanjak, and the immediate neighborhood produce a rich revenue from the tobacco which under the Turkish regime, supplied Mesopotamia and most of Arabia with both the heavy Turkish tobacco and the light tutun favored by the cigarette smoker.

Oil is known to exist and remains to be exploited; there are springs with sulphurous waters with medicinal qualities. Salt is found in one or two places. The country is good to look upon, rolling plains merging into foothills, and beyond great mountains of snow. In spring and late in the summer wild flowers are abundant. Streams are abundant and the climate at the worst less severe than that of Mesopotamia, while at best it is superior to the mildest of India's hill stations. The Kurd himself is a tough, not over-clean mountaineer, with something of the Mongol in his type of face. He is cheery and good-humored, ever ready to see the point of a joke and to laugh as heartily as the rest when he finds himself the victim. He is not the less warlike, and is especially expert in guerrilla tactics. The nomad dwellers of the uplands are truly tribal; they own real allegiance to their head men, and in some cases to the head woman—for the Kurdish women are exceedingly emancipated, and possess of exceptional force of character have on occasion been known to command their tribe. In the more settled villages the tribal condition continues, but in practice the head of a village is usually some strong man who has created for himself or inherited a position and gathered around him a following, somewhat as a Roman patron surrounded himself with clients to whom he afforded protection in return for services.

The unit of communal, one can hardly call it political, life, was at any rate before the war, the village. There was little co-operation between village and village, and where a group of villages did exist the tendency was towards disintegration. It is probable that the war will be found to have drawn together many communities for mutual protection, but the policy of the Turk was ever to discourage the ambitious and enterprising and the task of welding the scattered elements into a single people would be beyond the ability of any one Kurdish sheikh unaided by external assistance. And this would be the more difficult because the Kurds owed (they seldom paid) allegiance to two governments. Turkey includes Sulaimaniyah and Keut Sanjak in her province of Mosul; the Kurds to the east of these districts fall within the territorial limits of Persia. At the moment when 12 armistice was declared British armies were actually operating in Turkish Kurdistan; and since the armistice they have occupied Mosul and dominated the surrounding country. The country is naturally asking what its fate is to be. It has been asking the same question ever since the occupation, and it must be busy speculating on the answer. Occidentals, when called on to solve any problem, at least profess to look on the rights of the case as a primary consideration; the Oriental invariably looks to the might of the interested parties. Kurdistan must be

A deed book of New York city more than 200 years old, in possession of J. E. Spanuth, a second-hand dealer of Pottsville, Penn., has been seized by authority of New York city officials. The book covers the period from 1687 to 1694, and contains the titles to most of the property in the financial district, worth hundreds of millions. Spanuth says he bought the book from an antiquarian and will contest the right of the city to seize it.

PROHIBITION ENDS VICE SQUAD'S WORK

Detectives Who Frequented Boston
Cafes Reduced—No Further
Need For Them, Says High
Police Official

(Boston Globe.)

Probably because of the marked decrease of crime in this city which has been noticeable since war-time prohibition became operative on July 1, the night vice squad of the Boston police department, consisting of two plain clothes men from each of the in-town divisions, has been temporarily abolished and its members, much to their disgust and disappointment, returned to regular patrol duty.

The vice squad has played a particularly important part in the rounding up of street walkers and users of cocaine and other drugs. They had what is known as a "moving picture" of the city made a specialty of appearing in the cafes where drinks were formerly served to women in company with male escorts. These places have always proved fruitful sources of arrests.

All the members of the vice squad received the order to return to uniform duty with chagrin and amazement. While their work on the vice squad brought them no extra pay they considered it in line for promotion and felt disappointment at being thrust backward again, as they consider the order transferring them to ordinary patrolmen duty.

The members of the squad were warmly praised yesterday for the excellence of their work in plain clothes, which was at times undesirable, mean and even dirty. Indignation was expressed yesterday by a former member of the vice squad over the rumor that has gone abroad to the effect that the abolition of the squad was because of grafting and pressure brought to bear on certain high officials. The praise bestowed upon the members of the squad by their several

A New Blood-Food Has Been Discovered That Works Wonders

SAID TO PUT NEW LIFE INTO PEOPLE THAT ARE RUN-DOWN

For years doctors have been searching for a combination that would enable them to inject into thin blood the elements it lacked. This can now be done, and any weak-blooded person can quickly be made strong and well.

