Kindness in a Street Car

One warm, spring morning, a poor woman entered a heavily-laden downtown cable car, in one of our Western cities. Besides her large market basket, she had two small children, hardly more than babies. A glance at her care worn face and the shabby. although clean, attire, of herself and the children, told, at a glance, of many a struggle with poverty.

She was evidently on her way to market, and having no one to leave the babies with at home, had been this had been the case before, for with aglance at the "rules and regulations"

Shortly afterward there entered the car two daintily-dressed school girls, as fresh as the June morning itself.

Their merry faces sent a thrill of pleasure to the hearts of the other passengers, so much of youth's buoyancy and happiness did they seem to bring with them.

They found seats next to the poor woman, and after a minute or two, the one nearest said to her: "Let me hold the little boy for you," at the same time transferring the warm little bundle mother's lap to her own.

The words were spoken so gently, and accompanied by a smile so winning, that the little fellow made no objection but was happy and contented all the ride, especially when a rosy-cheeked apple from the pretty lunch-basket found its way into his tiny hands.

The woman's grateful "Thank you!" as she left the car, showed that not only were the weary arms rested, but the heart cheered, by the little act of thoughtfulness.
