Fortune

A block of sunshine on the floor. A red rose peeping through the door. The echo of a hob-nailed boot. And yet some people call him poor.

Another labors in a ditch. Between high buildings all shut in. Where every sound is out of pitch. And every red rose soiled with sin. And yet some people call him rich.

Neglected and Dependent Children.

The Report for 1915 of the Superintendent of Neglected and Dependent children of Nova Scotia is printed by the order of the Legislature. There are eleven Children's Aid Societies organized under the Children's Protection Act of 1912. In addition to these, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty which has branches in different parts of the Province has been approved as a Children's Aid Society and is under the direction of this Department. The report also refers to the work of two Juvenile Courts, one for the City of Halifax and the other for New Glasgow. Judge Wallace conducts the former, and Judge Patterson, of the County Court, the latter. The Halifax Industrial School, The Maritime Home for Girls, in Turton, are engaged in similar work, as are also more than a dozen Societies, under Protestant and Roman Catholic control, chiefly located in Halifax, but extending from Sydney to Bridgewater. Mr. Ernest H. Blois, the Superintendent of the Children's Aid Societies, keeps also in touch more or less directly with all the other institutions to which reference has been made.

At first thought one might naturally ask, "what need can there be for so many of these organizations in a Province such as our own, where population comparatively a very favorable position as respects 'industry and morality'?" But, a reading of the individual reports from local Societies, and of the Superintendent's record of his journeys from place to place in the interest of neglected children, reveals a condition of things which will be a surprise to many.

Some very sad cases are referred to. A little girl, seven years of age, father dead and mother had taken up with a tramp. The child was almost abandoned. She was committed to good begging expeditions. She had been cruelly beaten, showing marks from head to foot.

A girl under age, living with a man not being married. The parents knew the facts and admitted them at the trial. The man is now serving a two years' sentence in Dorchester.

A father of a family of very young children addicted to 'opress', and would not work. The family were destitute. Legal action was taken against the man and he was sent to the County Jail for a month. This was a good effort on the man who is an excellent mechanic, and is now sober and industrious. He has a comfortable home for wife and children and has expressed his appreciation of the drastic remedy.

The juvenile Court, Halifax, has had 194 delinquents and 34 neglected children before it during the past year. It deals also with adults who contribute to the delinquency or neglect.

In this Court there is none of the legal formalism usual in Courts of Justice. The object is to avail what might familiarize the boy or girl with legal ceremony, and to endeavor to reach the conscience. Record is made of the age, the religion, the home condition, the physical and mental condition. 'Released on probation' means that the child is released under the care and supervision of the probation officer. 'Released conditionally' means that a sentence has been imposed with some conditions, and if they are not met, the sentence will be carried out. 'Discharged' or 'dismissed', means that the child was technically guilty, but either the offence was very slight, or it was judged by the Court that a warning was sufficient. If commitment to an institution is made it is always for an indefinite period, and the child is released when his condition in the home warrants it.

There is no publicity given to the proceedings of the Court. The newspapers are prohibited from publishing the names of children brought before the court. A woman probation officer assists in the case of a delinquent girl, also her mother or some woman friend. These women and the Judge are generally the only persons present.

The Superintendent says, "when the Court has done its full part and the Probation Officer his, there is yet something lacking to obtain the perfect results sought. What that something is and how to secure it are questions which lead to wide discussions. Some of us are old fashioned enough to believe it to be that form of religion which comes from the grace of God in the heart."

"It's very hard," said the messenger.

"How?" asked the kangaroo.

"To be starved when living, and stuffed when dead."

The "Romance" of Nursing.

A book was published a short while ago entitled "The way of the Red Cross" (Messrs. Holder and Son, Toronto, 25-57 King St. W.) It gives some vivid and interesting things as they really are. Dealing with the work of the nurses, the writer tells us: "If the average domestic servant were asked to do the work that these nursing sisters accomplish every day, she would desert without giving notice, for the ordinary conception of nursing, and especially of nursing in military hospitals, bears little or no relation to the reality. From the time of Florence Nightingale in the Crimean War, the nursing in military hospitals has been regarded as an heroic thing, and shepherds the pillows of sick soldiers, and take their part in the actual work, varying from going out on the battle field with cups of water, and other postive things, for the recently wounded. There is no romance in nursing, though on the part of the nurses there is the sheer heroism demanded of any man or woman who sets out to do arduous and unpleasant things. The nurse who goes out to look for romance at the front must take it with her. There is demanded of these women twelve hours and more every day, Sundays included, devoted to hard work, much of which is of a distinctly military nature, and much of which is positively unpleasant. There is no romance in dressing and bandaging the stumps of limbs, in washing gangrened wounds, or in feeding men paralysed by shell fire or too weak to feed themselves. On the fact of nursing in the hospitals of men who can overlook unpleasant physical facts and go on, in reality it demands the very highest and best form of self-sacrifice of which human nature is capable. No matter how unpleasant the tasks may be, for the sake of the patients the same attitude must be preserved; there is unvarying cheerfulness, always a word of encouragement for a man in pain, a selfishness rather than an unselfishness which give these women a high place beside the great heroes of the war."