Already a small army of ailing people has proved the merit of taking after each meal with a sip or two of water, two chocolate-coated Perrozene Tablets. This is easily done, and even one week's use of this wonderful blood-food will prove how nourishing and strengthening and flesh-building the treatment is.

Just think of it—Perrozene uplifts the entire nervous system, removes the blood, makes it rich and red—gives the sort of aid that's needed in throwing off weakness and languor.

Tens of thousands enjoy the advantages of renewed health through Perrozene—if you'll only use it, you'll surely grow strong too; its beneficial action is noticed even in a week. You see it goes right to work, removes the causes of the trouble and then quickly makes a cure.

For those who sleep poorly and have nervous apprehensions, Perrozene is a boon; it is a specialist in such cases. Where there is paleness, poor appetite and languor, Perrozene makes the patient feel like new in a few days.

In tiredness, nerve exhaustion, spring fever and debility, the power of Perrozene is known from coast to coast and universally used with grand results. Let Perrozene build you up, let it win you back to robust health—it will do so quickly if you give it the chance. Sold by all dealers. 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Remember the name Perrozene.

Commissioner Curtis and Supt. Crowley have made no statement whatever regarding this action, but a high police official said yesterday that no remarkable stretch of the imagination is necessary to grasp the fact that crime during the last four weeks of prohibition has been greatly decreased and that a large part of the duties of the former vice squad is eliminated by the failure of girls and women of questionable reputation to visit the drinking cafes—where there is now nothing stronger than the 2½-percent beer and ale—as they used to do in the days when hard liquor of all sorts was served.

BIG TRANSPORT PLANS IN ENGLAND

London, July 12.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The vast scope of the work to be undertaken as soon as the much-discussed transport bill is passed by parliament was outlined the other day in the House of Commons by Sir Eric Geddes, minister of ways and communications, who will head the new extensive reforms and improvements planned for the railways, roads and docks. The railway programme includes the following:

Elimination of all competitive services given merely for the sake of competition. Common use by all lines of rolling stock.

Elimination of privately owned railway cars.

Increase of traffic by judicious electrification of certain lines.

Increase of the size of rolling stock, necessitating the alteration of station platform clearances, enlargement of the entrance to warehouses and the like.

Standardization of rolling stock and locomotives.

Chimney Sickness.

Chimney sickness is a complaint that few people are likely to suffer from, but anyone who found himself on a windy day at the top of the Saganoski chimney in Chicago might get it.

The chimney of Saganoski is the tallest in the world. The shaft stretches up 500 feet above the foundation pier, and as the base is 450 feet above sea-level to start with, the place where the smoke comes out is actually 1,000 feet up, and the wind up there averages about double the velocity of the wind down below. Chimney sickness is due not to the height alone, but to the swaying of the chimney. In a bad gale the Saganoski chimney sways fifteen inches from side to side. The most marked oscillation is at right angles to the course of the wind. Thus, in a driving north wind, it wobbles from east to west—Tilt-Bits. An efficiency expert found that the girls in a hat manufactory whose work it was to sew silk-ribbon bows and bands on hats wasted bits of ribbon valued at $300 a year in cutting by guess from the rolls of ribbon given to each girl. Now the ribbons in that factory are cut by accurate gauges.

There's a Touch of Tomorrow In All Cole Does Today

THOSE who think only in the present, live in the past. It's the touch of tomorrow in what is done today that identifies advancement.

To sense the trend of the future and be the first to give it tangible expression has been Cole's aim.

Season after season—year after year, his advanced creations in motor car design have forecast the styles of the future.

The Aero-EIGHT became instantly the forerunner of a new vogue. It established new standards of design and performance.

For ten years Cole had been laying the foundations for this epoch-making creation, devoting the last five years exclusively to the Eight.

He was one of the first two American manufacturers to build an eight-cylinder car—the first to apply to it the principles of aerotype engineering.

Satisfied only with that which others had not yet achieved, Cole has put a touch of tomorrow in all that he has done.

It is that which gives the Aero-EIGHT the prestige of advanced achievement. It is that which has given the Cole product its distinction from the very beginning.
