St. John will derive benefit from an increased trade through the port, as well as from the greater purchasing power of the three classes named. There will no doubt be revival of the coasting trade, which would benefit this port very materially. The increased passenger traffic would benefit some important interests. Every industry would be encouraged by the greater general activity following the doption of the new trade agreement.

Put the question another way. Can reciprocity injure St. John? Everybody knows that it can do no injury. The citizens will not be subjected to any competition that would injuriously affect local interests. No intelligent person even pre-interests. No intelligent person even pretends that such would be the case. The talk about a possible loss of winter port trade is utterly ridiculous, for the simple reason that this trade could go in bond through United States ports under present conditions. Not only does it not do so, but American produce comes to St. John

The Canadian railways will not be running empty cars, but under reciprocity, there will be more trade in all directions. St. John is the chief city of New Brunswick. What is good for the province generally must be good for St. John.

The Standard says in large type that "the Queens-Sunbury election is not to be won this year on a bag of peanuts and a pint of lemonade." Does the Standard mean to insinuate or suggest that the people of Queens-Sunbury were once conquered by a bag of peanuts and a pint of lemonade? good for St. John.

The spontaneous welcome extended to Premier Hazen must have been very gratifying to the boys who distributed dodgers around the city urging the enthusiastic populace to remember the hour and the band and the premier. All of Mr. Hazen's fellow-citizens are glad to know that he was cordially received and bore himself with dignity at the corona tion. The gentlemen who are so earnestly endeavoring in this city to save the Empire tried to make the provincial premier's return the occasion of a popular demonstration last evening. They did it, monstration last evening. They did it, very capable minister of marine, retires nonstration last evening. # So Don't Forget the Gillette

The hearty open-air vacation life seems to makes the beard grow as it never grows at home. To the man without a GILLET E it becomes a downright nuisance. Cleanliness, comfort and self-respect demand the morning shave. But boats, trains, summer resorts and camps provide scant shaving facilities. That never worries the man with a GILLETTE Safety Razor in his grip or his pocket. In lurching cabin or swaying Pullman—on the back porch or beside a convenient stump—wherever the morning finds him—he can enjoy his regular three-minute GILLETTE shave in solid comfort, with a lordly independence of place or