St. Vitus Dance.

A TROUBLE CURSED THROUGH THE LIFE OF DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

St. Vitus dance is a disease that usually attacks young children, chiefly of a school age—though older persons may be afflicted with it. In most cases it consists of a twitching of the muscles of the face and limbs. As the disease progresses this twitching takes the form of spasms in which the patient is frequently unable to hold anything in his hands, or to walk steadily, and in severe cases even the speech may be affected. The disease is due to a debility of the nerves and is always cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, tone and strengthen the nerves and in this way restore the sufferer to good health. Any symptoms of nerve trouble in young children should be promptly treated as it is almost sure to lead to St. Vitus dance. The following is proof of the power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to cure this trouble. Mrs. Hama, Oshawa, Ont. says: "My daughter, Myrtle, at the age of 12 years, was attacked with St. Vitus dance. She was under the care of a doctor for three months, but did not improve. One side of her body was entirely useless when the trouble was at its worst, and she could not even dress herself, nor hold anything in the hand on the affected side. One day I came across a little book advertising Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and saw where they had cured similar cases. I then decided to try these Pills, and by the time she had taken two boxes she began to improve, and by the time she had taken five boxes every symptom of the trouble had disappeared, and she was as well as ever."

A fair trial with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure all such cases. You can get the Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $3.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The following passage took place between counsel and witness in a disputed will case.

"Did your father give you no parting admonition?"

"He never gave much away at any time."

"I mean, what were his last words?"

"They don't concern you."

"They not on'y concern me, sir, they concern the whole court."

"O, all right," was the reply. "Father said: 'Don't have no trouble when I'm gone, Jim, 'coz lawyers is the biggest thieves uhnshun'."

Food Must Be Chewed.

The idea prevails in most minds that the purpose of chewing food thoroughly is to break it up into small particles, with the main idea that small particles are easily digestible, while large particles are impossible to digest. That is a fallacy. It has been shown in the laboratory that a cube of meat which measures 1 in. will digest at least as quickly as one which measures 1/4 in. A dog will swallow a piece of meat 3/4 in. or 1 in. long, and almost as thick, without chewing it at all. Yet a dog seldom has indigestion, except when some food is fed in large pieces, or when the food is broken up by turning a naturally carnivorous canine into a vegetarian animal. The point is that thorough mastication makes digestion more easy, not because the food is broken up into finer particles, but because food held in the mouth a great length of time and more carefully masticated has usually mixed with it a greater amount of saliva and its ptyalin ferment for the digestion of starch elements. To hold food in the mouth until it is thoroughly masticated requires a certain amount of attention, which, by the way, is an important thing in the digestion of foods. This attention people do not always give. Saliva does not flow well when your mind is not on your eating.

Not Sad Enough.

A certain droll, vainglorious whose severity had made him unpopular with his troops, was putting a party of recruits through the funeral service. Opening the ranks so as to admit the passage of the supposed cortege between them, the instructor, by way of explanation, walked slowly down the line, remarking as he went, "Dead as they look, but they ain't dead yet, are they?" "Now I'm the corpse. Pay attention."

Having reached the end of the path he turned round, and as they stood, steadily with a scrutinizing eye for a moment or two, then exclaimed:—"Your heads is right, and your heads is right, but you haven't got that look of regret you ought to have."

Eczema on the Head.

Mr. Peterson South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment and it thoroughly cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

A bachelor friend of the young couple was being entertained at dinner, and during the evening he was greeted by the proud mother to her infant son.

"Now, Fred, which of us do you think he is like?" she asked gaily, holding up the baby for inspection.

The guest viewed the tiny mite for a moment as he replied: "Well, of course intelligence has not really dawned in his countenance yet, but he's wonderfully like both of you!"

"Does your wife suffer from headaches much?"

"Only when I want her to do something that she doesn't want to do."

Replying to the boast that Germany is everywhere fighting on foreign soil, the New York World says: "When we look at the German Colonial Empire, established at great cost, we see all but one dependency in the hands of the enemy and that closely beleaguered. The land forces of Germany occupy a few thousand square miles of enemy territory. The sea power of Great Britain holds over a million square miles of German territory in all quarters of the earth. A nation that cannot or will not use its naval forces to open its harbors and reclaim its right to the sea must do more than merely hold its own."
