HOUSEHOLD BALL-BEARING MANGLES.

Latest improvement in clothes ironing. Has anti-friction ball-bearings, same as used in bicycles. It takes considerably shorter time to mangle clothes than to finish them with a flat-iron, and as no heat is required, a mangle will soon pay its cost in the saving of labor and fuel.

Clamps to any ordinary table. Articles that have been mangled are more healthful than when finished by the hot iron, as the meshes of the material are left open, whereas the hot iron closes them. They also retain their original whiteness and are never spoiled by scorching. Clothes to be mangled should be slightly dampened and folded before placing through the rolls.

No. 24, with ball bearings, rolls 2 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches, $3.00 each. Mangles are not suitable for shirts, or clothes with buttons.

THE MULE AND THE BUZZARD.

Showing How the Bird Made a Fatal Blunder.

"We were standing on the front porch of the village store," remarked a man, in the New Orleans Times-Democrat, lately returned from the Teche country. "The doctor and the Jew tradesman were discussing the case of an old Cadian, who for twenty years had been accustomed to drive an ancient mule into town to buy supplies. His two last trips had been made alone. What the mule had formerly carried, the Cadian himself had borne away, bending under the load. The doctor suggested that as the old Cadian's mule must have died, and as he had a very large family and was extremely poor, it might be well to agitate the question of assisting him to buy another mule. The storekeeper remembered that he had come into possession of an old mule which, as a matter of helping the old Cadian, he might part with for $10 or $12. The doctor arranged that the sale should be made upon very long time, and agreed to guarantee the payments. Just as we were talking, the old Cadian came up. In the glow of a benevolent purpose, the doctor blurted out with the offer of the cheap mule and the easy payments. The old Cadian rolled a cigarette in yellow fingers. "Why should I buy a mule?" he said. "I have my own mule." "We thought he had died," remarked the doctor.

"Ai yi yi, no, t'ank God, no," replied the old man. "Dat mule can never die; he is just laid up. You know he run away with my wife and child, on their way to church, yas. I tell you how that come to happen. Fifteen year ago dat mule lay down one day in de rice field, yas. He look like he dead. One of his eyes you know is broke, and when he lay down, his broke eye was up, so dat when you look in it you cannot tell if de mule be dead or if he be sleep. Eh, bien! a buzzard come and fly and fly and float around and look at de mule, first out of one eye and den out de oder, yas. At last, the buzzard sweep down low and walk on his feet on de ground. He walk up slowly to de mule, and look into dat broke eye. Dis mule look like he dead, the buzzard said, his eye don't move. But the buzzard is a vairy careful bird. He walk around slowly, and when he see the mule don't move, he tink him dead, yas, and go up and peck at his tail. He make not more than one, two peck, yas, when de mule he lift up his tail, wind it round dat buzzard's neck, and up he go, running down de road like mad. In one mile dat buzzard was a dead bird, yas. He made a mistake to look into de broke eye of a mule. 'What's that to do with his running away with your family?' remarked the doctor, after the laughing had subsided. 'Well, you see, my wife and all my childs dey go in de cart to church, yas. Dey was all dressed in white, my biggest child's make her first communion. Well, my wife, she hit de mule on de tail. He wake up and remember dat buzzard. Up go his tail, he wind it round the reins, and he go pick up de dead buzzard and dump my wife and every child I got into de bayou. Dat mule ain't dead, I tell you dat!"

THE DISPUTED BOUNDARY.

Rainy Hollow District Claimed to be American Territory.

SEATTLE, Wa., Oct. 28.—Advice received from Juneau on the steamer Dolphin that the missing Russian boundary monuments which have been searched for by Lieut. Emmans for the past two seasons have been discovered by a prospector of the Porcupine district, James S. Deblonde, a native of Marseilles, France, who interested himself in the Porcupine district and the modus vivendi strip for several years. Through his friendship with the Chilkat Indians he gained information which gave him a clue to the position of the first monument. From this start he followed along and found several more of the landmarks put up years ago by the czar's followers. The line marked by these monuments is about five miles inland from Pleasant Camp, the maritime town of Klukwon. The latter is five miles from Tidewater, on the Chilkat River. This makes the Russian survey line approximately 27 miles inland to the summit less than ten marine leagues, and just where it was expected from the language used in the Anglo-Russian convention of 1825. The Rainy Hollow district is within American territory.

SHORTAGE IN WHEAT

Causing a Flurry in the State of California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—The upward movement in the price of wheat is causing considerable excitement in local commercial circles, and the market is showing more activity than for many months. The fact has developed that early estimates of the crop of this state were far from the actual facts. The reports at first indicated a yield of about 900,000 tons. Now that the harvest is over the crop is believed to be only 600,000 or a trifle over. The extent of wheat shortage is shown by the estimate that there will be between 25 and 30 million grain bags carried over.

This is against from ten to fifteen millions in ordinary seasons.

The great drought in Australia is turning a large quantity of wheat in that direction which would otherwise be shipped to Europe from this port, although the steamer Zoloma has brought news that the drought was breaking up and better conditions prevailed in the South Sea continent. The British ships Claverdon, Trafalgar, Glencliva, Blythwood and Vimera have all been chartered to load here for Australia and other cargoes may be engaged before the end of the week.

FREDERICTON.

140 Cases Up Before the Divorce Court Today.

(Special to the Star.)

FREDERICTON, Oct. 28.—The divorce court met this morning, Judge Gregory presiding.

The trial of Benjamin F. McCutcheon v. Margaret McCutcheon, of St. John, goes over to next sitting of the court, at request of the defendant's counsel, A. G. Blair, the defendant being ill at Boston. Plaintiff'sibel alleges adultery, and defendant's answer was filed, denying the allegations of the plaintiff.

The case of George W. Clements, of St. John, v. Melitta Jane Clements, of Halifax, was entered and taken up. Plaintiff resided at Westport in 1872 and was married at Pembroke, Yarmouth county, N. S., to Melitta Jane Bain, on Nov. 29th, 1872, the marriage ceremony being performed by Rev. Isaiah Wallace, Baptist clergyman. Plaintiff and defendant resided at Westport for 15 years. They resided a short time at Darling Lake, Yarmouth county, and then removed to Halifax, residing on Barrington street. Clements was in the employ of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., was travelling representative and subsequently went to St. John, making his home at The Ottawa Hotel, and is manager of the Singer Company's business in this province. Plaintiff alleges that while he was making his home at Halifax his wife was unfaithful, and Alex. Goggins, Clements' lawyer, is named as co-respondent. Clements last saw his wife in 1892. She continues to reside at Halifax. He asks for absolute divorce, with leave to remarry.

The plaintiff was called, and was on the stand when adjournment was made for lunch. The court resumed at 2.15. This case is undefended.
