Procopio several houses fell, burying their occupants. In Messina, where the shocks were almost as violent as across the strät, the convicts in the pentientiary were panic-stricken. Two hundred mutinied and tried to escape by overpowering their guards, but they were overpowered. In Calabria the train service ceased running on account of the landsildes. Slight shocks were felt in Southern Italy and Sicily throughout Friday night. The first shock in Messina was the most violent. It lasted twelve seconds and was accompanied with rumblings. The inhabitants fied shrieking with from their louses and filled the streets with their clamor. The hospital, although but slightly damaged, was shaken so violently that many patients became hysterical and had to be removed. The panic absted somewhat about midnight and a few persons returned to their homes. Most of the inhabitants, however, decided to pass the night in the streets and open squares. After two hours the rumblings began and the former scenes of panic were receated. Men and women ran almlessly all directions. Hundreds dropped to their knees and prayed aloud for deliverance.

On Saturday morning another shock came. Many streets are entirely deserted. Dozens of persons have taken refuge on ships in the harbor. There have been six shocks in all.

In Reggio many houses are cracked and threaten to fall at any moment. The panic-stricken inhabitants are camping in shelters erected by soldiers. Patrols distributed food and other necessaries. It is known that six persons were killed and several injured in Bagnara, but details are wanting owing to the demoralization of railway and telegraph services. Reports of disasters caused by the earth-quakes are still meagre but they suffice to show that there has been great loss of life. Procopio, a village of 1,200 inhabitants in Reggio di Calabria, has been obliterated. Virtually all the buildings were thrown into ruins, The number of deaths is not known, but in one church 47 persons were buried alive under fallen walls. The last authoritive report was that the list of dead was above 90. In another village of the same province eight persons were killed by falling buildings. The damage to property has been enormous. Troops and officials are going to the help of the suffering districts. King Humbert has sent several donations from his private purse. Reports of disasters caused by the earth-

Details of the Horribie Massacre of Armenias Christians.

LONDUS, NOV. II.—The Standard's despatch from Varms describes the recent massacre of Armenian Christians as of equal importance with the Bulgarian buttle of the Armenians to pay taxes on the ground that the Kardish raids had so impoverabled them as to render it impossible. This probably was true. Trops were sent to enforce the payments but were beaten. off. The governor of Bitlist then arrived with an imposing force of regulars. The people seeing that the struggle was hopeless yielded, but the governor resolved to make an example of them. He ordered the troops to fire on the defence less people and they obeyed with alacity. They only ceased when the residents of twenty-five villages, numbering some thousands, had been killed. Some reports say 6,000 were slain.

The letter from Bitlis gives details of the origin of the disturbances. There was askurdish raid on Armenian cattle, resulting in a fight, in which two Kurds were killed. The friends of the Kurds took the company headed by a priest knell. The Mayor of the Town and a Frominess Ottisen Assassinated.

LULA, Miss., Nov. 17.—Jacob W. Harman, mayor of this town, and Henry Lawrence, a leading jeweller, were assassinated on the street yesterday by John W. Boyd, overseer of the Van Eaton plantation and his younger brother Bob.

A year ago Mayor Harman and the elder Boyd had a dispute and several shots were fired, since which time bad blood had existed between them. On Thursday Mayor Harman met John W. Boyd on the street, drew his pistol and beat him over the head with it. Yesterday the Boyd brothers came into town, armed with rifles. As Harman and Lawrence walked up the street to dinner, the Boyds confronted them and opened fire. Harman drew his revolver and fired a couple of shots without effect. Both he and Lawrence were killed on the spot. The elder Boyd escaped on horseback and the younger on foot. They sent word they would surrender to the sheriff, but to no one else. The two men killed were 33 years old. The elder Boyd is 35 and the younger 18.
