He has been through 175 skirmishes and has been wounded twice, and those, as he expresses it, "were mere The many friends of Mrs J. H

> Things, Colonel Stone states, were getting rather slow in the turbulent republic, and so he decided that he would come to Canada, enlist, and get to the continental theatre of war. As he is a Canadian, having been born at London, Ont., he felt that his proper place was with the British Empire in the great struggle now under way. Leaving Villa's forces, he crossed the line into Texas, and came straight to Victoria from El Paso. On arriving he walked into the local recruiting centre, and in the most casual manner asked whether his services would be acceptable. Nothing would have been known of his exceptional war experiences had it not been that the application form requires that some questions be answered. These led to the disclosure of the whole interesting narrative.

"Yes," he said, "I have seen previous service. In fact, I have just left Gen. Villa's army." This reply prompted the curiosity of the officials and, in response to their request, he gave a skeletonized account of his

BELGIUM'S HEROISM.

Referring to his unhappy native land, desolated Belgium, M. Maeterlinck says in the course of recent essay: To have saved its life it had but to yield to the enemy the invader would not have exterminated it. A great nation is never exterminated: even impossible seriously to enslave it and to render it long unhappy. It had nothing to fear but shame. It was no question then of the heroism which is only a final stand of despair. the heroism of the animal brought to bay and fighting blindly to delay for a moment the coming of death. No! It was a heroism freely assumed, willed. acclaimed, unanimous; heroism for an idea and for a sentiment; that is, form, an unmixed sacrifice and with-
