THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Five Different Varieties of Peers-The Oldest Legislative Body.

It may be stated that there are five different varieties of peers-those England, of Scotland, of Great Britain, of Ireland, and of the United Kingdom. The creation of the peers of England and of Scotland was brought to an end by the Act of Union between the northern and southern kingdom in 1707, while the creation of peers of Great Britain came to an end in 1801, when the union of Great Britain and Ireland was con-summated. Since that time all peers summated. Since that time all peers created have been either peers of the United Kingdom or peers of Ireland. At the present moment the members of the House of Lords who are indebted for the present moment the members of the House of Lords who are indebted for their seats in the gilded chamber to inheritance amount to about 380. That is to say, about two-thirds of the upper house of the imperial legislature of Great Britain can be described as hereditary legislators. The representative peers of Scotland and Ireland who owe their seats in the House of Lords to election number forty-four. There are about ninety members of the House of Lords who owe their seats in that chamber to the fact that they have been raised to the peerage. Besides, there are five Lords of Appeal, and ex-Lords of Appeal, whose honors are merely for life, and then there are twenty-six Archbishops and Bishops of the Church of England, who, while they sit and vote as peers, enjoy none of they sit and vote as peers, enjoy none of the prerogatives of the latter, are in the eyes of the law merely Lords Spiritual of Parliament, and are amenable to the

of Parliament, and are amenable to the ordinary courts of justice.

From this it will be seen that fully one-third of the British House of Lords—the oldest legislative body in the world in existence at the present day, a body to which Great Britain owes its Magna Charta, the basis of the British constitution and the foundation of all the present day. and the foundation of all the preregatives and rights of the people—has at least one-third of its members who are indebted for their seats and for their rights to vote to other causes than those of hereditary descent.—Ex-Attache in New York Tribune.

Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg.

Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg.

The Duchess Cecilia is the future Empress who will set the pace for every woman in Germany, and hold all social values in her hands. It is here that the German woman, the average good lady of the better class, who has a personal interest in the Kaiserin's ideas of what is fit and proper, ceases to be a frank and smiling matchmaker, and permits herself to look criticaly into the affair. But with puckered brows and the best will in the world, there is nothing to be heard of the little lady to which any German woman can take exception. The German woman can take exception. The truth, the real truth, uncalted by ex-pedient reports, is that the Kaiser's son has found his wife in a very pretty and very sweet child, who has not even yet dazzle of royal life.

The fact that hardly anybody has seen her, that there are no anecdotes to quote, only proves that her seclusion up to the present has been a very real one; her life has been limited by the schoolner life has been limited by the school-rom and the scope of her rides in the woods. It was in these woods about her father's great, ill-built house that the Crown Prince rode with her every day for a week, and, doubtless, it was then foundations of this enugage ment were laid. She rides well,

She came to a State ball or two in Ber lin quite recently, and there she was noticed because of the marked attention which the Prince conferred on her. was pretty, girlish, charmingly colored and very timid; danced little, and blush-ed a good deal. There can be no doubt that the women of Germany are willing to welcome her, to approve of her, and to become her loyal and enthusiastic supporters. In Hanover and Brunswick just now, people are squabbling very ac-tively about the political significance of the business, saying that the reconcilia-tion of the Duke of Cumberland and the Kaiser means that it is all up with the Guelphs. But the women are absorbed in the far more weighty aspect of the

MULE BREEDING.

A Boom Expected When Work Begins on the Canal.

Livestock experts are predicting that the big money of the next few years to be made in stock will be gathered in by the breeders of mules. When construction work on the Panama Canal begins in earnest, they say the price of mules is bound to jump, because these are the only animals that can stand the intense only animais that can stant the interior heat of that section and keep on working. The West Indies, Africa and the Philippine Islands have also been drawing heavily upon this country for mules, and the American mule is increasing in favor as a part of the equipment of European armies.

As a matter of fact mules have been As a matter of fact mules have been steadily rising in value. In Texas, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri there are big mule farms which have enriched their owners in the last ten years. Yet, for some reason or another, the former mule breeding sections are not producing mules fast enough to supply the demand and their production is declining. Not many years ago Kentucky had 35,000 jennets, while now there are not more than 2,500. The same decline is noted in Texas, Missouri and Tennessee.

souri and Tennessee.

The mule has been the standard work animal of the Southern States for many years. It is there, of course, that he flourishes most. Texas tops the list with 407,000, with Missouri next with 209,000. Of all the Southern States Virginia boasts of the smallest number, 42,000. The average value of the mule in these States runs from $70 to $85. In the Un-States runs from $70 to $85. In the United States the mule averages $10 more a head in value than the horse—$72.49 to $62.25, There are nearly 3,000,000 mules as compared with 16,000,000 horses. On the big southern plantations mules in immense numbers are used. On the biggest one in Louisiana, that of the Leon Godichaux Company, from 1,000 to 1,500 mules are worked the year round, Climatic conditions make the mule more to be relied on than the horse in the rice, cane and cotton districts, and as these cane and cotton districts, and as these are being better and more intelligently worked, the demand for the mules in-

Two years ago, however, Mr. Chamberlain when staying with Lord and Lady Beauchamp attended a ball given by the then mayor of Bir-mingham. Mr. Chamberlain danced several items on the program, including three waltzes and a set of laneers, but did not attempt the polka. This is probably the only occasion in the past 20 years that Mr. Chamberlain has taken an active part in the ballroom.

CREATING A DEMAND.

An unknown breakfast food was in troduced to the public through the newspapers. The first effort was a page advertisement in each of the leading Sunday newspapers for four successive Sundays, at a cost of $25,000. After that nearly 1,000 daily newspapers were used regularly. A demand had to be created, and the newspaper advertising did it.

At first the service consisted of three At first the service consisted of three trains each way on week days and two on Sundays, but this was soon found to be insufficient. After Lime'street station was opened there were six first-class trains and six second-class trains each way on week days and two of eac on on Sundays thirty-one miles occupied nearly two hours, which led to complaints that the peed was too great to be pleasant and caused dizziness. On the other hand, caused dizziness. On the other hand, sanguine expectations were indulged in that in course of time the average rate of traveling would be at least double the ordinary speed of the swiftest conveyances drawn by horses. It was anticitied that the course of the surface of the su pated that the general adoption of rail-ways would lead to "a vast decrease in the consumption of oats and hay by the substitution of steam engines in lieu of horses, and that portion of the soil which has hitherto been allotted to the growth has hitherto been allotted to the growth of such produce may be appropriated to the raising of food suitable for human species"—an important consideration in the time of the Corn laws. It could not have been foreseen that the railway system, so far from superseding horses, would lead to an immense increase in the demand for them.—Liverpool Post.
